School Board Has Real Problem In Jobs Issue

BY JAMES G. COLBERT, JR.

Members of the Newton School Committee are confronted with the necessity of making a choice between conflicting recommendations by school officials and Mayor Monte G. Basbas on the creation of new jobs in the city's public school system.

Proposals by school principals and division heads calling for the establishment of 110 new positions, 75 of them teaching posts, in the school department next year, were submitted to the School Board members at their meeting Monday night.

Mayor Basbas, who has requested the School Committee to hold the 1967 increase in the school budget to $1 million, has urged that the creation of new jobs in the school system be deferred until some future year.

Basbas, who is faced with the prospect of a certain increase in the city's tax rate next year, is striving to keep the tax rate jump as small as possible.

The suggested 110 new school jobs would cost the city more than $500,000 for a full year.

School Superintendent Charles E. Brown reviewed the requests of the school principals and division heads in submitting their recommendations to the School Committee.

While Dr. Brown took no stand on the recommendations, it appeared clear from his remarks that he favors the creation of some new teaching positions in order to reduce the size of classes in the city's schools.

He declared that it is "impossible" for a first grade teacher to do her job adequately with a class of 27 or 28 pupils.

"We have asked the people in the public schools to perform an impossible task," Dr. Brown asserted.

"We have got to stop apologizing for trying to make it possible for a teacher to do her job," he told the School Board.

The proposals outlined by Superintendent Brown included requests for the appointment of consultants and specialists in art and music as well as additional teachers.

Before leaving the School Board session to attend a conference at City Hall, Mayor Basbas urged the School Committee to review "very carefully" the requests for the creation of the 110 new jobs.

Several School Committee members voiced their concern

Cardinal Cushing Receives Medal

He's Honorary 'Chief'

J. Ellis Bowen, left, Newton's Sealer of Weights and Measures, receives certificate of honorary membership in the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Assoc. from Chief Philip Purcell.

Fish Still Favored By Local Catholics

A great many Newton Catholics will continue to eat fish on Friday even though the new church regulations require that they abstain from eating meat only on Ash Wednesday and Fridays during Lent.

A survey by the Graphic showed there has been a varying reaction by Catholics throughout the Newtons to the recent decree issued by the American Bishops.

A substantial percentage of those questioned said they will continue to abstain from eating meat on Fridays except on special occasions such as holidays or the day after Thanksgiving.

Some declared the lifetime custom of not eating meat on Friday would be difficult to break. Most of the people in this group said they couldn't adjust themselves to the idea of eating meat on Friday.

Others asserted that they would continue to forego meat on Friday as a voluntary form of self-denial.

Bldg. Status Report Given Mayor Basbas

Bids for the demolition of homes to make way for the construction of the new Bigelow Junior High School should be submitted before next Thursday, Public Buildings Commissioner Vincent D. Burns announced this week.

Burns submitted a report on the status of various public building projects in Newton to Mayor Monte G. Basbas last Tuesday.

In it he said that "final plans and specifications are now finished" for the Bigelow School "and have been approved by the Mayor's Advisory Committee, the SBAC and the Aldermanic Building Committee."

Burns said bids are being solicited for the demolition of the five homes acquired on Vernon and Park streets. "Bids should be received by December 8," Burns said, "so that, weather permitting, demolition work shou'd begin before the end of the year."

5 Appointed 4 Retire In City Schools

Five appointments, two resignations and four retirements were approved at Monday night's School Committee meeting.

Mrs. Rheba J. Adoph has been appointed as a sixth-grade teacher at the Burr school on a part time basis for the remainder of the year. She received her B.A. from the University of Michigan and her M.A. from Lesley College in 1959. She formerly taught at the Acton elementary school.

City's Yule Trim Is Set For Holiday

The Garden City has become decked out in its customary, annual holiday finery.

In virtually every one of the city's shopping areas, the holly, greenery, tinsel, golden stars and colored lights made their appearance well in advance of Christmas Day, and in some instances, even before the Thanksgiving observance was over.

The displays are not the result of any official or coordinated endeavor, but are due to individual effort on the part of the various associations of businessmen in each of the squares or areas that have a concentration of stores.

The gladsome displays will remain in place until after old Santa has crossed the skies over Newton, and probably the year 1967 has taken over from 1966.

Bowen Gets Special Honor From Police

J. Ellis Bowen, sealer of weights and measures of the City of Newton and Chairman of the National Conference on Weights and Measures, sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards, was presented an honorary membership in the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Assoc. last week by Newton Police Chief Philip Purcell.

Purcell, immediate past president of the International Assoc. of Chiefs of Police, said:

"Weights and measures officials are law enforcement officers with definite policing authority and duties. The importance of professional weights and measures administration to every citizen, locally and nationally, cannot be over-stated. Such officials, through enforcement procedures, provide an assurance of accurate quantity determinations in all commercial transactions.

Names Sought For Viet Service Gifts

Newton residents with relatives serving with our armed forces in Vietnam are invited and requested to send the full names and overseas mailing addresses of the service men and women to The Graphic.

The purpose of this request is to enable clubs and organizations to send gift packages, and residents of the city to mail cards to the men and women from Newton who will spend Christmas in far-away Vietnam.

Mothers, fathers, wives, sisters and other relatives of the service men and women stationed in Vietnam can cooperate in this undertaking by sending their names and overseas mailing addresses immediately to the News Editor, The Newton Graphic, P. O. Box 102, Newtonville, Mass., 02160.

When the names and addresses of the men and women from the Newtons now serving in Vietnam are received, they will be published in The Graphic so that residents wishing to send them cards may do so.

Organizations which desire to send a gift package to a serviceman in Vietnam will be asked to contact The Graphic and obtain a name and mailing address.

Therapy Unit Made Gift For Hospital

A family long active in philanthropic, educational and civic causes was honored recently at the Beth Israel Hospital when the hospital's new Shwartz Occupational Therapy Unit was dedicated.

Made possible through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham S. Shwartz of Portland, Maine, and their late brother Sidney P. Shwartz, the unit is located in the Rabb building.

Sidney R. Rabb, a trustee and past president of the hospital, accepted the facility on behalf of its Officers and Trustees.

Dr. Mitchell T. Rabkin, general director, told the Shwartz family that "we are proud of this Occupational Therapy Unit. Most of us never thnik about the remarkable complexity of performing a simple

United Fund $17,000 Off Local Goal

Although it was announced that the Massachusetts Bay United Fund has reached its goal, a careful analysis by John F. Taplin, Community Chairman, shows that Newton still must take in $17,000 in pledges and cash.

Mr. Taplin further states that Newton United Fund workers fully expect to receive the total value from individuals who gave last year but as yet have not had an opportunity to give to this present drive.

The Newton United Fund urgently requests all companies, organizations, and individuals who have not given to do the following: (1) Call headquarters at 969-9290 for a pick-up; or (2) Mail in your gift directly to 12 Page Road, Newtonville.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

State To Have No Atty. Gen. For Eight Days in January

For eight days in January Massachusetts apparently will have no Attorney General. That, at least, is the present indication on Beacon Hill.

Attorney General Edward W. Brooke will be sworn in as a freshman member of the U. S. Senate at ceremonies on Washington's Capitol Hill on Jan. 10.

Brooke, according to members of his office staff, probably will resign from the Attorney Generalship at the close of business on Jan. 9 before making his departure for Washington.

Lieutenant Governor Elliot L. Richardson will take over the Attorney Generalship on January 18.

As a practical matter there will be no Attorney General between the time Brooke steps out and Richardson moves in.

32 DIE, 1 SAVED AS ORE SHIP SINKS

AN ORE FREIGHTER was missing and presumed sunk in gale-lashed Lake Huron Wednesday. Thirty-two crewmen were lost. Rescue ships reported the stormy waters were littered with bodies.

One survivor was plucked from the high seas by helicopter. He was Dennis Hale, 21, of Ashtabula, O., who said the 12,500-ton Daniel A. Morell, 600 feet long, had split in two when struck by gale-lashed seas early Tuesday.

Hale reached a life raft with three others. In the hour that followed in 38-degree waters, the other three died of exposure. Hope for the rest was given up by the ship owners.

$140 BILLION U. S. BUDGET FOR '68 SEEN

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S budget for fiscal 1968 can increase to a record $140 billion, a jump of $13 to $15 billion over the current spending estimate, the President's top fiscal advisers predicted in Austin, Tex., Wednesday.

This figure would almost certainly indicate the necessity for higher taxes, but they emphasized that Johnson still must wait for further fiscal data. Included in the increased spending figures, the advisors said, were about $10 billion for national defense and Viet Nam war expense, and about $5 billion for higher interest rates in the tight U. S. economy.

LAST QUINT SAVED BY BLOOD EXCHANGE

RONI SUE Aronson underwent a blood transfusion Wednesday and doctors said the only survivor of quintuplets born last Saturday came through the operation in good condition.

Dr. Lee Bass, the Aronson pediatrician, said 75 per cent of the infant's blood was exchanged and "we are hopeful of a successful outcome at this time." Earlier in the day Bass said he was "much more fearful" she would not live. "Roni Sue's condition is now good," Bass said.

SPECK CAN STAND TRIAL, JUDGE RULES

A CHICAGO criminal court jury ruled Wednesday on the orders of a judge that Richard Speck, 24-year-old Texas drifter, is mentally competent to stand trial on charges of slaughtering eight young nurses.

Judge Herbert C. Paschen directed the verdict over the strenuous objections of Speck's lawyer, who said "this is a sad day in Cook County."

The judge acted after a panel of seven physicians—six of them psychiatrists—testified that Speck could understand the charges against him and aid in his defense.

AUTO RATES UP 19 PLACES, DOWN IN 21

A 6 PERCENT rate increase in compulsory automobile insurance was announced Wednesday by State Insurance Commissioner C. Eugene Farnam.

The insurance companies in the state had requested a 12.7 per cent increase.

The commissioner said the tentative increase, highest in six years, will be given a public hearing Dec. 19.

Nineteen communities would be moved into higher rate territories. Twenty-one other communities would be transferred into lower rate categories. Towns with higher rates include: Wellesley, and Westwood. Towns with lower rates include: Foxboro and Norfolk.

STATE DRUG CHIEF DENIES LIQUOR CHARGES

GEORGE A. MICHAEL, director of the state Division of Food and Drugs, pleaded innocent Wednesday to four charges of unlawfully selling and transporting alcoholic beverages. Charges were based on evidence by the now defunct Massachusetts Crime Commission.

Michael's lawyer, Monroe L. Inker, was given 30 days to file a special plea. No date was set for trial, pending Inker's plea, and Michael was released without bail.

Two indictments alleged that between Feb. 1 and May 30, 1961 Michael transported liquor to the South Station Liquor Store without a permit and sold the liquor without a permit. The other two indictments accused Michael of the same offenses with the same store between Aug. 5 and Oct. 1, 1961.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION SHOWDOWN SET

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL Wednesday set the stage for a dramatic appearance by Gov. John A. Volpe and a possible vote on a special legislative session Saturday evening. The council recessed until 5 p.m. Saturday when Volpe is expected to preside over a vote on the proposed session.

The governor is expected to arrive in Boston from Europe Saturday afternoon. Volpe wants the special session to begin Dec. 5. He has said he will ask the legilators to consider only his plan for a mental health reorganization. He is opposed by the Democrats.

URGE 100-STORY APARTMENTS 'SUPER CITIES'

TWO ENGINEERS Wedneday advocated construction of "super-cities", holding 865,000 persons per square mile to end their "tragedy, noise, smog, nerve-frazzling traffic snarls and urban sprawl."

Vernal M. Tyler and Carl F. Asiala Jr. of the McDonnel Co. of St. Louis addressed a Boston meeting of the third annual convention of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

Their city of the future would have 100-story towers shaped like piled-up gears, placed in mile-wide circles where autos would be banned except at the fringe.

3 STUDENT NURSES SUE N. U.

THREE COEDS are suing the College of Nursing at Northeastern University because they allegedly were refused permission to work for a bachelor's degree in nursing. The girls' lawyer, Howard S. Whiteside, asked that the university be restrained from collecting tuition from them until the school gives the students the courses it promised when they applied for admission. Northeastern officials were to appear in Superior Court Thursday to show cause why the restraining order should not be issued.

U. S. PATROL RESCUED, VIET REDS ROUTED

AMERICAN infantrymen, helicopters and fighter-bomber planes Wednesday routed a Communist force northeast of Saigon, killing at least 40 Viet Cong and rescuing a besiged U.S. Army patrol.

Northwest of Saigon, however, a tragic mistake by U.S. artillery killed three Vietnamese civilians and wounded 14, seven seriously, when at least nine 105mm shells fired in the wrong direction hit the village of Tan Uyen.

ARAB NATIONS CALL ISRAEL WAR POW WOW

THE ARAB LEAGUE Wednesday called a Dec. 7 meeting in Cairo to formulate a common policy in the Israeli crisis.

Cairo Radio said the league notified defense and foreign ministers and chiefs of staffs of the member nations to attend the gathering.

The meeting may bring together hostile monarchist and republican nations, now bitterly disputing ways to deal with Israel. An Israeli attack on three Jordan villages Nov. 12 started a crisis. Egypt and Syria accused Jordan's young King Hussein of being unprepared for the raid. Hussein is backed by powerful Saudi Arabian King Faisal..

U. S.-SOVIET FISH PARLEY PROGRESSES

SOVIET-AMERICAN talks on fishing practices off both the Atalntic and Pacific coasts have made some progress, officials in Washington said Wednesday night.

They said a meeting of higher authorities, expected to take place in Washington in late January, is aimed to succeed in establishing agreement on practices to conserve stocks of fish, and make it possible for smaller American ships to operate on the high seas without danger from larger Russian fleets using bigger vessels.

Mr. Rabb told the group that "It is altogether in keeping with the warm, generous spirit of the Shwartz family that when the call went out to meet critical needs of the hospital, they should have been among the first to respond ... and to respond by supporting a service which emphasizes the restoration of strength to people ... They have been doing this for many years, in many areas of philanthropic and community services. In Boston, and in Portland, Maine, they have responded in the same fashion, whenever people needed help."

Abraham S. Shwartz responded for the family. Mrs. Nehemiah H. Whitman, an honorary trustee and chairman of the Tablets, Inscriptions and Resolutions Committee, escorted the family to the Occupational Therapy Unit, where Mrs. Abraham S. Shwartz undraped a plaque which noted that the facility was made possible through t he family's generosity.

She then cut a ribbon at the entrance to the unit and the guests toured the facility. Dr. William J. Shriber, head of the Department of Physical Medicine, who had earlier described the functions of the Occupational Therapy Unit, led the tour and explained the functions of the many types of equipment used in occupational therapy.

Abraham S. Shwartz and his wife, Goldie, have maintained an endowment fund at Beth Israel for many years. ## School Committee Head Replies To Woman's Discourtesy Charge

School Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman has written a letter to the Graphic in reply to one printed in this newspaper from a Newton woman who had asked to be considered as a candidate for a vacancy which occurred on the School Board.

Mrs. Sheila Shaw of 29 Valley Spring rd. complained that Berman encouraged her to submit her qualifications for service on the School Committee but that she received no reply of acknowledgment from him after doing so.

She also protested that the position on the School Board was filled in a "peremptory manner" and that although it was reported that Vincent P. Stanton was chosen from more than 25 candidates to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Hugh M. Tomb as committeeman from Ward 7, the names of the other candidates were not made public.

Chairman Berman's response to Mrs. Shaw's complaint follows:

"Mrs. Sheila Shaw states in her letter that I was discourteous in failing to reply to her written request that she be considered as a candidate to fill a vacancy on the Newton School Committee. I surely intended no discourtesy and if I am guilty of any I apologize.

"She had asked me orally if she could be considered, and as she correctly states I said that she should send me a biographical statement, which she did. Her application was carefully considered along with many others by the nominating committee appointed by the President of the Board of Aldermen.

"I thought that a written acknowledgment was not required in view of our earlier conversation to which her application was a response. If I had known that she expected a written reply, I certainly would have sent it, as I have a firm policy of answering all letters sent to me as Chairman of the School Committee.

"Mrs. Shaw's complaints concerning the method of filling Newton School Committee vacancies are misplaced. She should seek a revision of the City Charter, which empowers the President of the Board of Aldermen to act as he did, namely, to appoint a committee consisting of the three ward aldermen and the Chairman of the School Committee to submit the name of a candidate (or candidates) to a joint conference of the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee.

"The nominating committee acted in this instance with the greatest deliberation and impartiality in considering every name brought to its attention and in seeking out the most qualified persons.

"We all agreed that Vincent P. Stanton was the best possible candidate, and on Thursday, November 2, we so notified all the other members of both the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee. None of the other 21 aldermen or six school committeemen put forward any other names and the following Monday night Mr. Stanton's name was submitted. No one spoke in opposition to him and no one suggested an alternative.

"After Mr. Stanton was appointed, Alderman Shea, who had served on the nominating committee and had enthusiastically supported the candidacy of Mr. Stanton, spoke in opposition to the procedure used to fill such vacancies. Alderman Shea's remarks were not directed to any improprieties in the conduct of the nominating committee on which he had just served.

"In none of the many meetings of that committee had he suggested that we were acting improperly. On the contrary, he was full of praise for the manner in which the committee operated, and was sure (as we all were) that we had found the most highly qualified person for the post.

"The more troublesome question is whether the City Charter should be amended to provide that a vacancy on the School Committee left by a member's resignation in mid-term should be filled by city-wide election. Such an election to fill a vacancy left when a member resigns in the middle of his two-year term poses serious problems.

"It is doubtful whether the most qualified people would be willing to mount a campaign for a one-year term of office, to be followed by another campaign for the next year. Also it is doubtful that sufficient city-wide interest could be generated to justify a special election to choose a member of the School Committee.

"It would, of course, be possible to leave the position vacant until the next general election, but the School Committee is small enough as it is, and we need a representative from each ward, especially in our budget deliberations which take place in November and December.

"On the other hand, it may be that the nominating committee appointed by the President of the Board of Aldermen to submit candidates should be enlarged to include an equal number of representatives of the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen, and conceivably one or two others as well. Also it may be that alternative procedures should be available to meet the situation of a vacancy created near the beginning of a two-year term or near the end.

"It has been suggested that the nominating committee should publicize the names of all the persons it has considered, and not merely the names of the candidate or candidates upon which it finally settled.

"This, it seems to me, would create considerable embarrassment, especially for those persons — the great majority in fact — who did not submit their own names as candidates but were recommended by others or were sought out by the committee, and agreed to allow their names to be considered, but who were not finally selected.

"Mrs. Shaw's letter unfortunately sheds more heat than light on these matters. She has confused the action taken in the present case — which was enthusiastically endorsed by the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee — with the question whether the City Charter should be revised to provide a different procedure in future cases.

"May I add one final word, unrelated to Mrs. Shaw's letter. The Graphic published a short item on Nov. 17 headed "Stanton misses first meeting." It should be said for the record that Mr. Stanton had explained to the School Committee in advance that owing to a commitment undertaken long before his appointment he would not be able to attend the meeting on Nov. 14."

Route 9 Zoning

Editor of The Graphic:

The League of Women Voters of Newton would like to express its concern for another proposed zoning change along Route 9 in the area round Bacon Place and Cragmore Road.

The League is using this particular situation to point up a general problem about which all citizens of Newton should be aware. In order to ensure beneficient growth for the city, we must stop this piecemeal approach to change and look for development in accordance with a comprehensive, detailed master plan which will provide the framework for orderly, planned development and ensure a viable, dynamic community in the future as well as today.

The General Plan for Newton published in 1965 is a major first step in this direction. This plan does not envisage any change along Route 9 (except in the Chestnut Hill area) due to the already heavy traffic congestion on that thoroughfare.

It is apparent to the League that the time has come for each zoning change to be viewed only in relation to a comprehensive land — use plan, which will provide for potential change as well as continue to reflect the quality of Newton as we know it.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Proctor W. Houghton,
President.

Political Highlights

Brooke's top deputy evidently will be Acting Attorney General during the span between the Brooke and the Richardson regimes. But his powers will be limited.

Technically the State Legislature could elect a new Attorney General when Brooke resigns.

But he would serve only until Richardson took the oath of office. It's unlikely that anyone would want the office of Attorney General for an eight-day period and just about as improbable that a majority of the members of the Legislature could agree upon a choice in eight days.

The simple and sensible thing would be for the Democratic-controlled Legislature to elect Republican Richardson the interim Attorney General so he could take over the job eight days ahead of time. But that's so simple and sensible it isn't like to happen on Beacon Hill.

Governor Volpe could appoint Richardson interim Attorney General if Brooke resigned before January 4. Once the Legislature reconvenes, however, it has the power to fill any vacancy in a State Constitutional office.

Brooke, according to his office, will continue to serve as Attorney General until he is ready to leave for Washington.

Richardson, incidentally, will leave the office of Lieutenant Governor on Jan. 5 but is not scheduled to be sworn in as Attorney General until 13 days later.

Under the State Constitution, the Governor and Lieutenant Governor assume office the first Thursday after the first Wednesday in January. The other State Constitutional officers are sworn in on the third Wednesday in January.

We manage to do some things in a rather complicated manner here in Massachusetts.

Democrats Plan Move To Scrap Convention

Democratic leaders, groping for explanations for the political disaster which befell their party's top candidates in the recent election, probably will join in a move to wipe out the pre-primary state convention.

Present indications are that there is sufficient support for the move in both the State Senate and the House of Representatives to assure the passage of a bill for the abolition of the conclave which from a Democratic standpoint has become a waste of time, energy and money.

However, such a measure would not get by Governor Volpe's desk, and its backers would be unable to muster sufficient strength in either the House or the Senate to enact it over Volpe's veto.

But in one way or another the pre-primary convention system of endorsing candidates for state-wide offices may be scrapped before 1970 when the next conclave would be held if the existing law remains unchanged.

Opponents and critics of the convention declare that if their bill is killed by either the Governor or the Legislature, they will secure sufficient signatures to place the question of abolishing the convention on the ballot for a vote by the people in 1968.

The general opinion is that the voters, if given the opportunity, would knock out the convention so that candidates for party nominations would carry their campaigns directly into the primaries.

An ironic aspect to all this is that the late President John F. Kennedy at the height of his political power tried to kill off the convention system of endorsing candidates — and failed.

JFK had seen what happened at the Democratic State Conventions in 1954, 1956, 1958 and 1960, and he decided that enough was enough.

On instruction from John F. Kennedy, when the latter was President, John M. Lynch, then chairman of the Democratic State Committee, filed a bill calling for the abolition of the pre-primary convention.

Lynch's bill went down the drain in the House of Representatives, largely because of the opposition of the late John F. Thompson, the then House Speaker who was running the lower legislative branch with an iron hand.

The convention method of endorsing candidates for the top state offices, which was officially revived in 1954, has lasted longer than most political observers believed it would.

The convention system was adopted in the early 1930's but was abandoned after scandalous conventions in 1934 and 1936 at which delegate votes were bought and sold.

Seven successive conventions have been held by each political party since the system was formally revived during Christian A. Herter's first term as Governor.

It has taken a long time for most Democratic politicos to see the light, and some of them haven't seen it yet.

The drive to bring back the State Conventions was started by the Republicans in 1951 after the 1950 election had left the GOP in a shambles.

So the Republicans decided to try to avoid future costly fights among themselves.

A bill providing for the restoration of the convention system was adopted in the Legislature as a result of the backing of a coalition of Republicans and Democrats.

Those Democrats who voted for the proposal did so because they believed they would have a better chance of winning at a convention than in a primary, not because of any desire to help bail out the Republicans.

The late Governor Paul A. Dever, who had been an on-the-spot observer of the scandalous happenings at the 1934 and 1936 conventions, vetoed the measure as soon as it reached his desk.

Despite this, the Republicans held an unofficial State Convention at Worcester in 1952, endorsed a slate of state-wide candidates and invoked party discipline to keep potential challengers out of the primary.

In the subsequent election the GOP won the Governorship, the Lieutenant Governorship, the Attorney Generalship and captured control of both branches of the State Legislature.

The only top Massachusetts Democrat to survive that election was the late John F. Kennedy who won a place in the U.S. Senate, unseating Henry Cabot Lodge.

With Christian A. Herter in the Governor's chair the next year and in firm control of the Legislature, a bill officially reviving the convention system of endorsing state-wide candidates was pushed through the legislative mills, signed into law by Herter and placed on the statute books.

It has remained there because Democratic Governors such as Foster Furcolo and Endicott Peabody, who had opposed the convention when they were running, decided they could utilize the convention to their own advantage when they had the power and patronage of the Governor's office at their disposal.

Furcolo tried unsuccessfully to persuade the Democratic State Committee not to hold any convention in 1956. But he did nothing to abolish the convention after assuming the Governorship.

Peabody bypassed the convention and went directly into the primary when he sought the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1960. Like Furcolo, he made no move to disturb the convention setup when he was sitting in the Governor's chair.

It took a Democratic disaster in the first election of State Constitutional officers to four-year terms to awaken many Democratic politicos to the fact that the convention system should have been junked long ago.

With a very few notable exceptions, the Republican State Conventions have been cut-and-dried affairs in which the decisions as to who would be nominated for what office had been made even before the delegates assembled.

The story of the Democratic State Conventions back through the years has been one of unruly brawls, of wheeling and dealing and vote-trading which did the Democratic party no good.

Needless to say, the Republican strategists would like to see the Democrats continue to harm their own cause by holding more conventions.

Strangely, this year marked the first time that the voters in the Democratic primary have nominated all the candidates endorsed by the Democratic State Convention.

At least one candidate who got the nod in each of the Democratic conclaves from 1954 through 1964 went down to defeat in the subsequent primary.

The tact that the Democratic voters this year accepted all the choices of the convention delegates may have been an ill omen for the Democratic party. It certainly wasn't a good one as things turned out.

Lee Says: Loumos

The more I get tossed around by people from whom I get service, the more I realize that the most important thing I have to offer my customers is the prompt and courteous attention we give to their service needs. We strive to provide the good old fashioned kind of service that was normal 30 years ago when people went out of their way to please and you were not kept dangling on a telephone or ignored for half an hour in the shop before you could even talk to someone.

Time is worth money and jangled nerves have no price tag. I guess it's human nature not to appreciate the value of good service, until you have experienced the other kind. In the final analysis, the only way for you to insure yourself of good service is to withhold your patronage from those who do not supply it.

"Three Philbricks" Show Opens At Needham Sunday

Sunday, December 4, marks the opening of a very special show at the Charles River Art Center, 1361 South street, Needham. Otis and Margaret Philbrick have exhibited at the Center before, but this is the first time Anne Philbrick Hall joins them to make it a family show, featuring the three Philbricks.

All three Philbricks are well known, having exhibited across the country and in traveling shows in Israel, France, Italy, England, and the Far East.

Otis and Margaret Philbrick's works are in the permanent collections of many museums and galleries, including the Library of Congress and the Fogg Museum. Anne Philbrick Hall's bronze sculpture of a King Husky stands in the lobby of the Student Center at Northeastern University.

Otis, who is Professor Emeritus of Massachusetts College of Art, and Margaret, are listed in Who's Who of American Art and they have both exhibited at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. They are active in the Boston Watercolor Society and the Boston Printmakers, of which Otis is currently the president.

Anne, who studied with two famous Boston sculptors, Cyrus Dallin and Raymond Porter at the Massachusetts College of Art, is best known for drawings, prints, and sculpture of animals, both wild and domestic.

Their show at the Center in Needham will include drawings, paintings, and prints, and will have it's opening on Sunday, December 4 from 3 to 6 p.m. It will continue Tuesday through Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. through December 17. The public is cordially invited at no charge.

Help For Upper Falls Has Been Applied For

Application has been made to the federal government for two-thirds of the cost of applying the Concentrated Code Enforcement Program in Newton Upper Falls.

The application was mailed to Washington following the Nov. 21 meeting of the Board of Aldermen, when it was voted unanimously to put the program into effect.

Under the program, home owners can get federal loans for home improvement, and families with a total income less than $3000 can get outright grants of $1500 for repairs.

Also, the program provides funds for repairing old streets and building new ones, and to install sidewalks with no betterment assessments charged to abutters.

It is estimated that approximately $618,000 will be needed for the program's completion. Street construction will use about two-thirds of that figure, or $420,000. Newton's share of the entire program will be $206,000.

Reception For Young Editors

Several Newton high school newspaper editors were among those who attended a reception sponsored by the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra and the Junior Youth Symphony. Editor Marvin Olasky and advisor Jacqueline Wollan attended the reception from Newton High and Editor Mimi Cooper represented Newton South High.

Also present from Day Junior High were Stephen Paul and Robert Greene and advisor Brooke Smith.

The morning session was held in the School of Fine and Applied Arts at Boston University, where the students were invited to hear the two orchestras rehearse. The young men and women then met with Dr. Artin Arslanian, associate professor of music at Boston University and conductor of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra, who discussed the orchestras and the various concerts they give.

Hospital Auxiliary Drive To Honor Founding Member

The annual membership drive conducted by the auxiliaries of Jewish Memorial Hospital will honor Mrs. Samuel Lipsitz of Brookline, one of the founding members of the 256-bed hospital.

The drive for new members is dedicated to Mrs. Lipsitz in recognition of her services to the hospital, according to Frank Altman of West Roxbury, hospital life membership chairman.

Mrs. Lipsitz and her late husband have been active in communal affairs for the past fifty years. In addition to being one of the founding members of the Jewish Memorial Hospital, she is a life member of the board of directors. She is the mother of four children, all of whom have carried on in their own lives the family tradition of active, meaningful participation in behalf of worthwhile social and civic causes. She has been blessed with ten grandchildren who have been inspired to follow in the footsteps of their parents and grandparents. Her late husband was for many years an active and prominent member of the board of Temple Kehillath Israel and was also president of Temple Israel in Hull.

"Our 'Woman of the Year' has given a lifetime of service and devotion to her fellow men by practicing the three basic tenet of our faith; Gemileth Chesed, an act of lovingkindness; Mosim Tovim, the doing of good deeds; and Tzidokoh, the giving to charity," Joseph M. Linsey, hospital president, said in making the announcement.

The membership drive is being conducted by more than 10,000 members of Hospital Group, Brookline Auxiliary, Chelsea Auxiliary, Young Women's Auxiliary, Evening Auxiliary, Malden Auxiliary, West End Auxiliary, North Shore Auxiliary, and Men's Associates of Jewish Memorial Hospital. The hospital, located at 59 Townsend st. in Roxbury, is a teaching affiliate of Tufts University School of Medicine.

Mt. Ida Girls Working On Bazaar For Scholarships

Three local girls, students at Mount Ida Junior College, are involved in preparations for the Mount Ida Holiday Bazaar, which will be held Saturday, Dec. 3, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in Shaw Hall, 777 Dedham street, Newton Centre.

Janice Bennett, a freshman Retailing student, is gaining some practical experience by working on the pricing committee. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Bennett, 17 Copley street, Newton. Harriet Freddin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Freddin, 12 Raymond place, West Newton, and Judy Carmichael, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey T. Carmichael, 43 Central street, Auburndale, are both working on the committee which is selling chances on the larger gifts donated to the Bazaar. Miss Freddin is a freshman in the Executive Secretarial Program and Miss Carmichael in the Liberal Arts Terminal Program.

Residents of Newton Centre and nearby towns are invited to attend the Holiday Bazaar, which will feature a wide variety of merchandise suitable for holiday gifts donated by students, alumnae, parents, and merchants. There will also be a food table with baked goods donated by the Mount Ida faculty and coffee and doughnuts for on-the-spot consumption.

Formerly a project of and for the Retailing Department, the Holiday Bazaar is now an all-college effort held each year to raise money for scholarships. Five students in different divisions of the college were awarded scholarships this year from the proceeds of the 1965 Bazaar, and the committee hopes to be able to increase the size and number of the scholarships next year.

Newton Folk Prominent In Holiday Musicale Dec. 7

Several Newton residents are among those prominent in making plans for the Holiday Musicale to be held at International Institute of Boston's headquarters, 287 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Wednesday evening, Dec. 7, at 8 o'clock.

They are Mrs. Max Rinkel, 33 Sun Hill Lane, Newton Centre, chairman of the institute's Advisory Council; Mrs. Hans Plandl, 170 Chestnut St., West Newton, vice chairman; Mrs. Adolph J. Namaksky, 321 Country Club Rd., Newton Centre, and Mrs. Vangel Naum, 66 Morse St., Newton, all of whom will serve as hostesses.

As always at the institute it will be a gay and warm affair, ushering in the most festive month of the year, with opportunity to hear young singers and watch a young dancer.

Frank Adams, baritone, and Janina Mukerji, soprano, will sing duet and solo, with Greta (Mrs. Leonid) Milius accompanying. Both the vocalists are students of hers.

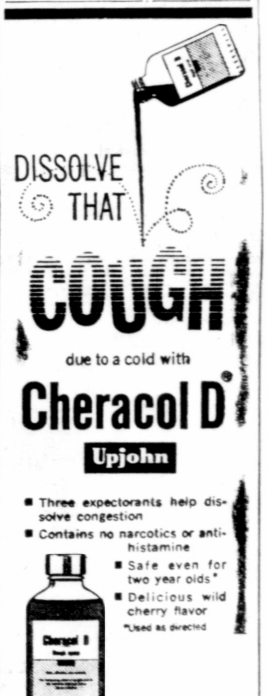

Mr. Adams has entertained in concerts, at clubs, and has been a church soloist. Everywhere he sings "people go wild over his voice." But since he holds a full time job as manager in a harpsichord factory, he cannot accede to too many requests to give concerts.

Miss Mukerji is a junior at Radcliffe. This young girl has already apepared in Harvard plays and has sung at the Crescendo Club of Boston.

Then, as counterpoint to the voices, Jacquelynne Curry will dance. Miss Curry is a student at the Elma Lewis School of Fine Arts, and a romantic story attaches to her name.

This past fall when Talley Beatty, professional dancer and choreographer left his teaching in Sweden to come and dance with Miss Lewis' child students, he noticed Miss Curry. As a result Jacwhole program. This time the Foundation grant to study dancing in New York.

At the institute, however, entertainment is never the quelynne now has a Ford 35 members of the Senior Advisory Council of the institute, in addition to arranging the evening, are busily preparing their national patisseries for refreshment time. Since the Council constitutes a cross-section of the countries of the world, there will be exotic confections to be sampled. They come from cultures as varied as Danish and Armenian, Italian and Chinese, Mexican and German, and a good many others in between.

Jul Bal-Luciafest A Benefit For Newton Swedish Home

Robert P. Fischer of 41 Charlesbank Rd., Newton, is program book chairman of the 18th anniversary New England Jul Bal-Luciafest, to be held Friday, Dec. 9, in the Grand Ballroom of Boston's Sheraton-Plaza Hotel.

This Christmas Nail, Bride of Light ceremony, an old Swedish custom, is presented each year by The Aquilo Club, Junior League of the Swedish Charitable Society of Greater Boston, to raise $1,000 to present to the Swedish Charitable Society for the benefit of the Swedish Home for the Aged, 206 Waltham St., West Newton.

Mr. Fischer, who is also second vice president of The Aquilo Club, is in charge of laying out and obtaining ads for the program book, which makes up a major portion of the club's profits on the Bal for the Swedish Home.

Guest of Honor for the evening will be Arthur E. Engdahl of Needham, Consul of Sweden in Boston.

All single girls of Swedish descent between the ages of 17 and 21 are invited to register for the Lucia Bride Contest between 7:30 and 8 p.m. at the registration table in the ballroom. A panel of three judges will select the seven finalists who, in their opinion, best exemplify Lucia, a medieval Swedish saint.

At the conclusion of the program, Consul Engdahl will present the Lucia procession. With the ballroom in hushed darkness, the six finalists, carrying candles, will proceed to the stage, followed by the 1966 Lucia Bride, wearing the traditional crown of ivy with lighted candles and carrying a beautiful silver tea service symbolizing her service to the needy. She will receive a dazzling array of gifts, among which will be a silver replica of her crown.

Scandinavian and American dancing will follow, with music provided by Lundin Brothers' Orchestra.

The tradition of the Luciafest, highlight of the year for New England's many Swedes and those interested in Swedish customs, goes back into Swedish legendary history. Lucia was a medieval Swedish saint who carried food and drink to hungry folk in the province of Varmland during a period of famine. Because she was seen crossing a lake clothed in white with a crown of light encircling her head, the modern Lucias also dress in white and wear a crown with lighted candles.

The program, beginning at 8 p.m., will highlight a dance exhibition by the Swedish Folk Dance Club of Boston and a performance of the acclaimed Boston Male Quartet. Midway through the program, the seven finalists will be escorted to the stage, identically robed in white, and the audience will decide by popular vote who will represent Lucia throughout the Yuletide season.

The public is cordially invited to attend this unique evening of festivities. Dress is optional, and tickets may be purchased at the door.

As part of the holiday motif, Mrs. Abraham Koolyk, wife of the Rabbi, will present an unusual program on "Highlights of Chanukah." Mrs. Irving Goldberg will preside and the invocation will be given by Mrs. Jacob Oven.

Hospitality chairmen are Mesdames Sidney Jochnowitz, Jacob Alpert, Hyman Kamin, Marvin Shribman and Lester Wilker.

Refreshments will be served.

Veterans Urged To File School Report Promptly

Newton veterans going to college under the new GI Bill who did not get their educational payments last week may have failed in their V.A. home work, the Veterans Administration at Boston said today. The VA urged those students who failed to receive checks due last week to: (1) Make sure that the notice of enrollment, which must be filled out and mailed by the school, has been sent to the VA by the school and (2) to make sure the Certificate of Attendance, which the veteran must fill out and send to the VA, has been mailed.

The V.A. geared its processing so that checks for October training would be mailed on Nov. 20 to all who filed their attendance cards no later the first week in November. V.A. will continue to follow this procedure and pay on the 20th of each month those who send back their attendance cards by the first week of that month.

Veterans who neglected to send in their attendance cards for the month of October should do so immediately and VA will try to pay them in about 15 days.

Those veterans who did not receive their attendance certification in time to return them to VA before the end of the first week in November, but who have since done so, may expect their educational payments in about 15 days from the date they filed the attendance form.

SCHEDULE MEMBERSHIP TELETHON—Officials of the Women's Committee, Massachusetts Kidney Foundation, set plans for Sunday, December 4. Newton members left to right are: Mrs. Robert Hurwitz, Mrs. Leonard Bates, Mrs. Jules Seletz and Mrs. Edward Ellis. Standing are co-chairman Mrs. David Landay and Mrs. Louis Convisor. New members will be feted at festive Open Meeting, Wednesday evening, December 7, at Chestnut Hill Country Club, with Sherry Hour and entertainment program by Jess Cain, radio-TV star.

Eligible For Position In Health Department

A Newton resident has been declared eligible for appointment to the position of Sanitary Inspector in the City Health Department. The State Civil Service Commission announced this week that Joseph W. Walsh, Jr., of 276 Church street, has passed the civil service examination qualifying for appointment to the post.

School Board Seeks Waivers To Fill Posts

Fifty-seven requests for emergency waivers of certification were approved for submission to the State Board of Education at Monday night's School Committee meeting. The State Board passes upon requests to allow Massachusetts schools to fill vacancies with teachers who do not fulfill all the requirements for certification as a teacher.

Eleven of the 57 requests are for part-time teaching at the Junior College. The emergency waivers would affect about five per cent of Newton's teachers.

The most common reason for not being certified is insufficient courses in education. Thus, 19 of the teachers in question have completed all work in their own fields but lack one or more requisite courses in education.

Five of the teachers involved have all course requirements but simply have not done their student teaching. Five need waivers to act as psychologists. School Committeewoman Norma W. Mintz protested against the Massachusetts policy that psychologists need to fulfill teacher certification requirements to work in the public schools.

Four requests were made on behalf of persons who are exchange teachers or simply not American citizens.

The remaining requests concerned teachers who must complete one or two courses to achieve their degrees.

In reply to a query made by Committeeman Paul V. Stanton, assistant superintendent for personnel, Dr. James P. Laurits explained that the emergency waivers may be granted three times.

There must, however, be evidence in the first place that the candidate is close to fulfilling requirements for his degree and for subsequent waivers that he is actually working toward the degree.

No more than three waivers may be granted, because an additional year's work would give the teacher the right to tenure, Laurits commented.

Recreation Dept. Plans Basketball Program for 1967

The Newton Recreation Department announced this week that teams interested in its basketball program for the 1967 season must register and submit team rosters not later than Friday, Dec. 16. Roster forms may be obtained at the Recreation Office, City Hall, Newton Centre, Mondays through Fridays, from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The Recreation Department league will have three divisions: the pony division for boys under 15 years of age, the National division for boys under 18 years of age, and the American division in which there are no age restrictions.

A registration fee of $10 must accompany the team roster sheet when submitted. Each team may have 12 players on its squad, who must all be legal residents of Newton. Each item in the National Division must have an adult manager who has reached his 25th birthday.

League play will start the week of Jan. 9 and will continue through March. It is planned that all games will be played at the Warren Junior High School on Washington street, West Newton.

Teams will not be allowed to include on their roster sheets the names of youths who are members of any high school, junior college, or college squads.

Judge Addresses Congregational Central Club

Judge Julian L. Yesley of the Newton District Court will be the featured speaker at the meeting of the Central Club of the Newtonville Central Congregational Church next Monday (Dec. 5). Judge Yesley will speak at 7:45 p.m. in the Merrill Room at the church on "The Nature and Function of the District Court of Newton and its Relation to the Community."

Secretaries Of Public Schools Seek Wage Hike

A wage increase averaging about 10 cents an hour was sought for the secretaries employed in the Newton public school system at the School Committee meeting last Monday night. Wage increases vary considerably according to ratings.

The secretaries' Salary Committee has also requested an additional weeks' paid vacation for the 10-month secretaries, who at present have two weeks' paid vacation. The 10-month secretaries are not paid for the Christmas, February and April vacations.

The total cost of estimated wage increase would be under $28,000 a year. Most full-time secretaries would get a raise of about $175 a year.

The report by the Salary Committee points out that at present "It is more difficult than ever to obtain qualified personnel; and competition from industry is most severe."

The proposed 1967-68 salary schedule for secretaries is part of a series of studies being undertaken by the School Board to prepare for the 1967 school budget. Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman has tentatively scheduled final action on the budget for Jan. 3.

The report was delivered by Eva F. Freedman, chairman of the salary committee. Signing the report were Mabel E. Goldrick, Elsie M. Gilroy, Diane M. DeSimone, Kathryn H. Shea, Helen J. Lord, Jane S. Segal and Rose F. Silverman, who is president of the Newton Educational Secretaries Association.

Newton Youth Appeals Court Finding, Term

William J. Keville, III, of 72 Washington st., Newton, Friday appealed a month's sentence to the House of Correction after Judge Julian Yesley found him guilty of charges of assault and battery on a police officer, in Newton district court.

The youth was also found guilty of speeding, failing to show his registration to a police officer, and failing to halt for an officer. He was fined $25 on each count.

The charges stemmed from an incident Oct. 15 when officers G. A. Lawrence, Jr., and Robert E. Fitzpatrick gave chase to Keville along Washington st. near the Brighton line. The assault took place while Lawrence was checking Keville's papers.

During the assault Lawrence said he was not injured but his uniform had been torn. The defendant earlier paid $25 to the Police Dept. for damages.

His case was appealed to Middlesex Superior Court.

Booming City

Sao Paulo — This booming city in Brazil is challenging Rio de Janeiro for the first place as South America's metropolis.

PLAYMATE OF THE MONTH — Lisa Baker, Miss November of Playboy magazine, dropped in recently to visit Mr. Rocco and Mr. John at their Penthouse Salon on Centre st., Newton Centre, where the beautiful girl discussed the latest mode in hair styling.

Penthouse Salon Hosts Fabulous, Lithesome Lisa

Expert hair stylists, Mr. Rocco and Mr. John of the Penthouse Salon at 1485 Centre st., Newton Centre, had a visitor at their refurbished shoppe recently.

She was Lisa Baker, Miss November of Playboy magazine, who looks just as good with her clothes on as with them off. Of course, that issue is moot, depending on the point of view and whether the debaters are male or female.

Lisa is one of the many patrons of the Penthouse Salon who most recently took advantage of the salon's luxurious background for her brand new hair-do.

She discussed the numerous services offered at Penthouse, including the very latest hair styling, fabulous permanent waving, as well as the ultra smart hair coloring by the salon's own Mr. Bob.

But enough of that! Lisa, as every red-blooded American male (who reads Playboy) must know, is some gal.

It would be safe to say that the majority of viewers paid scant heed to Lisa's coiffure. However, when she visited Mr. Rocco and Mr. John, that was their main interest. (Honest, it was!)

Their devotion to duty is remarkable, almost incredible. But that's the way they are with all their patrons.

"God The Cause And Creator" Is Sermon Title

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the title of this week's Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

Scriptural readings include Matthew's account of Jesus' healing of the insane boy who fell "ofttimes . . . into the fire, and oft into the water," and Jesus' admonition to his disciples, "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

A correlative passage from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is this: "Our Master cast out devils (evils) and healed the sick. It should be said of his followers also, that they cast fear and all evil out of themselves and others and heal the sick. God will heal the sick through man, whenever man is governed by God. Truth casts out error now as surely as it did nineteen centuries ago."

Old fashioned picture books, copy books, pens, paper dolls, and advertising cards, some going back to 1885, are among the unusual items included in this exhibit, which has been loaned to the library by a resident of Newton.

This display may be seen from now until Dec. 17. The Boys' and Girls' Library is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Newton Man Awarded CLU

Warren C. Sylvester, 19 Mountford rd., Newton Highlands, was recently awarded the coveted Chartered Life Underwriter designation at national conferment exercises of the American College of Life Underwriters in Boston.

Mr. Sylvester has served his community in recent years in many ways, most notably as president of the Newton Junior Chamber of Commerce, vice president of Newton Highlands Improvement Association, Little League coach, church school teacher and deacon of the Newton Highlands Congregational Church.

Martha Morrison, 1801 Beacon street, Waban, a student at Beaver Country Day School, Chestnut Hill, was named as a superior student by the school's Science Department, and as a result will attend the second Science Frontiers lecture in the series at Boston's Museum of Science.

over the propect of a big boost in Newton's tax rate next year.

School Committeewoman Grace C. Whitmore said she has had many calls from people who are alarmed at the possibility of a sharp jump in the tax rate and are fearful they might not be able to stay in Newton.

She stressed that many people are "very concerned about their ability to pay any more than they are now paying."

Committeeman Francis P. Frazier reported that the Newton Taxpayer Association officials believe estimates on the amount the city's tax rate may rise next year are too low.

"The increase in the tax rate may be even more vigorous, and some would even say more vicious," Frazier remarked.

"If the tax rate goes too high, many worthy citizens will be driven from the City of Newton," he added.

School Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman, apparently alluding to the request by Mayor Basbas that the increase in the school budget next year be held to $1 million, said it was impossible at that stage of the School Board's deliberations to state whether the school budget would go up $500,000, $1 million or $1.5 million.

"We have to begin — as the Committee has always done in the past — by carefully considering each request that has been made to us and each educational need that has been urged on us. Only after we have studied and discussed, open mindedly and impartially, the actual concrete needs of the schools, and the cost of meeting them, can we approach the question of what the overall budget should be in the light of the tax burden on the citizens," Berman declared.

"Indeed," Berman concluded, "to settle on an overall figure in advance would conflict with the legal requirements of collective bargaining with the custodians, and also it would conflict with our moral obligations to the teachers, the School Administration, and, above all, the children in our schools," Chairman Berman said.

The Monday night report on requests to create new positions came at one of a series of meetings held to study the needs for next year's school budget. The recommendations must be acted upon by the School Committee when it makes its overall decision on Newton's educational needs.

Superintendent Brown stated that school officials estimate that 75.8 new professional positions and 33.5 non-professional posts should be created. The largest number of requests came from the elementary schools where 21 more full-time teachers are deemed necessary. In the non-professional category, the biggest request was for 20 new full-time secretaries and clerks.

The senior high schools have asked for 15 more teachers and the junior high schools for 12.8. Newton Junior College, which was originally not included in the report at all has expressed the need for only one additional half-time professor. Enrollment at the Junior College is fixed so that needs remain relatively stable.

Other sizeable requests came from the Division of Instruction and the technical-vocational program where 12 and 8.3 new jobs respectively were suggested. Teachers aides, who are not considered professional personnel, would be increased by 9.5. Jobs on a part-time basis are counted as fractions of teachers for purposes of jobs and salaries.)

The division of instruction would use its new employees largely as specialists for elementary schools in art, music and reading. The technical-vocational program needs to expand its activity in electronics, landscaping, business education and work-study.

The technical-vocational programs in electronics, landscaping and business are carried on in cooperation with similar vocational departments at Newton Junior College.

Four new custodians have been requested and 3.2 new positions were recommended for the division of pupil personnel services, mainly to further the programs for emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded children.

According to Dr. Brown the ideal goal for Newton elementary schools would be 21 or 22 pupils per teacher. To give adequate attention to pupils, classes should not exceed 25. A similar limit ought to be placed in high school and junior high school English classes, where individual attention is vital in composition, he stated.

Dr. Brown also explained that teachers must gradually devote more of their time to curriculum development and coordination.

"We have never had curriculum directors in mathematics and science," Brown said.

"We have had strong departmental organization in the high schools, but a counterpart has not existed in the junior high schools and elementary schools until very recently. The need to provide a sense of unity among the various schools in our system is accentuated by the rapid rate of change in Newton and elsewhere," the superintendent affirmed.

School Committeeman Manuel Beckwith argued that the impact of the recommendations should not be blown out of proportion.

"The superintendent must present the needs of the ideal situation," Beckwith maintained. "If he does not, he is delinquent. Unless we pass judgment on these proposals we will never know what we should do."

Kiddies' Movie Festival Set By Ward School PTA

The movies, "White Mane" and "Hunted in Holland," to be shown on December 10, at 12:45 p.m. and again at 3:00 p.m., is the first of three childrens' movie festivals planned by the Ward School P.T.A. for the Saturday afternoons of December 10, January 21, and March 4 in the Ward School auditorium. Scheduled for January 21 are three films: "The General," "Madeline's Rescue," and "Bush Country Adventure." On March 4, "Jungle Book" will be shown.

All are invited to attend. Individual tickets are available. Series tickets for the three Saturdays may be obtained from Mrs. Jerome Bertolino, 4 Quincy road, Chestnut Hill, Mass. 02167. Refreshments will be on sale after each performance.

Co-chairmen for the events are Mr. and Mrs. Al Mezoff; tickets co-chairmen are Mrs. John Reichard and Mrs. Jerome Bertolino.

"White Mane," a film of beauty, tenderness and rare photographic mastery, is the story of a young boy's friendship with a proud, wild white stallion and how together they resist the efforts of men who want to capture the horse and break its spirit.

"Hunted in Holland" is the story of Tim, who goes to stay with a Dutch pen friend and accidentally fails afoul of a tourist guide on the way across. The guide is one of a gang smuggling stolen diamonds into Holland, and when Tim and his friend find a bracelet hidden in the guide's walking stick, they decide to take it to the police. With the smuggling gang after them, there ensues an exciting chase.

Newton Soccer Club In Cup Play 3d Round

The Newton Soccer Club advanced into the third round of the U.S. Amateur Cup last Sunday with a 3 to 1 victory over Peabody C.L.C., in a game played in Peabody.

Tight defensive work by Joe McIntosh and Tim O'Neil drew high praise from player-manager Ed Fasani.

Also figuring in the win was the good work of Frank Kodas in the net, who made a number of saves.

Newton returns to National Open Cup play next Sunday, when it meets Sacred Heart Azzuri of Waltham in a replay of their draw last week.

Newton Student Plays Part In MIT Discovery

Robert A. Gladstone, 9 Glen Rd., Newton, has participated in an engineering discovery that may revolutionize excavation techniques. Gladstone and another M.I.T. sophomore, Anthony Kettaneh of Brookline, both students of civil engineering, found that a laser beam is capable of disintegrating hard rock.

Gladstone and Kettaneh, who is from Lebanon, made their discovery after their professors, who had been doing research under a Commerce Department contract to study ways of fracturing rock, discarded experiments with laser.

The M.I.T. students obtained the laser from the Raytheon Research Laboratory in Waltham. The device is 60 feet long and employs carbon dioxide gas to produce a continuous beam, 1.5 inches in diameter. The beam has one kilowatt of power, and after a few seconds of application crumbles hard rock such as granite or marble so that it can be broken easily by hand pressure.

Previously, laser beams were not powerful enough to be applied over a large area. M.I.T. engineers are now examining the possibility that the beams could be employed in highway or railroad tunneling.

Bruce E. Cain '70, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Cain, 106 Sumner St., Newton Centre, is one of eight Bowdoin College finalists who will participate in the college's annual Alexander Prize Speaking Contest.

LECHMERE SALES
"where you pocket the difference"

we probably know why!

REASON ONE:
You may have walked through the TV departments of many stores and watched the Patriots in brilliant orange. Or the face of your favorite announcer in a ghastly pale green. Or "Combat" in inspiring purple and pink. Enough to make you say, "Color TV! I'll wait until they've perfected it!"

Well, "they" have perfected it! Unfortunately the colors you see in stores are not as true as we all would like them to be. Two main reasons being customers who like to "tune" their own colors (everybody's color preferences are different even to slightly green faces!). And sales people who don't always have a chance to "re-tune" the right colors.

The "they" companies like RCA Victor, Zenith, Philco and Admiral take great pride in the sets they build and employ thousands of scientists, engineers and technicians to make sure every set will bring you the kind of performance only the best in brand names can offer.

The result: In your home the Patriots won't look brilliant orange. Your favorite announcer won't look ghastly green. "Combat" won't be purple and pink!

REASON TWO:
You think prices are too high. Not at Lechmere. Not only do you buy at low prices, but credit plans can be arranged that are most convenient to your budget needs allowing you up to 36 months to pay. And you are always assured free delivery anywhere in New England with proper installation by factory-trained color TV technicians.

REASON THREE:
You haven't seen enough variety. In our special color TV studio you'll see one of New England's largest selections of color sets lighted, displayed and in operation with your home viewing in mind.

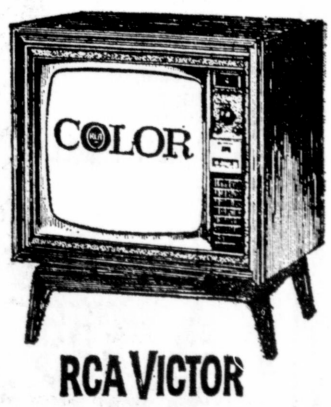

Spend some time in our television departments. One of our no-commission sales persons will show you how color TV should look. When you consider all the beautiful styles. Compare them. Learn how low our prices are, you'll know why we can say Lechmere sells more color TV than any other store in New England.

Shop soon and you will be able to enjoy color TV in your home before Christmas.

Report -

The Commissioner told the Mayor that a request for the total money involved to complete the project will be made in the early part of January, 1967.

After the money has been appropriated, the Purchasing Department will go out for bids and it is possible an award can be made sometime in March, which would mean that construction could be started in the spring of 1967, he said.

"This should allow Phase 1 of the Bigelow construction to be completed for student occupancy by September of 1968," Burns pointed out.

He said "in the meantime, during the summer vacation period, demolition of the existing school could be accomplished so that Phase II (final stage) of the new construction might well be ready by September 1969."

Burns told the Mayor that construction of the new Burr elementary school "at the present time is ahead of schedule, and if deliveries of hard-to-get items are made on time, it is hoped that student occupancy can be realized by next September."

As far as the new addition to the Carr elementary school is concerned, Burns reported to the Mayor that the project is well underway. "If all goes well," Burns qualified, "it should be ready for occupancy sometime next Spring."

The new addition to the Hyde elementary school is also "moving right along" and is expected to be completed in the Spring.

Burns said that the preliminary survey and report for the new F. A. Day School has been completed for sometime and the F. A. Day Site Committee "appointed by Your Honor" has been considering alternate site properties on which to build the school.

"We are awaiting a decision on an adequate site and selection of an architect for the final plans and specifications," the Commissioner told Mayor Basbas.

The new municipal incinerator project is expected to be substantially completed in two weeks with final completion next January.

Three Chosen To Attend A Science Lecture

Ernest Siciliano, 61 Pelham street, Newton Centre, a Sacred Heart High School student; John Friedman, 29 Greenwood street, Newton Centre, a student at Rivers Country Day School, and Gerald Gladstone, 9 Glen road, Newton Centre, a Newton South High student, are among nearly 400 superior high school students selected by their science departments to attend the second Science Frontiers lecture in the series at Boston's Museum of Science on Dec. 16.

Science Frontiers was initiated by the museum a year ago to give outstanding high school students the opportunity to hear world-renowned scientist speak on their chosen field.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, internationally known heart specialist, will repeat the highly popular lecture he delivered for Science Frontiers in April. A life-long resident of the Boston area, Dr. White has been associated with the Museum of Science for many years and has served on its Medical Advisory Committee.

In his lecture, Dr. White will discuss the program of medicine in this century, relating his talk to the problems facing medicine today. A capacity audience is expected to attend.

The third Science Frontiers lecture of the 1966-67 series will take place on Jan. 13.

The idea behind Mercury, the Man's Car, is:

better ideas.

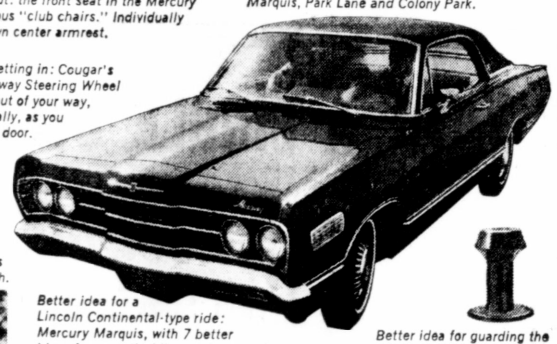

Better idea for stretching out: the front seat in the Mercury Marquis divides into luxurious "club chairs." Individually adjustable, each with its own center armrest.

Better idea for stopping: power front disc brakes, standard on Mercury Brougham, Marquis, Park Lane and Colony Park.

Better idea for getting in: Cougar's optional Tilt-Away Steering Wheel that moves out of your way, automatically, as you open the door.

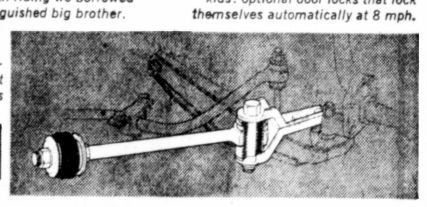

Better idea for breathing: the back window in the Brougham sedan that lowers 2" to let fresh air flow through.

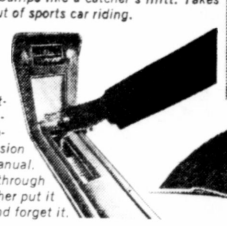

Better idea for a Lincoln Continental-type ride: Mercury Marquis, with 7 better ideas for smooth riding we borrowed from our distinguished big brother.

Better idea for guarding the kids: optional door locks that lock themselves automatically at 8 mph.

Better idea for de-bumping a road: an articulated drag strut on the Mercury Cougar that "catches" bumps like a catcher's mitt. Takes the sting out of sports car riding.

Better idea for shifting: Select-Shift Merc-O-Matic, the automatic transmission that's also a manual. Lets him shift through the gears, lets her put it in automatic and forget it.

Better idea for looking ahead: optional 2-speed Interval Selector Windshield Wipers that speed up when you do.

Library For Schechter Day School

At the last meeting of the PTA of the Solomon Schechter Day School, Newton, Rabbi Joseph Stern announced the establishment of a school reference library in both Hebrew and English for the use of students and faculty.

A Library Committee was set up, headed by Rabbi Paul Katz of Medford, author of The Bible: Myth or Realty, and Rabbi Howard Kummer of Canton. All proceeds from Rabbi Katz's book will go to the establishment of this library. So far, six sets of biblical and historical reference books have been donated.

A special shelf in honor of Rabbi Jacob Hochman of Milton will be set up for Hebrew references, and a foundation for this purpose has been established. Rabbi Joseph Schultz, president of the PTA, announced that books will be accepted from all parents who wish to make a donation in honor of, or memory of, a friend.

The Solomon Schechter Drama Club has produced an original play, "Pandora's Box," written by members of the fifth grade. The club is now working on original plays for the Chanukah season.

Highland Glee Club Sets Concert Date December 13

Henrietta McKee, soprano, will be the guest soloist in the concert to be given by the Highland Glee Club on Tuesday evening, December 13, at 8:15, at the Meadowbrook Junior High School, Newton Center.

Miss McKee's program will include the following: Songs by Richard Strauss, Nacht, Ich Schwebe, Meinem Kinde, Fuer Funsvehn Pfennige, Staendchen.

Songs by Alec Rowley, Three Jolly Shepherds, The Birthday; Aria from Der Freischuetz, Und ob die Wolke, Carl Maria von Weber; Excerpt from The Telephone, Hello! Hello? John Gian-Carlo Menotti.

She received her Master of Music degree in Voice, in 1964, from the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston where she studied principally with Miss Gladys Miller.

She has continued her studies since then with Mrs. Grace Leslie of Boston and Salisbury. Before entering the Conservatory, Miss McKee earned a B.S. as a Biology Major at Northeastern University, and studied Voice at the South End Music Center in Boston, and the All-Newton Music School in Newtonville.

Throughout her years at Northeastern and the Conservatory, she took part in numerous dramatic and musical productions, and won many awards, including Northeastern's "Woman of the Year Award" in 1959 and membership in the Academy and Pi Kappa Lambda Honor Societies of Northeastern and New England Conservatory, respectively.

Newtonites Have Roles In Hovey Players' "Gypsy"

Numerous Newton residents have been assigned roles in the Hovey Players of Waltham production of the musical "Gypsy," which is based on the memoirs of Gypsy Rose Lee. The show is scheduled for Dec. 1, 2 and 3 at the Kennedy Junior High School, 655 Lexington St., Waltham, at 8:30 p.m.

Paul Gillis has been cast by the directors to play the featured role of "Grandpop." A member since 1960, Mr. Gillis has become well known for frequent performances on the Hovey stage. Recent shows include "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Send Me No Flowers," and "The Big Knife." Other Hovey musicals in which he has appeared are "Brigadoon," "Kiss Me Kate," and "Guys and Dolls."

Selected to play the part of "Cigar," a theatre manager, is Dr. Leon Ginsburg. Associated actively with the group since 1955 through 1961, he was seen in such productions as "The Philadelphia Story," "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," and "Born Yesterday," which was also shown at the Deertrees Summer Stock Theatre in Harrison, Me. Appearing with Dr. Ginsburg in the current production are his wife Eve and daughter, Debra.

Thirteen-year-old Brad Learmonth and 12-year-old Brian Sweeney will be seen in singing and dancing routines as "News Boys" in the vaudeville setting.

As the play's producer, Mrs. Edna White has assumed the all-inclusive duties that demand constant attention to behind-the-scenes activity from the first rehearsal through the striking of the set at the conclusion of the final performance. With a wealth of acting experience, Mrs. White launched her career with song and dance as a member of a troupe organized by Billy deWolfe which toured throughout England, Canada, and the United States. In recent years she has been associated with summer stock companies and various community theatre groups. Mrs. White has also gained prominence in the area as a monologuist.

Tickets for "Gypsy" may be obtained from the ticket chairman, Dr. Alden Q. Abbott, at 427 Main St., Waltham, or at the box office the evenings of performance.

Special Wage Incentives For Teachers Aired

A statement of policy regarding special pay incentives for outstanding Newton teachers was discussed at Monday night's School Committee meeting.

Teachers in the first 14 years of their career may be given a double pay raise and after the first 14 years of teaching may get continued pay raises if their performance is extraordinary.

The school administration will review awards every year. As committee members Way Dong Woo and Paul V. Stanton point out, this implies that a teacher who has been placed a step ahead of teachers with the same seniority must maintain the same standard or excellence in order to keep one step ahead of colleagues who have been teaching the same length of time.

Once the maximum normal wage is reached, every step above the maximum requires a separate and distinct vote of the School Committee which must approve the school administration's recommendations, it was pointed out.

Committeeman Francis P. Frazier emphasized that a teacher over the normal maximum does not just get on another schedule but receives separate awards if his or her teaching excellence merits them.

Bordeaux Wines Topic In Waban

The regular meeting of the Waban Woman's Club will be held in the Neighborhood House Monday afternoon, Dec. 5, at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Thomas Derr, president, will preside.

Ruth Ley, well-known lecturer and world traveler will talk on the fabulous estates in the wine regions of Bordeaux, and show a color film of her own making.

Afterwards there will be a "tasting" of two representative Bordeaux wines.

Names

This request will be made to achieve as broad a distribution as possible and to eliminate the possibility that one serviceman might receive two or three packages while another gets none which could happen if their names are taken at random from the news stories.

It is suggested that the numerous organizations in the city make a project of sending a Christmas package to at least one serviceman in Vietnam.

Officers of clubs and other groups who wish to do this are urged to call the news editor of The Graphic and secure the names and addresses of one or more servicemen.

The names of the servicemen will be given to organizations and clubs in the order in which they are received at The Graphic.

So please send in promptly the name and address of a son, a husband, or a brother who will be in Vietnam when the strains of the ancient carols ring out on Christmas Eve.

This is an opportunity for clubs and organizations of all kinds to let the men and women from our city, who will spend a lonely Christmas in a strange, far-away, war-torn land, know that our thoughts are with them on the holiday of holidays.

School teachers in the elementary grades could have their pupils send a joint Yuletide greeting to one serviceman.

Many communities throughout the nation are going all-out to send Christmas gifts and greetings to the men from their areas who have been fighting in the jungles and rice paddies of Vietnam. We certainly should do no less.

There surely isn't a club, an organization, a PTA group in the city which couldn't arrange to send one Christmas package to a Newton serviceman in Vietnam.

It would mean a great deal to a GI in Vietnam to know that he was remembered back home by more than the members of his own family at Christmas time.

We're certain that the clubs and organizations throughout the Newtons will join in this endeavor. But first we must have the names and addresses of the service men and women from their relatives. Please mail them in today. The time is short.

Common Sense Fire Safety Rules Can Avert Tragedy

Newton Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., this week issued five basic recommendations designed to help insure a safe and happy Christmas free from sudden tragedy caused by simple negligence.

1. The making of homemade yule candles is an old New England custom but it can also be very dangerous from a fire standpoint. Wax being melted on the stove has caused several fires. While melting wax keep a low flame and stay in attendance at all times.

2. Make sure the Christmas tree is a fresh one when you purchase it and keep it in water in a cool place until time to bring it into the house.

3. Check all electric light strings to be sure that there are no bare wires or frayed cords.

4. Do not purchase toys of a flammable nature, check with the dealer on this matter. Remember, toys are to bring joy to the children not grief to the family. Also, make sure all electric toys are stamped with an approved label.

5. Use all non-flammable decorations around the home. Christmas is the season to be jolly. Do not invite sadness by neglect or carelessness.

Woman's Club Of Auburndale Meets Dec. 14

The Christmas meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club will be on Dec. 14 at the Club House. The program is arranged by the committee on International Affairs and will feature holidays around the world.

Accompanied by her guitar, Mrs. Shulamit Neiman will sing Christmas songs from eight countries and one in honor of Hanuka.

Alexander Celosse, director of the Indonesian Cultural Group, will speak briefly and present five ladies from Indonesia in costume for an Indonesian fashion show and dance.

Before the meeting there will be an international tea, with Mrs. LeRoy A. Faulkner as hostess, and an exhibit of Christmas managers.

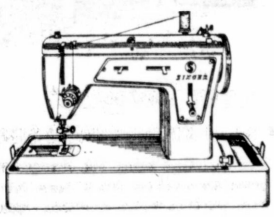

Guests are invited.

Newton Professor Is President Of Mass. Foreign Language Ass'n

BENEDETTO FABRIZI

The Massachusetts Foreign Language Association, the recently created organization of language teachers in Massachusetts, held its fall meeting at Boston University on November 5, in cooperation with the Massachusetts Foreign Language Advisory Committee.

The organization was formed a year ago for Massachusetts teachers of all foreign languages, from elementary to university level, in order to insure for them, among other things, a greater voice in the establishment of policy on the state and local level with regard to such matters as teacher accreditation and the raising of professional teaching standards.

The new officers voted at the meeting are Prof. Benedetto Fabrizi of Northeastern University, president; and George Benedict of Harvard University, vice president; Prof. Elizabeth Mahoney of Stonehill College is secretary-treasurer. The board of directors was enlarged and is now composed of Miss Clara Ashley, Newton South High School; Miss Evelyn Brega, Lexington Public Schools; Mr. Richard A. Clark, Newton High School; The Rev. Alfred Desautels, Holy Cross College; Mrs. Genevieve Donaldson, Milton High School; Prof. Stowell Goding, University of Massachusetts; Prof. Theodore Lowe, Holy Cross College; Prof. Ernest Siciliano, Boston College; Mr. Alonzo Steven, Philips Academy.

Dr. Fabrizi, of 889 Watertown street, West Newton, was a member of a panel at this meeting dealing with the utilization of the language laboratory. He is Associate Professor of Modern Languages at Northeastern University. He has previously taught at Tufts University, Simmons College, Boston College, the University of Massachusetts and Hamilton College.

He received a bachelor's degree from Harvard and a master's degree and doctorate from Middlebury College.

Prof. Fabrizi is a member of the Massachusetts Advisory Committee on Foreign Languages, the American Association of University Professors, the Modern Language Association of America, the Dante Society of America, the American Association of Teachers of French, and the American Association of Teachers of Italian.

Dr. Fabrizi has written several articles and has lectured to various professional groups on the subject of foreign language teaching. Currently he is also president of the Association of Middlebury Italian School Alumni and of the Davis School PTA. He is cited in the "Directory of American Scholars", "Who's Who in American Education" and "Who's Who in the East."

Prof. Fabrizi is married and has three children.

Report On Open Space In City Is Submitted To Mayor Basbas

A comprehensive "Open Space Inventory" of private, semiprivate and public vacant land in Newton has been compiled by the City Planning Dept. and was submitted to Mayor Monte G. Basbas this week.

James A. Miller, planning director, said in a covering letter issued with the report:

"This report is submitted as the first of a two-part series, and is intended only as an inventory, not as a policy statement or series of recommendations."

The Planning Director said "detailed recommendations will follow in the second part of the series and will be based on an analysis of the findings of the inventory and a determination of open space needs and objectives of the City of Newton."

The report pointed out that the "detailed inventory of existing vacant land in the city constitutes the basis upon which a series of recommendations can be made for a comprehensive open space policy."

The report warned, however, "this inventory must be kept current if it is to continue to be functional."

The inventory showed there are some 35 separate parcels of privately-owned land in Newton, which remain essentially undeveloped. The parcels range in size from 1.2 to 183.8 acres. The largest areas are the 183.8 Shaw Estate and the 111.6 acre Webster Estate.

The total open space in the city amounts to 2213 acres, or slightly less than 20 per cent of the Garden City's total acreage.

The "Open Space" inventory included five private golf courses in Newton, with a total area of 640 acres, five private cemeteries encompassing 135 acres, some 537 acres of undeveloped land belonging, in part, to the Park and Playground Departments, or is being developed by the Recreation Dept.

The report said "the Charles River itself is an open space of inestimable value to the city, yet its present development is spotty, inconsistent, and for the most part not a community and/or regional resource."

The inventory showed, too, that Crystal Lake and Newton's two major and seven minor ponds encompass a total area of approximately 67 acres. It pointed out, however, that "only a small percentage of this area is actually used for public recreation."

In addition to Miller, other members of the staff who aided in compiling the in-depth inventory, were James M. Arnold, senior planner, John L. Simmons, junior planner, and Phyllis G. Gans, senior clerk.

Credit was also given to personnel in the "Work-Study Program" (part-time college and high school youths) who conducted a comprehensive land-use inventory for approximately half the city during the past summer.

Noted Artists Featured At 40th Donor Luncheon

The talents of three noted artists, actor and professor Morris Carnovsky, novelist and critic Sylvia Rothchild, and singer and recording star, Eunice Alberts, will be on the program at the Boston Hadassah 40th Donor Luncheon, Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 5 and 6, at the Statler Hilton Hotel.

Mrs. William M. Ginsburg of Chestnut Hill, a daughter-in-law of a First Donor, is chairman of the two-day luncheon "dedicated to the First Donors who launched a tradition in their families and in the community of generous giving."

Morrs Carnovsky will read "Shekehayanu," written by Sylvia Rothchild to honor the 600 First Donors who attended the original luncheon 40 years ago. The daughters, daughters-in-law and granddaughters will be included in the tribute as members of First Families.

Eunice Alberts, contralto, is best known here for her many performances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and at the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood. As the daughter of a First Donor, the late Mrs. Isaac Alberts, she is preparing a special musical program and will wear the decoration designed especially for all members of First Families.

Mr. Carnovsky, professor of Theatre Arts at Brandeis University, is noted for his many starring Broadway and film roles and for his portrayals of Shakesperean characters.

Mrs. Rothchild, author of the novel "Sunshine and Salt," and the prize-winning biography, "Keys to a Magic Door," has written for several publications including Commentary magazine.

MRS. W. M. GINSBURG

Among the 2,000 guests at the 40th luncheon, it is expected that some 160 First Donors will be present. A souvenir gift folder will reproduce the original scroll of guests printed for the first luncheon on Dec. 20, 1927.

According to Mrs. Maxwell A. Cohen of Newton, special gifts chairman, the program book this year will list the names of all guests who contribute $50 or more, and will highlight gifts for inscriptions in Israel on the Wall of Healing, the Research Patrons, the Gateway to Life, the Freedom Bell, and the Godparents Book, as well as endowments for Perpetual Yahrzeit in the Synagogue of the Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center. Proceeds of the luncheon go to the annual maintenance budget for the healing, teaching, and research work of the Medical Center.

The president of the 8,000-member Boston Chapter, Mrs. Arthur Zanditon of Chestnut Hill, is also a member of a First Family. The invocation will be given on Monday by Mrs. Albert Burmon of Newton, daughter-in-law of a First Donor and on Tuesday by Mrs. Lewis Goldberg of Brookline, a First Donor herself.

Newton Pats In 12 to 0 Win

Two touchdowns by halfback Stan MacNeill paced the Newton Patriots B-Squad to a 12 to 0 win over the Back Bay Wings in a post-season game last Sunday on the field of Belmont High School.

His first TD came in the first quarter on an 11-yard cross-buck. In the final period, MacNeill went over from the one-yard line after Pete Percy set the scene for the score with a 40-yard run.

Food Buying Tips That Will Stretch The Budget

By LYNN MARSHALL
(Norfolk County Extension Service)

Food buying is very much in the news today. Saving dollars and cents on food is possible for every family but must be accomplished in different ways. Each family has various needs and resources. The food likes and dislikes of the family should be known. If members of the family won't eat a food, even though it is economically priced, it is not a bargain.

Food Buying Tips

The U. S. Department of Agriculture lists the plentiful foods for each month and alerts the consumer to the fact that "specials" may appear for these food items. This list of "current plentifuls" appear weekly in this column.

Check recipes to help you decide how much and what foods to buy. Check supply of staples on hand in the refrigerator and freezer.

Pay attention to advertisements which may provide a key to successful shopping. Food ads appear in newspapers, store displays, and on radio and television. These ads may include information about brand names, grades, and size of food items that can be purchased at the market.

Clip out coupons offered in the local newspapers if they are products you need and brands and grades you prefer.

Experiment with different brands and grades of foods at various price levels, as price is not the only guide for purchasing foods. The use you intend for the product will influence the quality, size, and grade of the item to be purchased.

Keep the menu flexible so that the use of leftovers may be incorporated in later meals. Leftovers can be used in hash, sandwiches, and stuffed peppers.

If you have a freezer you may wish to purchase economical buys to be frozen.

Count the cost per serving. This means knowing the approximate yield in edible portions of food products. Read the label on packaged goods, check weight of items purchased, and convert the price to rate per ounce, pound, quart, or unit of common measure.

Consider using margarine or Grade B butter for cooking purposes. Both products are less expensive than Grade A and AA butter.

Try Grade B eggs for cooking purposes, such as scrambling when appearance is not important. They are as nutritious as Grade A eggs and less expensive.

Buy plain, dry cereals for economy. These are less expensive than those with added dry fruit. For variety, you may add fresh fruits in season according to your tastes. Uncooked cereals, such as oatmeal and farina are less expensive than ready-to-eat cereals.

Experiment with powdered milk in cooking. It is less expensive than fluid homogenized milk.

Buy the size best suited to family needs and available storage space. Select the largest size package or container that can be used without waste.

Slow-Moving Vehicles To Carry Emblem

United Press International

With about 12 million slow-moving vehicles, which travel at speeds of 25 miles per hour or less, operating regularly on the nation's highways, safety experts are urging wider use of the slow-moving vehicle emblem (SMV).

Two states — Ohio and Nebraska — have a law requiring use of the triangular emblem, which isdesigned to warn drivers of high-speed automobi es of slow-moving vehices ahead on the road.

Legislation to authorize and require use of emblem on tractors and other farm machinery will be intrtoduced this fall in the Iowa legislature, according to Norval Wardle, extension safety specialist at Iowa State University.

Wardle, a leading sponsor of the safety device, said other groups supporting adoption of the SMV emblem include Iowa department of public safety, the state highway patrol and the Iowa Farm Safety Council.

Even without the legislation, Wardle estimates that 50,000 or more SMV emblems are currently being used in Iowa.

The emblem, developed at Ohio State University, is a triangle 16 inches wide and 14 inches high. It combines a yellow-orange fluorescent center with a red reflective border. The fluorescent material gows vividly during the daylight. The reflective material, the same as that used on signs and reflective license plates, shine brightly at night in the headlights of a car.

The emblem is visible for 500 feet, both day and night, and should be mounted at the center rear of slow-moving vehicles, experts say. The National Safety Council, American Society of Agricultural Engineers and other safety groups hav eadopted the SMV emblem as a standard.

Fingersnapper On TV Knuckles Down To Craft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Man has been snapping his fingers through the ages for one reason or another, but would you believe that the shrimp is the only other living creature that can communicate with another shrimp by snapping his claws?

Or that the early Pennsylvania Dutch snapped their fingers to drive away evil spirits and to wish someone good luck?

Andthat in the hills of Kentuk a finger snap is often called "a poorman's firecracker?" Children there, who couldn't afford firecrackers, discovered that by rubbing resin in the snapping part of their fingers and hands, they could make a sharp popping noise — like that of a small firecracker.

These and other portentious facts about finger snapping come from a man who makes a living at it — David Madden, whose fingers are heard snapping daily 'round the clock on television from coast to coast as part of a cigarette commercial.

After a few months at his job, Madden decided to do some research on the art of fingersnapping and came up with these other tidbits:

The peoples throughout the Middle East, Africa, and Spain snap fingers to accent dancing as do wandering gypsies and certain American Indian tribes.

Dice-players snap fingers for luck; so do those urging favorite horses around the track.

Psychiatrists snap fingers to awaken a patient under hypnosis.

While the custom may not seem polite in the United

Sport Parade

BY MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lee MacPhail is doing two jobs at once now and if he handles them the same way he did those two a year ago, the Yankees are a cinch to be the next world champs.

MacPhail is too much of a realist to believe a think like that altogether if someone had asked him a year ago he wouldn't have come right out and announced that he knew the Orioles would become the 1966 world champions either.

The two posts MacPhail held simultaneously last Fall were the presidency of the Orioles and the administratorship of the baseball Commissioner's Office. The reason he held both at the same time was because he and Commissioner William Eckert were named early in November and didn't officially take over their new jobs until Dec. 11.

During that five-week interim, MacPhail started becoming acquainted with his new duties and still had time to initiate three deals for the Orioles. Those three involved getting Dick Simpson from the Angels, Jack Baldschun from the Phillies and Frank Robinson from the Reds, and if you don't think those particular trades didn't help the Orioles become champions, all you have to do is ask dear Abby.

Similar Position

MacPhail finds himself in a similar situation now, only as he says, in reverse.

He already has been named executive vice president and general manager of the Yankees but still is minding the store in the Commissioner's Office until Eckert gets back from Japan three weeks from now.

"The commissioner told me I could do a little 'home work' and I have been," laughed MacPhail.

"I've been talking with Mike Burke the Yankees new prexy every day and I've been studying the scouting reports. I also talked to most ofthe clubs during the recent general managers' meeting at Casa Grande, Arizona, recently and I expect to talk to all of them again."

Good Trading Weather

MacPhail found the general trading climate "good," and it probably is even better than that because Lee is an archconservative from way back and who wouldn't be eager to do business with a club which is over the barrel whether it says so openly or not.

"Every club would like to make a deal," MacPhail admitted. "The question is can you work out something. I sure hope so."

When Eckert returns on Nov. 21, MacPhail still will stick around to give him a hand during the national association or minor league meetings to be held in Columbus, Ohio, Nov, 28-29-30.

The major league meetings start Dec. 1 in Pittsburgh and that's when MacPhail takes off his hold hat, adjusts his new one and officially moves over to the Yankees.

Meanwhile, if anyone feels like talking trade with the Yankees, MacPhail can be reached at the Commissioner's office.

"They all know where I am," he smiled.

Children's Theatre Presents Christmas Carol

The Boston Children's Theater will open its holiday season on Saturday, Dev. 3, with Charles Dickens' classic "A Christmas Carol." Heading the large cast are Robert Margeson, Gail Sullivan, Stephen Weagle, Peter Webster, Philip Grossman, Debby Wolfe, Enid Richmond, Alan Gavoni and Barbara Keel.

Convicts Get Outside Job

SEAGOVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — At 7 a.m. each workday morning a prison bus leaves Seagoville's Federal Correctional Institution to take a specially selected group of convicts to jobs in the Dallas area.

The men include electricians, welders, carpenters and even cooks and bakers.

They are part of a work-release program being tried at 13 federal prisons over the nation. Associate warden C. J. Hughes explains that normally there are more job prospects than inmates qualified to leave.

The program is for prisoners with less than six months to serve on their sentence and for those not imprisoned for violent or sex crimes, racketeering or organized crime.

Most of the men are engaged in day-labor work and are paid the same scale as other employees. Usually this money goes to the convict's family or to pay debts.

"It gives them further training so that their transition back to community life won't be so abrupt,"

Schoolboy Cop Defends Teener

CLAREMORE, Okla. (UPI) — Those who think of teenagers as troublemakers might consider the case of the 16-year-old Dave Smalley. Dave's a policeman.

The youth is a junior in Claremore High School during the day. From 2:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., he is a radio dispatcher for the Claremore Police Department.

Dave comes into contact with teen-agers often as a dispatcher for the small police force (the chief, seven officers and four dispatchers) and has developed an opinion about young troublemakers.

"The contact doesn't bother me, but it kind of makes me feel sorry for them," he said. "I've come to the conclusion that it's not the majority of teen-agers who cause the trouble."

Dave got his job as a police dispatcher through Chief Dewey Johnson, who is a friend of the family. The job began in September and Dave says he finds it interesting.

"I get to learn more about law, which I may go into, and about how the law works," he explained.

Dave is responsible during his shift for communications with the patrol officers and with other law enforcement agencies, such as the sheriff's office and highway patrol.

Newton QB Sets New Record In Beating Brkl., 40-14

Ignited by Dick Dezotell, Newton high school ended the football season in a blaze of glory Thanksgiving Day by whipping arch-rival Brookline, 40-14, and evening the long schoolboy series at 32-32-6.

The 5-foot-10, 175 pound senior quarterback had the greatest day of his high school career as he threw five touchdown passes in an amazing performance unequalled in Newton high school history.

He whipped two TD passes each to Warren Houston and Steve Pleuler and another to Steve Colantuono as the Tigers recorded their first victory over the Wealthy Towners since 1962.

With his five scoring passes, Dezotell rewrote the Newton high record books and joined the ranks of the top five of Class A touchdown passers, raising his total for the season to 14.

The senior quarterback — who reported for hockey practice Friday morning — also completed 10 passes for the third game in succession. He was 10 for 14 for a total of 165 yards, giving him 61-for-118 for a season's total of 888 yards.

The touchdown passes to Houston were for 22 and two yards; to Pleuler for 47 and 19 yards, and to Colantuono for 33 yards. Colantuono also grabbed a pair of two-point conversion flips. Houston rounded out the Newton scoring on an eight-yard slant late in the game.

Newton's defense was superb, containing Brookline to a total of 169 rushing yards, 110 of which were gained by Townite Dick Heavey, who played to exhaustion.

The big, 180 pound back passed out after the game and was taken to Beth Israel Hospital as a precautionary measure. X-rays of his left side proved negative and he was advised to check with a back specialist.

The game got off to a shaky "this-is-the-big-one" start that saw both teams fumbling and having passes intercepted. Newton was the first to settle down and launched its scoring offensive mid-way through the first period.

The Tigers took a punt on their own 48-yard line and marched 52 yards to paydirt with the culminating play being Dezotell's first TD pass to Houston from the 22. The line-pounding of Bob Cohen and the outside running of Colantuono helped bring the pigskin to the 22 where Dezotell hit Houston over the middle for the TD.

Early in the second period, the Tigers took an enemy punt on their 42 and began another drive that ended with a score. Running backs Cohen and Colantuono again carried the brunt of the attack and brought the ball to the Brookline five-yard line. Cohen smashed into the line three times but couldn't bull his way through. Then, Dezotell took to the air and tossed two yards into the end zone to Houston for the score. A pass to Colantuono gained the two-point conversion.

A pass interception by Co-Capt. Dom Boudreau set up Newton again in the same period. Boudreau intercepted at his own 32 and Dezotell began the drive with a 20-yard run to the 48. Cohen eked out another yard, then Dezotell uncorked a beauty to Pleuler, who had a couple of steps on the hard-playing Heavey. The little back grabbed the sphere on the 18 and beat Heavey over the goal.

Brookline made it a 20-6 ballgame just before the half as quarterback Dick Monlony skirted the end for eight yards and the score.

The Towners came roaring out in the second half and drove from their own 19 to Newton's seven before Houston ended the march with an interception in the end zone.

Newton went on to rack up 20 more points in the fourth quarter while Brookline garnered six.

Newton Coach Jim Ronayne was elated with the win and Dezotell's performance. "I can't remember any quarterback ever throwing five touchdown passes. As a matter of fact," Ronayne said, "in my 18 years of coaching, I've never had a boy perform that feat. It's something I've always dreamed of, but thought I'd never see."

Five Firemen Injured Battling Newton Blaze

Smoldering undetected for sometime, a fire of undetermined origin swept through a vacant two-and-one-half story dwelling at 22 James St., West Newton, last Friday night, causing an estimated $15,000 damage.

Five firemen were overcome or injured in battling the blaze which Newton Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., said apparently started near a basement heater.

Firefighter Dominic Russo, of 78 Oak Ave., West Newton, attached to Engine 5, was admitted to Newton-Wellesley Hospital suffering burns and smoke inhalation. His condition was reported as "good" after receiving treatment for burns about the face, ears, lip and left hand.

Others injured or suffering smoke inhalation were treated and released from the hospital.

They were: Nicholas Calderone, of 195 Winslow Rd., Newton Highlands, Eng. 5, burns on the face; Wilfred Schmidt, of 285 River St., West Newton, Eng. 5, burns on the face; Robert Hodgdon, of 44 Judkins St., Newtonville, Eng. 5, smoke inhalation, and Norman Cadman, of 29 Hatfield St., West Newton, Eng. 4, cut on the left eye.

Calderone was on a ladder when burned and received in addition, a sprained ankle as he fell in an attempt to move the ladder.

Fire Chief Perkins said the fire began, apparently, near the basement heater and spread through partitions and walls into the upstairs area.

The house was in flames when the first alarm was sounded. Earlier, neighbors said they had smelled smoke but thought it drifted from the dump.

Apparatus from Waltham also responded to the alarm.

Powell, now 58, would be 95 years old by the time the judgment was satisfied, while the plantiff, Mrs. Esther James, now 68, would be 105.

The payments will go to Mrs. Esther James, Harlem widow, who in 1960 was described by Powell as a "bag woman" or graft collector. In 1963, he was found guilty of defaming Mrs. James.

Pay Raises Are Sought By All Municipal Help

All groups of municipal employees in Newton are seeking pay raises for next year, Mayor Monte G. Basbas disclosed last night.

The biggest wage hike—a boost of $1200 a year—is being sought by members of the police and fire departments.

They are asking that the maximum pay for patrolmen and firefighters be increased from the present $6900 to $8100 a year.

In support of their request, members of the Newton police force point out that the MDC police and the Capitol police at the State House now receive $8100 annually.

A compromise offer by Mayor Basbas of a $600-a-year pay raise effective next May, which would hike the maximum salary for Newton patrolmen to $7500, has been turned down by the police officers.

Mayor Basbas himself has been personally conferring with representatives of the police and fire departments on their requested wage increases.

City Solicitor Matt B. Jones, Assistant City Solicitor Martin E. Greenblatt and Attorney Leon Kowal, special counsel to the Mayor on collective bargaining, are meeting with the bargaining agents for five other groups of municipal employees.

Sergeant William Nally and Officers Albert Flanagan and James Roche have represented the police department in the negotiations with the Mayor.

A $1000-a-year differential between grades has been requested by the police spokesmen.

This means that the sergeants would get $9100, the lieutenants $10,100 and the captains $11,100 annually.

Basbas countered with an offer of $8600 a year for sergeants, $9600 for lieutenants and $10,800 for captains.

Complete elimination of step-rate increases was urged by the police representatives who asserted that at times in the past newly appointed lieutenants have received a smaller salary than sergeants getting maximum pay.

Block $5000 Pay Hike For Mayor

In an unexpected action, a move to hike the annual salary of Newton Mayor Monte G. Basbas to $25,000 was blocked Monday night by Alderman James Shea.

"We should have a more complete understanding of the people's view toward this matter," Shea said as he voiced a charter objection. He said also that the first notice he had of the contemplated action on the Mayor's pay raise was only a few hours earlier.

Shea's move automatically eliminated the motion from coming before the full Board of Aldermen for a vote.

A petition to increase the Mayor's annual pay from $20,000 to $30,000 originated with Alderman William Glovsky and had been on the docket for several weeks. However, no action was taken on it until the Finance Committee voted 5-0 this week to grant a $5000 pay boost, and to refer the matter to the Claims and Rules Committee.

Claims and Rules chairman Franklin N Flaschner said his committee had approved the petition and moved to make it law.

Although Shea's move was unexpected, it was legal and proper. Under the Charter (Section 11) any alderman can move to postpone any petition that may be passed through all its stages of legislation at one session.

Newton Gifts To Go To Boys In Vietnam

Mayor Monte G. Basbas announced last night that he personally will send gift packages from the people of Newton to all serviceman from this city who will spend Christmas with our armed forces in far-away, war-ravaged Vietnam.

Members of the Mayor's own office staff are now preparing bundles which will be sent to 12 servicemen from Newton, two of them brothers, whose names are printed later in this news story.

At the same time Mayor Basbas urged organizations and residents throughout the city to join him and the Graphic in letting the Newton men, who will spend a lonely Yuletide in Vietnam, know that the thoughts of

Teacher Salary Schedules Studied In Pay Raise Bid

A study of teacher salary schedules shows that Newton teachers do not in general receive higher pay than teachers in surrounding communities although they have the opportunity of attaining a better salary in the long run than that received by colleagues in neighboring cities and towns.

The personnel policies committee of the Newton teachers' association marshalled the data in support of their requested $750 across-the-board pay hike.

Public Asked To Help Yule Mailing Rush

In an effort to cut the handling and costs of the mounting Christmas card mail load which may reach 350 million pieces in the Boston Postal District, letter carriers will deliver this week 560,000 Christmas Kits to homes in the 25 cities and towns of the area, including Newton.

As explained in each kit, the six straps enclosed are for use in packaging Christmas cards, which have been separated as follows: Local (all cards for Newton) — Massachusetts cities and

The Mayor invited them in out of the chilly weather for coffee and doughnuts. The pickets entered his home to present him a petition opposing the suggested development but declined his coffee and doughnuts.

Pickets Bring Zone Protests To Mayor

When more than 35 Newton residents picketed the Kirkstall road home of Mayor Monte G. Basbas last Saturday, the Mayor, acting the role of good host, invited them in for coffee and doughnuts.

The pickets declined both the coffee and doughnuts, but chilled news reporters and photographers gratefully accepted.

The picketing was in opposition to a petition now pending before the Board of Aldermen which seeks the right to construct a development

Volpe Might Emerge in '68 As Compromise GOP Choice

Governor Volpe, who soon will begin the first four-year term in the Massachusetts Governorship, is not lacking in unsolicited political counsel and advice.

Two suggestions have been made publicly to Volpe in recent newspaper political columns. One was that he launch his campaign immediately for a place on the 1968 Republican national ticket. The other was that he challenge Senator Edward M. Kennedy in 1970.

Library Branch Features New Form Of Art

Newtonville branch, Newton Free Library, is featuring this month a unique art form, Fleurage, a three-dimensional, preserved flower arrangement conceived and executed by Phyllis Church Maloney, Netwon artist.

The term "fleurage" is an amalgam of the French word "fleur" and the word "collage."

Mrs. Maloney, who has a summer gallery at Eastern Point, Gloucester, taught herself how to work with preserved flowers from resource material at the Newton Free Library. The flowers retain their colors and their natural form and will last indefinitely. The same books used by Mrs. Church are displayed along with the fleurage, and will remain during December.

The advantage of fleurage is that the flowers preserve their living shape. "This art form, I think," said Mrs. Maloney, "captures the true miracle of growth, and seals under glass the beauty of summer."

A companion exhibit at the Netwonville Branch is the optical art of Warren Alessi, 11 canvases in modern style which were previously displayed at the Main Library.

Protests -

of 44 garden-type apartments along Route 9 near Route 128 in Newton Upper Falls, in the area around Macon place and Cragmore road. Kris Apog is the petitioner.

Signs and banners reading "Our Zoning Laws Should Be Protected," "Planless City Planning" and "Let's Put a High-Rise on Kirkstall Road" were carried by the pickets who marched in the cold December weather from Newton High School to the Mayor's home.

The march and picketing were organized by CANDOR (Committee Against Needless Downgrading of Real Estate).

While the picketers declined the Mayor's offer of coffee and doughnuts, they took advantage of the opportunity to enter his home and present him a petition opposing the suggested garden-type development.

The statement delivered to the Mayor objected to "irresponsible spot zoning" and what was termed the practice of permitting new apartment buildings, businesses and highways "to invade residential areas."

"Unwarranted zoning changes are the beginning of blight," the statement given the Mayor maintained. They depress property values and encourage panic selling. Such pressures must be resisted, and Newton must seek intelligent development which will preserve its character as well as its fiscal integrity."

CANDOR warned that high rise apartment buildings have not always proved the salvation of suburban communities, contending that they force the community to gamble on the success of ventures which sometimes fail, throwing a heavier tax burden on the home-owner.

Opposition also was expressed to the EE zone amendment now before the Board of Aldermen.

"It suggests piecemeal rather than integrated city planning," the objectors claimed. "If the guidelines for Newton's future development are to be changed, these changes should be clearly defined and publicly discussed."

Among those who conferred with Mayor Basbas were Michael Moskow of Newton Centre, and Alvin Page, Edward Bennett and Mrs. Christiane Sharkey, all of Newton Highlands.

Mayor Basbas informed the delegation that under the State law zoning changes are considered to be within the province of the Board of Aldermen.

He pointed out that the proposed development in the Upper Falls section will be sanctioned only if two-thirds of the members of the Aldermanic Board approve the requested zoning change.

The Mayor indicated that he would not veto the zoning revision if two-thirds of the Aldermen vote for it, adding that a two-thirds vote of the Aldermanic Board could override his veto.

The petition for the zoning change is still under consideration by the Aldermanic Claims and Rules Committee and has not yet been reported out to the full board.

Objectors to the application, who picketed the Mayor's home, maintained that the proposed development, which would be undertaken if the zoning revision is allowed, would be an intrusion of garden-type apartments in a section of single and two-family homes.

In response to criticism of city planning in Newton, Basbas declared that the city has a fine planning department and an outstanding planning consultant.

He also explained in detail that the consideration of the merits of the application for the zoning change is principally the function of the Board of Aldermen.

Some of the objectors said that communicating with 24 Aldermen is difficult and time-consuminmg.

Girls, Live, Study In European Areas

Two Newton teenage girls, originally scheduled to be seniors this year in the Newton High Schools, find themselves instead in the storybook adventure of spending a year in European homes as American Field Service representatives of this country.

Under the Americans Abroad program of this agency, Carol Beth Richmond of Newton South High School and Barbara "Bonnie" Bell of Newton High School, are living as members of Dutch and German families, respectively, while attending the public schools of those countries.

Carol and Bonnie traveled abroad on the American Field Service ship, The Seven Seas, which carried over a thousand American youngsters on their way to spend the summer or a school year in different parts of the world. En route and thehn at language camps both girls underwent intensive courses to learn their new mother tongues and equip themselves for the challenge of their European schools.

Bonnie has been assigned to a family of a teacher of retarded children in Delmenhorst, Germany. She faces the challenge of 13 high school subjects in German, a language with which she had had no experience as late as mid-August.

Carol's home is with the family of a Royal Dutch project engineer.. in Gouda, Netherlands. She shares with them an ardent interest in tennis and skiing, and will travel to Switzerland for the latter sport during vacation.

As the year passes, the girls will frequently appear before groups to describe their mode of life, and resident areas in the United States, and will be questioned about Americans, their opinions, and their government.

In turn, they will develop appreciation and understanding of life in their host countries and form lasting friendships with many of those with whom they come in contact. Upon their return to the U. S. they will be called upon to describe their life abroad and the attitudes they encountered during their European stays.

It is by this means, multiplied many times over, that the American Field Service strives to increase and improve international understanding and friendship.

Bonnie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Bell and Carol of Dr. and Mrs. Philip Richmond of this city.

Raises -

Mayor Basbas offered a compromise plan on that point. He agreed that the superior officers — sergeants, lieutenants and captains — should immediately receive their maximum pay but that patrolmen should go up to their maximum in three steps over a three-year period.

Several other points are in dispute in the negotiations between the Mayor and the police representatives.

A request for a fourth week of vacation for members of the police department after 10 or 15 years of service has been turned down by Mayor Basbas.

Also rejected by Basbas were proposals that plain clothes detectives and police clerks be paid $300 above scale and that time and a half be paid for overtime. Basbas offered an extra $100 a year for the detectives.

Another point at issue is whether police officers should be paid for time spent in court on civil cases.

Basbas is willing to pay them for court time on criminal cases, but not civil cases.

The police representatives maintain that civil cases can be time-consuming and often are as important as criminal cases.

The police also are asking for different-style uniforms. They want short-sleeve shirts without neckties for summertime wear and different type coats in the winter.

Basbas has replied that he is not concerned about the kind of uniform Newton police officers wear but that it is a matter within the jurisdiction of Police Chief Philip Purcell.

While the Mayor's negotiations have been carried on principally with representatives of the police department, the firefighters will get the same raise given the police.

Whatever agreement is made by Basbas with the police and fire department representatives must, in effect, be ratified by the members of the Board of Aldermen who have the authority to cut the police and fire departments budgets submitted to them by the Mayor.

Mayor Basbas has told the police spokesman he believes he can obtain Aldermanic approval for the compromise pay raise plan he has offered them.

The Mayor observed that the maximum pay for patrolmen in the Boston police department is now $7300 a year and is to be raised to $7700 next August.

He said that Quincy patrolmen will get $7300 in January and $7700 next June.

Basbas asserted that his proposal to give Newton patrolmen $7500 a year, starting next May, would bring them close to the salary levels in Boston and Quincy.

Irwin A. Katz, 5 Sheldon Rd., Newton Centre, a fourth-year student at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Boston, was among those cited for excellence in scholarship during the first term of the 1966-67 session.

Hanukkah, Season Of Gaiety, Is Observed

Hanukkah, one of the merriest of Jewish religious festivals, began at sundown yesterday, Wednesday, observed by Jews in Newton and throughout the world.

The celebration, which brings to Jewish homes much the same festive spirit that prevails in Christian homes during the Christmas season, will continue for eight days, through Thursday, December 15th.

Hanukkah is the Jewish word for "Rededication." The holiday commemorates the rededication of the temple in Jerusalem to the worship of God in the Second Century, B. C.

Hanukkah is celebrated by Jews everywhere with the lighting of candles each night, beginning with one candle the first night, two on the second, and so on until the final night when eight candles are ablaze in the Hanukkah menorrah, or candelabrum.

Like its seasonal neighbor, Christmas, Hanukkah is especially a holiday for children. It is traditional for Jewish children to receive presents during Hanukkah.

Santa's Aides Have Set Up Big Mail Box

A special mail box in which small Newton boys and girls may deposit their letters to Santa Claus has been set up at Colette-Magni Park on Watertown street.

It's part of a project undertaken by members of the Newton Boys Club to see that the letters sent by the city's youngsters to Santa not only reach the busy, old gentleman but also are answered by him.

Members of the Boys' Club, who provided great assistance to Santa last year in enabling him to answer the letters, are functioning as aides to him in a similar capacity this year.

However, two provisions are specified by Santa and his Boys' Club aides.

One is that the letters must be dropped in the mail box at Coletti-Magni Park not later than Wednesday, Dec. 22.

Mr. S. Claus will be too busy in the final hours before Christmas to answer any letters mailed after that day.

The other is that the names and addresses of the children sending the letters must be printed or written plainly enough so that Santa and his Boys' Club aides can read them.

In other years some children sent in letters but neglected to give their names or the addresses.

Other youngsters scrawled their names and addresses in such a manner that Santa and his assistants couldn't make them out.

Parents are urged by Santa and his aides to make certain that the names and addresses are printed plainly so there will be no disappointed youngsters who don't get answers to their letters. The mail box is a big one. It stands eight feet high.

1000 House Cut Names Certified

The Newton Election Commission has certified nearly 1000 names on a petition to reduce the membership of the House of Representatives.

Most of the signatures were gathered during the past three weeks.

It will be necessary to have 72,000 signatures statewide in order for the petition to be valid.

Alan W. Licarie, Election Commission executive secretary, said that between 10 and 20 percent of the signatures collected here were not certified because of discrepancies.

Safe Toy Program For Eye Injury Prevention

It is esimated that several hundred American children will suffer needless eye accidens during the coming holiday season due to potentially dangerous toys and Christmas tree hazards and that some will become blinded, reports the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc.

On behalf of the Society's nation-wide Safe Toy Campaign, John W. Ferree, M.D., executive director of the NSPB, warns parents that 17% of the more serious injuries to children's eyes are caused by missile-type toys such as pellet guns, dart guns, air guns, bean shooters and many toys with rubber bands such as sling shots.

He cites a recent case of a four-year old boy who was accidentally struck in the eye by a plastic whirling helicopter launched at close range with a rubber band causing an eye injury which could result in blindness. Dr. Ferree also alerts parents against buying "seemingly harmless" toys having protruding points, sharp edges, detachable parts or those made with flammable or plastic materials that shatter. Last month President Johnson signed "Child Protection" legislation which includes banning the sale of children's toys containing hazardous substances.

As part of its seasonal Safe Toy Campaign, the Society recommends that:

Christmas trees, not made fire-proof by approved chemical sprays, should be kept in water to prevent drying and causing fire hazards.

Christmas trees should be kept away from heated radiators or fireplaces.

All electrical wiring should be double-checked for shorts that can cause sparks and flames.

Lighted candles should never be used on the Christmas tree and all tree decoraitons should be unbreakable and nonflammable.

The Society emphasizes that good eye safety habits and attitudes should be practiced in the home not only at Christmas time but all year round. Aerosol spray cans containing many different pressurized liquids such as insecticides, deodorants, antibiotics, oven cleaners, paint, and hair fixatives, should be kept out of reach of children at all times. It has been recently found that these liquids, if accidentally sprayed into the eye, can cause severe corneal damage.

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc., founded in 1908, is the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in the prevention of blindness through a compresensive program of community services, public and professional education and research.

towns (outside Newton) — All other destinations outside Massachusetts.

Postmaster Ephraim Martin stated that tests have shown that approximiately 60% of all Christmas cards mailed in Newton are for delivery in Newton.

"If these are separated and bundled with the appropriate straps, they can be retained at the local postoffices in the city and sorted directly to carrier routes without having to be processed and rehandled in in large centralized mail centers and returned to Newton for delivery," said the postmaster.

These straps are very easy to use. Merely wrap tightly around the separated lots of cards and press. No moisture is required since they are self-sealing.

If possible the packaged cards should be deposited at the local post office where in the lobby for this Christmas mail. However, the packages can be deposited in the neighborhood mail box. Additional straps can be secured either through the letter carrier or at the local post office.

Closing date for parcel post to distant states is December 5 and greeting cards for these distant states December 10th, except for air mail.

Postmaster Martin also called attention to the form contained in the Christmas Kit delivered to each home which lists the Zip Code for that home.

He urged everyone to put their return address on all Christmas mail this year and to include their Zip Code after the name of the state. Where known the Zip Code should also be placed in the mailing address.

Why The Secrecy?

Mayor Monte G. Basbas is to be commended for his stand on the matter of releasing certain information to the public and the press.

The Mayor, in his capacity as ex-officio member of the School Committee, objected to the wording of a statement of policy governing the awarding of double pay raises and increased maximum salaries to outstanding Newton teachers.

The names of those so rewarded were not to be made public but were to be available to "school personnel," according to the statement. As Mayor Basbas pointed out, when an award is monetary, it becomes part of the budget, and therefore must be a matter of public record.

The Graphic believes Newton has a right to know who its higher paid public employees are and believes also that Newton should be proud of its outstanding teachers.

It may be that the school administration is correct in its contention that it is not helpful for pupils to know their individual teachers' various salaries. Why it would be harmful for the pupils to know their teachers were outstanding is not entirely clear, however.

There seemed to be an unwarranted aura of secrecy in the wording of the proposed policy discussed at the recent School Committee meeting. The strange aspect of the controverted policy is that school officials are reticent about identifying unusual teachers who reflect good credit on the city's school system.

It is to be hoped that School Superintendent Brown will take these and similar considerations into account when he carries out the School Committee's assignment of redrafting the policy statement.

- LETTERS -

Sent A Letter

Editor of the Graphic:

This is to inform you, and your readers, that Chairman Harold Berman of the Newton School Comm. does not always make a practice of answering his official mail, as he stated in his recent letter to several newspapers in answer to a published complaint from a Dr. S. Shaw.

I sent Mr. Berman a letter dated 26 August 1966 which contained a comparative analysis of the curriculum of the five Newton Junior High Schools. This study, based on information provided by the School Dept., indicates that the students at the Meadowbrook Jr. H. S. are receiving an education which is inferior to that offered in the other four Newton Jr. High Schools.

On 13 September 1966, I sent Chairman Berman another letter which contained three enclosures. Enclosure A was a photostat of a newspaper article containing comments by Mayor Monte Basbas about the June issue of the School Dept. publication "Patterns." This release was published on 21 July. Enclosure B was a copy of my letter to several local newspapers which was published the following week. This letter discussed the June issue of Patterns and raised serious questions about the budget figures and the School Departments long range plans. Enclosure C was a copy of my letter of 25 July 1966 to Dr. W. D. Woo, the Ward 8 School Committeeman requesting information on the history of teacher turnover rates at the five Jr. High Schools so that their Principals could be rated on their performance as leaders; also that this constant curriculum flux (continuous learning experiment) at Meadowbrook Jr. High School could be evaluated for its effect on the high teacher turnover rates at that school.

My 13 September letter also pointed out that 20 new teachers had been assigned to Meadowbrook for the term starting in Sept. 1966 and that this constituted a very large percentage of the full time teaching faculty assigned to the experimental program.

I raised the question as to why such a large rate of teacher replacements had not provoked an investigation at Meadowbrook Jr. High to determine its causes.

To date, I am still waiting for Mr. Berman to answer the serious questions I have raised. These questions, if allowed to go unanswered, will raise serious doubts as to the integrity of our elected representatives on the Newton School Committee and their claims that our money is being spent to provide quality education.

I have waited patiently for answers to my questions but in view of the tremendous budget increases proposed by the School Dept. feel that it is my duty to my fellow citizens of Newton to make the aboue facts known.

Interested In Schools

Editor of The Graphic:

I was interested in the exchange of letters between Sheila Shaw and Chairman Harold Berman, relative to the matter of the interim School Committee appointment.

I know that Mrs. Shaw holds a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Bryn Mawr College, and is at present an assistant professor of English at Wheaton College. She is also the mother of three young children, two already in the Newton schools, and has been attending school committee meetings throughout the year because of her interest in the Newton schools.

I am curious to know what qualifications Mr. Stanton possesses that make him "the best possible candidate" and what the qualifications are which a School Committee member should possess.

Although my children are grown and are no longer in the Newton Schools, I am still a Newton citizen and am extremely interested in the Newton school system.

Public Apathetic

Editor of The Graphic:

We the undersigned read with interest the letter from Sheila Shaw addressed to your pages, and Harold Berman's reply to that letter. Mrs. Shaw was critical of the manner in which the vacancy on the School Committee was filled, and she called attention to the fact that Alderman James Shea condemned the "filling of an elective office by a procedure which is ... not in accord with the aspirations of our democratic society." We would like to add that the Graphic carried an editorial a few weeks ago also criticising this arbitrary manner of appointment; it is a matter of concern as well to the League of Women Voters of Newton, and many other citizens.

Then there is the question of Mr. Berman's "discourtesy" toward Mrs. Shaw, who had offered her name as a possible candidate for the position vacated by Hugh Tomb. Mrs. Shaw's letter to the School Committee Chairman was not acknowledged, nor were the other twenty-five candidates ever mentioned. Mr. Berman defends his committee on the ground that such publicity would "create considerable embarrassment for those persons-the great majority in fact - who did not submit their own names as candidates but were ... sought out by the committee." This remark was obviously designed to embarrass Mrs. Shaw. However, those who have attended School Committe meetings, who have witnessed the public apathy toward those meetings have reason to be grateful to Mrs. Shaw for her interest. Mr. Berman implies that only those persons "sought out" by his committee should be considered eligible. It saddens us to think that a qualified individual with professional standing who desires to serve our community should be so complacently dismissed.

Political Highlights

Since candidates don't campaign for the Vice Presidential nomination — at least not in the Republican party — the political columnist presumably meant that Volpe should launch a drive for the GOP Presidential nomination as Michigan Governor George Romney has done.

There is some merit to that proposal, but from Volpe's standpoint there also are some obvious disadvantages to such a move.

A Presidential contender who moves out in front prematurely sets himself up as an inviting target for other members of his party who have political ambitions of their own and would like to see him cut down.

That probably will prove true in the case of Romney. As a matter of fact, members of the conservative wing of the GOP who backed Barry Goldwater for the Presidency in 1964 already are serving notice that Romney would not be acceptable to them as a Presidential candidate.

The conservatives in the Republican party recognize that they will not be able to nominate another Barry Goldwater in 1968. There is little likelihood, for example, that Governor-elect Ronald Reagan of California will emerge as the next GOP Presidential choice.

But the conservatives probably will have enough muscle at the 1968 Republican national convention to block the nomination of anyone they don't want, and they don't want either Romney or Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, both of whom refused to support Goldwater in the '64 campaign.

Volpe is as much a political moderate as is Romney. However, he is acceptable to the conservative element of the GOP because he not only went through the motions of supporting the Goldwater-Miller ticket in '64 but also made a seconding speech for former Congressman William Miller after Goldwater had tapped Miller as his Vice Presidential running mate.

Most political observers anticipate that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon may be the first choice of the Republican conservatives in 1968.

Nixon, of course, is somewhat shopworn, and a great many Republicans are not likely to be enthusiastic at the idea of dusting him off and running him again.

If a deadlock develops at the '68 Republican national convention, which is completely within the realm of possibility, Volpe would be a logical compromise candidate who would be acceptable to all factions of the party.

That would appear to be Volpe's best chance of gaining the Presidential nomination, and it looms as a fairly good chance.

If Volpe is to make an active campaign for the Presidential nomination, the strategic time for him to start his drive probably would be about a year from now, not now.

Whether Volpe would have any chance of gaining the Vice Presidential nomination if he is not picked for the Presidency itself would depend on the whims and wishes of the man who is the GOP Presidential candidate.

Republican Presidential standard - bearers invariably handpick their running mates. The Vice Presidential nomination sometimes is bartered in exchange for a bloc of votes. Usually, however, the Presidential contender picks a ticket mate who will most strengthen his own prospects of achieving election.

Only twice in modern political history have there been free and open battles for the Vice Presidential nomination. One was waged at the 1944 Democratic national convention, the other at the 1956 Democratic conclave.

In 1944 Franklin D. Roosevelt dropped Henry A. Wallace as his running mate at the insistence of a group of Democratic leaders. Wallace and Harry S. Truman fought it out on the convention floor, with Truman emerging the victor.

Adlai Stevenson did not want to choose between John F. Kennedy and Estes Kefauver in 1956 and left the decision to the convention delegates.

Kefauver and Kennedy engaged in a spectacular struggle for second place on the ticket with Stevenson, with Kefauver finally winning.

Ironically, JFK would not have possesed the same political glamor and probably would have not been victorious at the 1960 convention if he had gained the Vice Presidential nomination in 1956 and had gone down to defeat with Adlai Stevenson as Kefauver did.

While it's impossible to peer into the future and foretell events to come, the guessing now is that Governor Volpe would have a better chance of achieving election as President in 1968 than he would of defeating Senator Edward M. Kennedy in 1970.

It's true that the memory of the late President Kennedy will gradually dim during the next four years, but Senator Ted Kennedy still will be a pretty formidable candidate in his own right.

The fact that Ted Kennedy was unable to transfer his popularity to other office-seekers doesn't mean that he has lost any of his own vote-getting ability.

Ted was expected to do what no public figure before him ever has been able to do. The fact that he couldn't do it simply means that he can't perform miracles.

If a Republican tide was running in 1970 such as prevailed this year, Ted Kennedy might have a hard fight with a candidate of the stature of Governor Volpe.

No one, of course, can anticipate what the political climate will be in 1970, but you're not likely to find many politicos who would be willing to wager that Ted Kennedy could be defeated by Volpe or anyone else four years from now.

However, if Volpe is not elected President or Vice President in 1968, he may have no political alternative except to test his strength with Ted in 1970.

Bellotti Fee Row Still Unresolved

Political writers and observers are beginning to wonder whether the dispute over Francis X. Bellotti's work for an Ohio insurance company while he was Lieutenant Governor, will be resolved before Edward W. Brooke shifts from the Attorney Generalship to the U. S. Senate or, indeed, if it will be settled at all.

Brooke was rushing to go before a Grand Jury the day before election because Bellotti had demanded that his name be cleared before the voters went to the polls, but in the month since the election things seem to have slowed down to a pretty leisurely pace.

Edward A. Swartz, a recognized expert on the conflict of interest statutes, was deputized a Special Assistant Attorney General by Brooke shortly after election and assigned to make an investigation and resolve the dispute between Bellotti and Lieutenant Governor Elliot Richardson which exploded near the close of their bitter battle for the Attorney Generalship.

If the insurance company opens its books and records to Swartz, it would seem that it should not take him long to ascertain what Bellotti did for the $12,000 in fees which was paid him while he was Lieutenant Governor and whether there was any conflict of interest.

Swartz, however, declares that he is working as rapidly as is possible under the circumstances but that it is difficult to estimate how long it will take him to complete his investigation.

Exactly what that means is not clear, but there is speculation on Beacon Hill whether this matter will be cleared up before Brooke leaves office.

Legal experts assert that the insurance company cannot be compelled to open its books and records to the Attorney General's office if it does not choose to do so and that there is considerable doubt that it can be required to produce them for a Grand Jury since it is an out-of-state firm.

When he started to go before a Grand Jury last month, Brooke explained that he was doing so in compliance with Bellotti's request that his name be cleared before the election.

At that time the insurance company officials were not prepared to produce the books and records Brooke wanted, and the matter never was brought before a Grand Jury.

It undoubtedly would be embarrassing to Lieutenant Governor Richardson if the matter is not resolved before he takes over as Attorney General.

What Richardson presumably would do in such an event would be to leave the case to be completed by Swartz and maintain a hands-off attitude toward it.

It would seem, however, that Brooke should issue a report on the status of the case and the reason for the delay in resolving it — if it is not settled before he leaves the Attorney Generalship.

Law-Maker Who Does Job Worth $10,000 A year

A legislator who does his job well is worth $10,000 a year. A law-maker who isn't worth $10,000 a year shouldn't be elected to office.

That is the attitude of most students of government toward the move which will be made early next year to establish the legislative salary at $10,000 annually.

While there will be some furore over it and some objection to it, the pay increase will be voted early in January.

When it is voted, however, the people will have a right to expect and demand a higher degree of responsibility from some of their elected representatives on Beacon Hill.

If they get it, the $10,000-a-year salary will be a bargain.

Variety To Feature Yule Concert On Next Tuesday

The Highland Glee Club of Newton will present its annual December Concert on Tuesday, December 13, at 8:00 in the evening, at the Meadowbrook Junior High School, Newton Centre. The talented and charming young soprano, Henrietta McKee, will be the guest soloist.

The songs selected for the concert make up a program of particular interest and variety. Miss McKee's selections include a group of songs by Richard Strauss, two light mystical Christmas songs by Alec Rowley, a familiar German Aria from Carl Von Weber's Der Freischuetz, and an excerpt from the modern opera, "The Telephone," by Menotti.

Miss McKee ,who comes from Newton Highlands, is a graduate of Northeastern University and, in 1964, from the New England Conservatory of Music. Her professional experience has included performances with the Cantata Singers and the Aeolian Singers of Boston, a leading role with the William A. Rhodes Light Opera Society of Boston, recitals at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, and television work for National Educational Television.

She presently is soprano soloist at the Auburndale Congregational Church in Newton and has sung at several other Boston and suburban churches. She is the director of music at the Walnut Hill School of Natick, where she teaches voice, music appreciation and choral music.

The Glee Club, directed by Robert Prince, will devote one portion of its four part program to Christmas works. These include a burgundian carol, "Along the Street I Hear;" a spiritual, "Go Tell It on the Mountain," with a tenor solo by Ermond Lewis; and the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "The Messiah."

In addition, the club will sing Sibelius' powerful and clearly constructed "Onward, Ye Peoples!"; and an adaptation from Wagner's Lohengrin, "All Praise to God, in Light Arrayed," with baritone solo by Irving Middleton.

Romantic songs of soft harmony will be represented in the club's selections of "The Autumn Sea," by Gericke; "Lorena," by Webster-Shaw; and "O Peaceful Night," by Edward German.

Other selections include a spirited Russian folksong, "The Birch Tree" with tenor solo by Douglas Storrie; selections from musical comedy, "The Sound of Music" and "On the Street Where You Live;" the humorous "Big Brown Bear," by Mana-Zuca; and a modern version of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." The audience will be invited to participate with the club in its traditional singing of Christmas Carols.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained by contacting George F. Brewer, club president, at 1090 Walnut street, Newton Highlands, (233-4165) or Philip J. Livingston, chairman of the Sponsoring Membership Committee, 59 Rochester road, Newton (244-4076). Tickets may also be obtained at the box office the evening of the performance.

Science Church Golden Text From Isaiah

The Golden Text of this week's Christian Science Lesson-Sermon is from Isaiah: "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young." The lesson is titled, "God the Preserver of Man."

Among related passages from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following:

"The Scriptures say, 'They that wait upon the Lord . . . shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.' The meaning of that passage is not perverted by applying it literally to moments of fatigue, for the moral and physical are as one in their results."

Steps Underway To Halt European Chafer Invasion

Plans to combat the European Chafer in Massachusetts are now being activated.

Commissioner Charles H. McNamara of the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture has announced that he hopes to wage a full-scale battle against this invader, who made its first appearance in Massachusetts last June.

The European Chafer is a damaging insect of meadows, pastures, lawns, turf, grain, legumes and some vegetable and ornamental crops. The grubs of this insect feed on roots of plants and creates unsightly barren spots that make the soil subject to rapid erosion. Heavy infestations can cause serious crop damage.

The Massachusetts Department of Agriculture has conducted cooperative survey and trapping programs for this pest since 1960, and feels that all efforts should be made now to contain, or if possible, to eradicate this insect.

Commissioner McNamare feels that our first concern is to the amount of damage this pest could do in Massachusetts. We are fully aware of the potential damage that could be incurred to our country's large grain growing areas if the insect infestation is allowed to spread.

An estimated 28,000 acres of land is now infested in Massachusetts, and this fall over 300 acres of land was treated for the control of the Chafer. The trapping survey and control work is under the direction of P. C. Kuzmiski, director, Division of Plant Pest Control, cooperating with personnel of the U. S. Department of Agriculture anad the University of Massachusetts.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture will hold a public hearing on Dec. 14, on a proposal to extend the Federal European Chafer quarantine to Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania. The hearing will be held at 10:00 a.m., Room 2106, Massachusetts Department of Agriculture, 100 Cambridge street, Boston.

Red Cross Says Blood Use High, Seeks Donors

The Red Cross in Newton has again received reports from Chelsea Naval Hospital that there is a critical need for blood to be given to the returned injured servicemen being treated there. The need is most acute for O-negative blood, which is the universal donor type. Other types are needed as well. It is hoped that the chapters across the state can meet a quota of 60 pints a week.

This puts an additional burden on the blood bank, since blood is also needed for civilian needs, as blood usage is at an all time high.

Because of the holiday season, there is to be only one bloodmobile visit in Newton this month. Therefore, it is essential that sufficient contributions be received to meet all these needs.

It cannot be stated often enough that anyone donating blood receives coverage for his family for the ensuing year, without any charge being made for the blood itself.

The Newton Bloodmobile will be at the Newton City Hall on the 16th of December, from 12:45 until 6:30 p.m. Call 527-6000 for an appointment.

Red Cross Asks Church To Help Blood Program

Newton Chapter, American Red Cross, has sent the following message to the members of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lowell Ave., Newtonville, describing its blood donation program:

"Do you know what membership in the Red Cross Blood Program means to you?

"If you donate you get protection for your wife or husband, children under 18, parents and grandparents, and parents-in-law, for one year without any charge for the blood itself.

"In order to guarantee this coverage to all members of St. John's (those who give and those who cannot give), the Red Cross requires that at least 10 percent donate one pint of blood per year. This means 30 pints for our quota. If you already belong to a group conducting blood donor programs, the donation you make may be credited to both the church and some other group if you request this at the time of the donation.

"Who can give? Anyone in good health between the ages of 18 and 60. Unmarried minors under 21 require written parental consent. Donors must weigh over 110 pounds.

"If you have any questions, contact Walter J. Helm, 527-2792, or Newton Red Cross, 527-6000."

Gary C. du Moulin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. du Moulin, 94 Greenlawn Ave., Newton Centre, a sophomore at Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., has been promoted to the rank of Cadet Corporal in the regimental organization of the Corps of Cadets. A 1965 graduate of Newton High School, he is majoring in biology at the military college.

Get Christmas Tree Now, Says Mass. D. of A.

A warning that heavy snows may make it almost impossible to find heavy cuttings of Christmas trees already on the ground, and thus create a shortage, has been issued by the State Department of Agriculture.

Woodsmen continue cutting trees during the snows, the department states, but trees on the ground awaiting shipment get blanketed and are usually lost.

Trees purchased now and kept outdoors in the ground or in a pail of water will remain fresh during the holiday season, the department states, and adds that people who delay purchase until the last minute will, in most instances, be purchasing the same trees now on display and getting older daily.

Christmas Trade-In Sale Opens Friday At Barron's

It will be a buyer's paradise on Friday and Saturday, December 9 and 10, at the big Barron's Department Store in West Newton Square, West Newton, when the giant "Christmas Trade-in Sale" is held.

The unusual sale just before Christmas will greatly benefit the buyer and at the same time will help the needy and provide jobs for the handicapped workers at Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries.

George J. Huberman, president of the Barron's Department Store, a landmark in the area for 44 years in the same location, has worked out a generous allowance for his customers in practically all kinds of men's, women's and children's clothing and wearing apparel.

Barron's has been serving the Greater Newton area for more than four decades and is the largest suburban department store in Newton, with two full floors devoted to a wide variety of merchandise.

Here's the story of how the "Trade Sale" will work for you.

Barron's will allow specific cash allowances on all kinds of wearing apparel.

All the donated materials, on which Mr. Huberman will allow these generous deductions, will be in turn contributed to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries in Boston.

The clothing in good condition will be in time to help people in need and the underprivileged before Christmas.

All the other donated articles needing repair will be given to Goodwill Industries where it will provide jobs and job-training for handicapped. The materials will be cleaned and renovated and then sold in Goodwill Thrift Stores at economy prices. Every penny of proceeds from Goodwill Stores goes into wages for handicapped people.

Mr. Huberman has been commended by Goodwill Industries officials for his generous cooperation in promoting a genuine Christmas sale which at the same time will benefit those in need of warm clothing and handicapped workers who are served by the self-help program at Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries.

Mr. Huberman's idea is that you can bring to the Barron's Department Store all the usable or outworn and outgrown articles of wearing apparel and exchange each one, with generous allowance, toward a new piece of merchandise. Under the unique plan, you get a credit toward the new articles you buy when you donate the clothing and apparel you no longer need.

Morgan Memorial in Boston, is the birthplace of Goodwill Industries, and is now the largest voluntary, nonprofit, non-sectarian agency in New England serving the handicapped.

Sees Modern Schools As Model T's On Expressway

By MAGGIE BELLOWS
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — "If all the schools in America burned down today, we just might build a 20th century educational system for the 20th century," says Maurice B. Mitchell, president of Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc., former journalist, broadcaster and educational film producer.

"Our schools today are Model T Fords on a superhighway."

The first thing Mitchell would change would be the very buildings themselves. Classrooms would be changeable — they could be made small enough to hold two or three students and a teacher or large enough to hold hundreds.

"We should design schools for students — not by some magic formula that's supposed to fit every area in town. Children, their backgrounds, needs, interests, and capabilities, differ. We give a teacher in a slum school 30 children, all of whose problems would keep a psychiatrist busy 20 years, and expect her to teach them.

"We put our kids in containers, and then try to warp either the container or the kid to fit."

The second thing he would do would be to make each school independent, give the superintendent the authority to design courses specifically tailored to his pupils, staff his plant accordingly.

Why teach the same courses in a school where 92 per cent of the children will go on to college, and a school where 92 per cent will go on to work, he asks. We should educate students by where they come from and where they are going. And provide teachers who can speak the same language as their students.

Problem Homes

In disadvantaged areas, where children come from multi-problem homes, the teacher would be part of a team which would include not only a school counselor but the social worker. "Any family on relief has many problems, and they can't be separated," according to Michell. "Community resources should be meshed with the schools so that both work together."

Thirdly, Mitchell would design schools for the community—not just for the children. "They'd be open all hours of the day, so that the parents can go to school any time. We have nurseries in laundries and supermarkets—why not in schools, so mother can learn something, too?"

The buildings built, Mitchell would literally saturate them with modern instructional materials — visual, audio, tapes, films. And make them available. "No dreary library, presided over by some elderly lady who dares the student to take a book out and then heckles him until he brings it back, but a cheerful place where the curious student can follow his own excitement."

Here is Johnny, in a Mitchellesque classroom:

He walks into a carrel (his own private cubicle), puts his key in a lock.

The computer goes into action: it records that Johnny's there (so the school can collect state funds), says, "Good morning, Johnny. Let's take a trip to Paris."

(The computer knows all about Johnny — his reading level, grades, what he's passed, and what lesson he finished yesterday).

Movie-TV

The movie screen flashes on. Color scenes of the Champs Elysees, two men talking in French, a little play with a humorous plot. Then the picture starts over slowly—this time the words flash on the television screen in his desk.

Next scene: Johnny takes out his pencil, writes the words and their translation. Johnny makes a mistake: The machine says, "Do it over." Johnny misses again. The machine goes back to the correct answer.

Now Johnny speaks the words himself into a tape machine.

Lesson over, the machine types out a report for his counselor, tells Johnny to go to the library and check out something for his homework, and signs off, "Goodbye, Johnny."

Johnny sees his counselor as much as he needs to. "Some students will never need her all the time. The subject; another child will need her all the time. The teacher is free to teach the child, and not the subjects," says Mitchell.

All the machines have been invented, Mitchell says. "We simply need to retrain the teachers so they will know how best to use them. Too many teachers approach modern audio-visual devices and programmed materials like their parents approached the horseless carriage—with fear.

Thanks Blood Donors

Editor of The Graphic:

At this Thanksgiving season I would like to express my appreciation to the 10 or more neighbors, relatives and friends who generously offered to give me blood following an operation in Newton-Wellesley Hospital on Nov. 2.

I used four pints donated by Mrs. Lester Smith of Newton Highlands, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Martin of Concord, my son Robert and my daughter-in-law Margaret Cunningham.

Another thank you to my doctors who operated, Dr. Lewis Pilcher, and Dr. Joseph Cotter. They came to see me every day in the hospital and cheered me up no end.

Finally, a big cheer for Newton - Wellesley Hospital, which sure did its part to help out.

From the Candy Stripe girls to the head nurses, they made me feel welcome and comfortable. The nutrition department, along with a couple of neighbors who worked there, stopped by often to soften the Gastric 4 diet, which was my lot most of the time.

As an oldster of 70, it sure changed my views of the youth today when I saw the variety of kind things they did for me.

Robert A. Cunningham,
41 Waldorf road,
Newton Highlands.

Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's high time the woman with a low opinion of her driving ability shifted gears. After all, operating a car is no more complicated than running a washing machine.

The view that women should shed their inferiority complex as drivers comes from a woman who has won dozens of trophies racing sports cars.

"A woman who lacks confidence in her driving may actually be incompetent," said Denise McCluggage. "But she mustn't get trapped into thinking that she can never become competent. After all, a modern car has no more complicated controls than a modern range or washing machine. But knowing these applicances are clearly elements of a woman's domain, she knows she can master them, and she does. She should come to feel the same way about a car."

RATIO GROWING

Actually, Miss McCluggage holds that it's time to stop the "woman driver" label and its derisive connotation. For today every third driver on the road is a woman and the ratio rapidly is moving to 50-59.

Miss McCluggage argues that women have some qualities that can make them better drivers than men. The woman "is more willing than men to listen and learn."

Miss McCluggage spells out her views and advice on driving in a new book, "Are You a 'Woman Driver'?" Grossett & Dunlap, sponsored by the Cities Service Oil Co. Her premise—"if women are poor drivers, it's because men taught them how to drive."

She believes any good driver, no matter what the sex, is the one who "takes a positive pride in handling a car well . . . cares enough about driving to develop skills constantly . . ."

Some Suggestions

Some of her suggestions are: The owner's manual is one of the least read books ever published. Take time to read yours.

To smooth out driving on superhighways, see how long you can go without touching your brakes. Anticipate. Slow down early. And learn to use your accelerator for avoiding trouble spots.

If you stop to pick up a passenger on the street, never lean across the passenger's seat to open the door without shifting into park or neutral. Your foot might slip off the brake and hit the accelerator.

The corners of your eyes are more sensitive to light than the centers, and a side-long look at things—particularly at night—can sometimes be more revealing than a direct stare.

60th Year to be Marked by Women's Scholarship Group

A gala luncheon, celebrating their 60th anniversary year, is being planned by Women's Scholarship Association. Tryouts were held recently at the home of Mrs. Jack Smookler, of Newton, for casting of an original musical revue, "A Time to Remember," written by Mrs. Marvin Neipris and directed by Mrs. Harriet Wilson, well-known directress of the Boston area. Mrs. Daniel Prelack once again will head the Decorations Committee for the luncheon which is to be held on Wednesday, March 22, in the main ballroom of the Statler-Hilton Hotel.

The purpose of Women's Scholarship Association is to further higher education among young women in general, and Jewish young women in particular, by granting them scholarships and interest-free loans for study toward a degree at local accredited schools and colleges.

Additionally WSA aims to provide for its members educational and cultural programs, including a series of Coffee-Book Review mornings held throughout the year.

Women's Scholarship Association was founded in 1907 by Bertha I. Kagan, expressly to enable talented young women to enroll in college. The majority of these exceptional students are granted awards by the colleges as upperclassmen, but as tuition costs have risen, supplementary aid from this organization has been required. Records reveal that despite the sacrifices made by parents and the summer employment of students, funds are insufficient to permit the continuance of studies without scholarships.

It is toward this aim, therefore, that Scholarship directs its annual spring luncheon, the sole fund-raising event of the year. The 1967 luncheon, marking the 60th anniversary of the Association, promises to be the most well-attended one in its long anad productive history. Co-chairmen of the luncheon are Mrs. Allan Bufferd and Mrs. David Kosowsky, both of Newton. Association president is Mrs. Hyman Waldman of Chestnut Hill.

Newton Parent Defends Family Efectiveness

In a sharply worded open letter to the Newton School Committee, Mrs. Harold I. Singer of 125 Wendell Rd., Newton Centre, has taken exception to statements made by Superintendent of Schools Charles E. Brown in a recent address.

The remarks by Brown at which Mrs. Singer levelled strong criticism were made at a general faculty meeting of all professional staff members of the Newton public schools in September. It was reproduced in the October issue of Patterns, the Newton school system's official publication.

Dr. Brown's speech was primarily devoted to the changing role of the teacher, but he also analyzed what he considered to be general developments in Newton and American society which affect educators eventually.

Mrs. Singer emphatically denied Dr. Brown's assertion that "the family is playing a role of decreasing importance in Newton, with too many parents (too busy with their own lives) leaving the decisions and activities of their children in the hands of the community or the children's peers".

Brown claimed that in people's minds, the family often appears as "a hollow shell, expected to perform the functions of a family, but without sufficient substance to do so."

Mrs. Singer said that in her experience "parents are home for their children", and said that an entire society should not be judged by a small segment.

She also attacked what she termed "the permissiveness pervading the south side schools" and maintained that "self discipline is taught, it does not come naturally."

Mrs. Singer requested that her criticism of the School Committee and Superintendent Brown be read in open session at the next School Committee meeting.

Jackson Homestead Holds Yule Open House Sunday

The annual Christmas open house at the Jackson Homestead, 527 Washington St., Newton, will be held next Sunday afternoon, December 11, from 2 to 5 p.m.

The Madrigal singers of Newton High School, under the direction of Mrs. Geraldine Seaver, will present carols and other holiday songs.

Christmas wreaths, flowers and fruit will decorate the homestead's rooms, and a live six-foot tree (to be planted later in the back yard) will be hung with old fashioned decorations. Under it will be old-time toys and a Hansel and Gretel Ginger bread House, all showing the handiwork of Mrs. Orin E. Skinner.

Mannequins dressed in costumes of the 1800's will include young William, sister Rosemary in a low neck ruffled dress and wearing antique jewelry, and Aunt Hannah in an autumn-tan brocade, all so lifelike they seem to be talking to the guests.

The front hall, dining room and old kitchen will be bright with floral decorations arranged by members of the Chestnut Hill Garden Club, who will also make the handsome wreath on the front door.

Members of the Chestnut Hill Garden Club participating in the decoration are chairmaned by Mrs. Augustus H. Vogel. They include Mrs. Robert P. Bainbridge, Mrs. Edwin B. Dunphy, Mrs. Theodore Haffenreffer, Mrs. Kirke A. Neal and Mrs. Endicott Smith. An antique container filled with harvest fruits, and a silver bowl of gold and silver balls will be featured.

Arrangements done by members of the Newton Centre Garden Club include those in the upsairs hall, by Mrs. Robert S. Mullen and parlour decorations by Mrs. Philip A. Ingwerseen.

Members of the West Newton Woman's Club who will be hostesses in the various rooms will include Mrs. John B. Naylor, president; Miss M. Elizabeth Kilburn, Mrs. George C. Thomson, Miss Avis Walsh, Mrs. Alfred O. Weaver, Mrs. Frederick E. Whelpley and Mrs. Chester W. Wilson, assisted by two Camp Fire Girls in old-fashioned gowns.

Visitors will be welcomed at the door by Mrs. Albert E. Burgess, Mrs. John E. Fox and Mrs. Malcolm N. Jackson, officers of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead, and by Mrs. William H. Cannard, the new director.

The public is invited to the open house.

45 Weeks Pupils Visit Cape Cod

A group of 45 Weeks Junior High School students under the direction of teachers Stephen Fiott and Robert Killburn recently visited Truro and Provincetown. The group belong to the Orogenic Scaling Club of Weeks. T.O.S.-C.O.W. (Orogeny is a geological term for the process of mountain making.)

Because of a storm at sea, the students were able to see the work of erosion and abrasion done by the waves. They were also able to observe walls of sand as high as 175 feet which mark the terminal moraine of the last continental glacier.

After struggling up and sliding down two of the sand dunes, the group paused for lunch. After exploring nearby wooded areas, the students hiked about two miles along the beach, and drove to Provincetown. Following a two-hour visit, they returned to Newton.

A trip to the Mohawk Trail is being planned for this month.

Mrs. Harold R. Keller of West Newton and members of her flower committee are designing festive decor for the elegant paneled Tudor hall, where tea will be served following the concert.

Mrs. Allen P. Joslin and Mrs. Walter B. Littlefield, former presidents of Tau Beta Beta, will assist the tea committee.

Tax Talk To Be Given In Weston By Local Man

Murray H. Falk, 150 Beethoven Ave., Waban, who has been an instructor in tax law at Boston College Law School and a tax adviser in political campaigns, will speak on various kinds of taxes in use, as well as others under consideration, Tuesday, Dec. 13, at a meeting of the Weston League of Women Voters.

A former assistant United States Attorney and head of the Tax Section, Mr. Falk, is a partner with the Boston law firm of Moulton, Looney, Mazzone and Falk. In his talk he will cover the essentials of a theoretically ideal tax program, and then comment on the setup current in Massachusetts.

Such questions will be considered as should taxes be evaluated by such generally recognized criteria as equitability, steadiness of return, flexibility, uniformity of levy, adequacy of yield and beneficial economic effect? Also, should an overall tax program use a number of different types of tax and thus avoid overdependence on any particular tax? And which taxes would you be willing to support — the present state income tax, a graduated income tax, sales tax with certain qualifications, or some other sources of revenue?

Following the talk, Mr. Falk will answer questions, and there will be a general discussion.

Newton Man Heads Development Of Manual For Work With Elderly

The first manual to help train personnel to work with the elderly will be developed at Boston University's School of Social Work under the direction of Dr. Louis Lowy, 72 Fisher Ave., Newton Highlands, professor of social work.

Funded under a grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the award is one of 10 totaling nearly $400,000 awarded for the current academic year by various agencies of the department.

The manual will be a two-part volume, one designed for trainers and the other for trainees. It will help alleviate the critical shortages of trained staff for work with the elderly by providing urgently needed teaching material. The study also reflects the current interest in employing "indigenous workers" from various cultural or ethnic groups to keep open the lines of communication between these groups and the agencies serving them.

Another grant awarded to the School of Social Work has been designed to tap new manpower sources in the serious shortage of health and welfare personnel. Under a $5,438 grant from the federal Welfare Administration, anthropoligist and social worker. Dr. Katherine Spencer conducted research this past summer at Navajo communities in New Mexico.

She interviewed Navajos working as case aides and interpreters in various health and education agencies to find out how they got into such work and what their future career ambitions might be. The study was conducted to determine how individuals in such non-professional jobs can perform and to identify the factors leading to successful careers.

Other grants at the School will provide for 52 traineeships in all phases of social work, short term training for social workers already in the field, and for helping implement the School's regular Master's degre eprogram.

The largest amount was $208,000, awarded by the National Institute of Mental Health in four grants. They provide for 32 traineeships to prepare social workers for the field of mental health, for work with older people, in public school settings, and for student experience in social work research.

The Children's Bureau awarded two grants totaling $115,283. One grant provides for 12 traineeships in social work for the field of child welfare. The other will support a short-term training program for supervisors of child care personnel in children's agencies.

The Vocational Rehabilitation Administration awarded a $54,945 grant providing eight traineeships in social work in medical and rehabilitation agencies.

The Administration of Aging awarded two grants totaling $13,000 one of which will be used to develop the manual for work with elderly people. The other will support a short-term training project for social workers already working in centers for older people.

Prof. First Of Newton Is On Environmental Health Committee

Melvin W. First, 295 Upland Ave., Newton Highlands, associate professor at the Kresge Center for Environmental Health, Harvard University, is the Newton member of the recently organized Advisory Committee to the Bureau of Envronmental Health.

A plea to utilize our natural resources without hazard to the health of the public was made by Dr. Alfred L. Frechette, Massachusetts Commissioner of Public Health, before the first organizational meeting of the committee.

Dr. Frechette urged the members to consider new approaches towards gaining increased participation on the part of industry and on the part of the individual in the struggle to improve and safeguard our environment.

Mindful of the recent atmosheric inversion, he called for the wholehearted support of the committee to help attack those problems of air and water pollution resulting from our expanding population, our rapid industrial growth and our advancing technology.

He pointed out that effective leadership is required much the same as it was needed in the 1880's when the public health department had to deal with epidemics of communicable disease such as typhoid fever, scarlet fever and diphtheria which were largely transmitted by impure water, milk and food.

This committee will give attention to all aspects of the State Health Department's environmental health programs such as water purity, waste disposal and other community sanitation problems, air pollution and air resources management, and radioactivity.

The members of the committee elected N. Bruce Hanes, Ph.D., P.E., associated professor of Envronmental Engineering, Department of Civil Engineering, Tufts University, to serve as chairman.

John C. Collins, director of the Department's Division of Sanitary Engineering, was elected to serve as executive secretary.

Mayor Basbas also expressed the hope that school children and others will send Christmas greetings and letters to the Newton servicemen who will be in a strange land on the other side of the world on Christmas Day.

"I am sure that many school teachers will have their classes send greetings to these young men who cannot be home with their families for Christmas but instead will be maintaining a lonely vigil in the cause of freedom," the Mayor asserted.

Slow-Moving Vehicles To Carry Emblem

United Press International

With about 12 million slow-moving vehicles, which travel at speeds of 25 miles per hour or less, operating regularly on the nation's highways, safety experts are urging wider use of the slow-moving vehicle emblem (SMV).

Two states — Ohio and Nebraska — have a law requiring use of the triangular emblem, which isdesigned to warn drivers of high-speed automobiles of slow-moving vehices ahead on the road.

Legislation to authorize and require use of emblem on tractors and other farm machinery will be intrtoduced this fall in the Iowa legislature, according to Norval Wardle, extension safety specialist at Iowa State University.

Wardle, a leading sponsor of the safety device, said other groups supporting adoption of the SMV emblem include Iowa department of public safety, the state highway patrol and the Iowa Farm Safety Council.

Even without the legislation, Wardle estimates that 50,000 or more SMV emblems are currently being used in Iowa.

The emblem, developed at Ohio State University, is a triangle 16 inches wide and 14 inches high. It combines a yellow-orange fluorescent center with a red reflective border. The fluorescent material gows vividly during the daylight. The reflective material, the same as that used on signs and reflective license plates, shine brightly at night in the headlights of a car.

The emblem is visible for 500 feet, both day and night, and should be mounted at the center rear of slow-moving vehicles, experts say. The National Safety Council, American Society of Agricultural Engineers and other safety groups hav eadopted the SMV emblem as a standard.

Jonathan M. Dana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold I. Dana, 35 Littlefield Rd., Newton Centre, was inducted into the Dartmouth College Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honor society. A senior, he maintained an average of 4.4 on Dartmouth's scale of 5.0 during his first three years. He is a Daniel Webster National Scholar, and was graduated in 1963 from Newton South High School.

Author Poet Speaks At Two Newton Schools

Under the Auspices of the Newton Creative Arts Council, author and poet Richard Lewis conducted poetry workshops for children of the Bowen and Emerson Schools last Friday.

Lewis, who teaches at the Walden School in New York City and the New School for Social Research, is a frequent lecturer on children's literature and creative writing. He is the author of the well known work, "Miracles: Poems by Children of the English Speaking World."

With the assistance of the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO, Lewis visited city and village schools in 18 countries where English was either the native language or an important second language, gathering over 3000 poems by children of many different backgrounds. The best poems were selected to appear in "Miracles".

Lewis has also published two anthologies of poems for children, and is the author of "The Moment of Wonder", "In a Spring Garden", and "In Praise of Music".

Xmas in Holland A Family Affair

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Christmas in Holland usually is a family affair.

Christmas dinner is usually turkey, chicken or maybe jugged hare, but with all the trimmings.

At home it will be eaten after midnight mass by Roman Catholics. Many non-Catholics go along to mass because of the Christmas atmosphere.

In most homes you'll find a Christmas tree, lighted and festooned in the traditional fashion, and a manger. Most of the town squares have a big tree, glowing, and a manger as well.

By the time Christmas Day arrives almost everyone will have sent off Christmas and New Year's greeting cards. But unlike many other countries, the Dutch burn their Christmas trees in public on New Year's eve under police supervision.

Newton South A Go-Go . . .

Basketball, Hockey Teams Hope For Better Seasons

By Ray Kwasnick

Newton South's basketball and hockey teas both hope to improve upon last year's losing records as they tune up for their season openers. The cagers open up at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 13 against Belmont in a non-league affair while the Lion sextet begins its Suburban League campaign against Wayland at 2:45 p.m., Dec. 10 at Loring Rink in Framingham.

The cagers with a dismal 2-18 record last year will have an experienced starting fiv. Seniors Rick Ginsburg and Captain Steve Cooper will fill the forward spots. Another senior Bob Whittlesey will make the jump from JV to varsity as a guard. Two juniors, center Kenney Isaacs and guard Lee Casty, come from a fantastically successful sophomore team which ran up 14 wins against only two losses in the 1965-66 season.

Coach Warren Bechtold's men have displayed exciting basketball even in the preseason scrimmages. On Dec. 2 against Needham the Lions roared back from a 16 point deficit to overcome their foes 66-64 in an overtime victory.

In the first half, the Lion attack faltered as Needham's zone defense forced them to make passing and driving mistakes. South's outside shooting was off too as they only hit 10 out of 25 shots. At the end of the half Needham led 39-25.

The second half held a different story. As South shooting warmed up, a tenacious South defense cooled Needham off. It all added up to a 60-60 tie at the end of regulation time.

In three minute overtime, the Lions jumped out to take the lead for the first time in the game, 64-60. However, since South was over the limit in the foul department, Needham tied the score with four free throws. Key rebounds by Kenny Isaacs and Steve Cooper gave the Lions the ball back Cooper took a jump shot at the buzzer and missed-but he was fouled. He sank both to give the Lions the game.

Strong performances by Lee Casty and Steve Gordon, who is still fighting for a starting spot, were instrumental in the win. Cooper was the high scorer with 27 points while Gordon had 13. Rick Ginsburg didn't play because of a bad ankle. He's expected back by Monday.

Th Lion pucksters should also improve last season's 4-8-1 record. Hot off a spring hockey season, South will have a lot of returning talent. Football brothers Frank and Tom Rezzuti and junior Biff Wisner will form the first line. The defense is solid with assistant captains Mark Holland and Jack Dunnigan, along with senior Gil Esquivel returinng The other lines still aren't set.

The skaters have had problems with pre-season practices. In previous years the school would buy ice-time after school for the team at the Tabor rink in Needham. However, the city of Needham bought the rink. Schools in Needham have first priority, and this eliminated the possibility of practicing after school.

This left the team with two alternatives: They could either practice at 5:30 in the morning at Tabor or get only limited ice-time at the new MDC rink in Newton or at Boston College's McCue Forum.

The team chose the latter. This means that the team will have only six hours on the ice before the season opener. Meanwhile, the team runs after school a couple of days a week to keep in shape.

Soccer Clubs In Second Tie; To Play Again

Even though they played two 15-minute overtime periods, the Newton Soccer Club and the Sacred Heart Azzuri couldn't break a 1-1 tie Sunday in a National Amateur Cup relay at Hawthorn Field. The game will be replayed for the third time later this month.

Two weeks ago the two teams tied 2-2 when they met for the first time in National Amateur Cup play. In that game, Sacred Heart was forced to come from behind to tie.

Sunday it was Newton's turn to come from behind. Newton's Vin McCafferty scored with less than six minutes to play to knot the tally. McCafferty took a throw-in from Joe Schultz and beat goalie Mike Bastianelli from in close with a perfectly-placed head shot.

A few minutes earlier, Sacred Heart had taken its 1-0 lead when Marco DiDuca, booting a loose ball from 30 yards, found the range to the right of Newton goalie Frank Kodas, Kodas appeared to have an easy save but the ball took a tricky bounce and trickled into the net.

Purpose And Goals Of PTA Is Council Meeting Theme

A discussion of PTA purpose and goals was the main topic before the PTA Council at its meeting Thursday, December 1, at the Division of Instruction, President Bernard I. Kaplan, presiding. What are the PTA's goals? How well does it serve the community and the schools?

Tables and chairs were shifted and the Council divided into small discussion groups, six or eight to a table. The noise level rose to a vibrant hum, as Mrs. Carol Heine, moderator and discussion leader moved from group to group.

After a short time, Mrs. Heine called for a report from each table. The groups felt that school PTA's were forums for discussion on many levels and in many directions on programs and problems. They felt that PTA fundraising in moderation was necessary for the support it gave to the fine creative arts programs, school libraries, and individual school needs.

They hoped that teachers would play a more active role in the PTA, and that the PTA Council would play a more active role in disseminating information to the community. They felt that the PTA Council could do more fact-finding on issues concerning children and provide more direct aid and stimulation for the local PTAs.

So many ideas and suggestions were forthcoming that President Kaplan designated Mrs. Herbert Schilder as Chairman of a committee to study them and make recommendations to the Council at its next meeting in February.

The PTA Council by a closely divided vote of 15 to 12 passed a resolution advising the School Committee of the need to continue and improve the quality of public education in Newton. The text of the resolution is as follows:

Whereas the Newton School Committee is now deliberating its budget for 1967; and

Whereas concern has been expressed that the budget increase be limited to minimize the effect on the tax rate; and

Whereas the quality of the Newton School system is directly affected by the budgetary decisions of the School Committee;

Therefore, in full recognition of the necessity for fiscal responsibility, the Newton Council of Parent Teachers Associations, expresses its concern that the budgetary decisions of the School Committee be guided primarily by the need to continue and to improve the high quality of public education in the City of Newton.

JOHN YOVICSIN

Harvard Coach To Head Heart Fund Campaign

John Yovicsin, head football coach at Harvard, will serve as general chairman of the Greater Boston 1967 Heart Fund drive, which includes Newton, it is announced today by Dr. George S. Kurland, president of the Greater Boston Chapter, Massachusetts Heart Association. As chairman, Yovicsin, who underwent heart surgery in 1965, will lead 30,000 Heart Fund volunteers of 46 communities in the annual February drive to raise funds to fight heart disease.

"We are honored to have John Yovicsin as our leader," Dr. Kurland said. "We know he will inspire our Heart Fund teams with the courage and tenacity which have made him an outstanding football coach and good citizen."

Yovicsin, whose heart surgery corrected a condition which may have resulted from an old injury in his high school or college football years, said: "Anyone who owes as much as I do to heart research feels the urgency of making an all-out drive to beat America's Number One health enemy. Heart disease still is a winning opponent. But through the Heart Fund's continuing research and education, we can raise the score and win the game."

This is Yovicsin's 10th season as Harvard head football coach. He is the 1966 New England Coach of the Year, and won that honor also in 1961; his teams tied for the Ivy League title in both years. A graduate of Gettysburg College, Yovicsin coached at Pennsylvania high schools and at Gettysburg before coming to Harvard.

Rep. Mann Filing Bill For An Air Pollution Probe

"An immediate investigation of the causes of the air pollution encountered throughout the greater Boston area in recent weeks is essential before recurrences become so frequent that they get out of hand," Rep. Theodore D. Mann (R) of Newton declared today. He is filing a bill to authorize such a study and investigation by a legislative commission, he said.

"When established, the commission should secure hospital records so that a compilation can be made of the number of persons requiring hospitalization because of the air pollution problem," Rep. Mann contended. "Consideration should also be given to joining in a compact with the other states on the Eastern seaboard to attack the sources of the problem in a united effort without further delay.

"I am sure that the medical profession, responsible state agencies, and leaders of industry can be called upon to help in our search for effective measures to end this constantly continuing menace for all time," Rep. Mann concluded.

Art To Brighten Hospital Rooms For Patients

Mrs. Sanford A. Kaplan and Mrs. Alfred Karofsky, both of Chestnut Hill, are concerned with the Brookline Hospital's "Patient Morale Through Art" project being readied by its Woman's Auxiliary. Its goal is happier surrounding for the hospitalized.

Proceeds from an Art show and sale on Dec. 14 and 15 will help pay for laminated paintings that Auxiliary volunteers will distribute to all patient rooms. The sale, which will be held at the hospital, 165 Chestnut St., from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., will feature work of art by renowned artists. The art is being provided by the Marths Ross Gallery and Gallery of World Art.

Art carts loaded with laminated works of art will be wheeled from room to room and patients may select what they wish to have hung.

Salary -

The June issue of Patterns, the organ of the Newton school system, stated that "in a recent study of 17 suburban school systems in the country, Newton ranked near the bottom of every salary scale".

Critics of the rising cost of Newton education have stressed the vagueness of Patterns' affirmation. And Superintendent Charles E. Brown has conceded on other occasions that Newton is not a typical suburban community "like Scarsdale, N. Y.," but rather a small city with a much broader spectrum of problems that purely residential suburban communities.

In an apparent reply to accusations of vagueness, the recent report, which was part of a series of studies in preparation for action on the total school budget, lists salary schedules for specific Greater Boston Communities.

Some of the figures examined show that a Newton teacher with a bachelor's degree receives a lower starting salary than a teacher with similar training in Cambridge, Lexington and Winchester. The starting pay for a Newton teacher with a bachelor's degree is the same as that given in Quincy, Weston and Boston, which was not included in the study. (In Boston, unlike most suburban communities, teachers must take an examination to be ranked on a list pending permanent appointment.)

At the sixth step on the salary schedule for teachers with a bachelor's degree, which is reached upon completion of five years of work in the school system, the Newton wage is topped by Boston, Brookline, Cambridge Needham, Quincy, Wayland and Weston.

The Newton salary policy, however, tends to reward teachers who remain in the system. While Newton increases salaries more slowly than some other communities, it gives automatic raises over a longer period of time. Of the communities mentioned in the study, only Belmont and Winchester have a 14-step schedule like Newton.

Quincy teachers with a bachelor's degree reach their maximum pay at the start of their 10th year of work. Cambridge, which offers the best salaries in the Greater Boston area for the first 12 years but stops its schedule of raises at the 12th step and then is overtaken by Newton.

Newton teachers, who have their bachelor's or master's degree, eventually reach the highest salary paid in the Greater Boston area to persons with their respective qualifications. However the study shows that teachers who have gone on to do an extra year of graduate study after obtaining their master's degree, receive higher terminal salaries in Brookline, Lexington and Weston than in Newton.

The Garden City is exceptional in its effort to reward outstanding teachers by placing them in a higher step in the salary schedule than they would achieve through seniority alone. Excellent Newton teachers may also receive as many as six pay raises after reaching the normal maximum.

However, the personnel policies committee report stated that only about 15 per cent of the total Newton instructional staff received such notable service awards during the present year. The school administration and the School Committee must review all such awards each year, whether given for the first time or continued.

Newtonites Have Prominent Part In Athenian Summer

Greece, both ancient and modern, will come alive for some one hundred students from both independent and public secondary schools when they spend an Athenian Summer in Athens under the sponsorship of Pierce College.

This new approach to international understanding, under the direction of Georgia Theophillis Noble, assistant professor of Education at Simmons College, is planned for both boys and girls between 16 and 18.

The six-week program will be on the new Pierce College campus on Mount Hymettus at Aghia Paraskevi. Young Athenians and Americans will have an opportunity to meet, study, talk, and to share recreational facilities. There will be concerts and plays at the Athens Festival, museum trips, and extensive travel throughout Greece. A sports program will include swimming, tennis, basketball, and Greek folk dancing.

The curriculum will include Modern Greek Conversation, Greek Literature in Translation, Greek History, Classical Art, and English Conversation. Prominent Athenians, as well as alumnae and Greek friends of Pierce, will take part in informal discussions with the students. The group will be ably supervised by an outstanding faculty and group leaders who will accompany the students from New York.

Pierce College, now in its ninety-first year, was founded in Smyrna as the American Collegiate Institute and has many alumnae in the United States. The college has a distinguished Board of Trustees, and a special board of advisers has been appointed for the summer program. Franklin P. Hoyt, 279 Fuller street, West Newton, and Loomis Patrick, 22 Crestwood road, West Newton, are both on the Board of Trustees. Dr. Charles E. Brown, superintendent of schools in Newton, is on the Board of Advisers.

Sun Exhausts Pool Chlorine

CHICAGO (UPI) — Direct sunlight has a deteriorating effect on chlorine in swimming pools, a pool trade association reports.

The ultraviolet radiation given off by sunlight adversely affects the chlorine, said Donald L. Doughty, Lafayette, Calif., vice president of Aquatech, Inc.

Doughty said there are 500,000 permanent, in-the-ground residential pools in the nation, not to mention the thousands of public pools.

The amount of chlorine needed to maintain a pool properly varies with bather load, water temperature, geography, weather, plants, and the amount of sun striking the water surface, he said.

Water that is too warm as a result of heat from the sun or the pool water heater exhausts chlorine and encourages the growth of algae, Doughty said.

Basbas -

the budget of each municipal department were raised one-third for 1967, the city's tax rate would jump about $24.

The Mayor also observed that other city employees seeking pay raises, are influenced by the increases granted to school personnel and that other department heads are influenced in their budget requests by what the School Committee does.

Basbas called for a careful review of the suggested boost in the non-salary items.

In answer to a query by Committeeman Edwin Hawkridge, Director Gilleland explained that the $2,431,553 figure made public at the meeting represented a tally of total requests of principals and division heads, not a recommendation by the Superintendent of Schools.

The School Committee reserved Superintendent Charles E. Brown's recommendations on the requests for an executive session, from which the public and press were excluded. However, School Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman declared that the School Board would discuss and vote on the non-salary items in open session.

The $600,000 increase would, on paper at least, use up the better part of the $1 million rise to which the Mayor would like to limit the 1967 Newton School operation budget. Later in the evening, before leaving for an aldermanic meeting, Mayor Basbas repeated his plea to scrutinize the increases with the utmost care.

Mayor Basbas is an ex-officio member of the School Committee and can vote on all items. As Mayor, he has no further power to reduce school expenditures.

Other School Committee members brought out that some of the accounts discussed have revenue which reverts not to the school department but to the City treasury. In these cases, the expenditures must be included on the school budget, but the tax rate is not affected to the extent the school budget would seem to indicate, it was stated.

For instance, the school department bears the entire cost of the contract with the company which handles pupil transportation, but returns from fares are turned over to the City treasury. An MBTA subsidy will mean an additional saving to Newton taxpayers of $77,000.

Similarly, the budget for Newton Technical High School includes money for automotive and electronic parts. This money is largely recovered and a service fee is charged in work done for the general public, but these sums also revert to the City's general fund.

Likewise, the federal government subsidizes a number of programs, some of them completely, but gives its subsidy as a reimbursement on money already spent, so that some provision must be included in the school budget for such expenditures.

School Committeeman Hawkridge raised the possibility of having a "revolving account" in the areas into which money taken for services rendered so that funds received would be channeled directly into the corresponding accounts, in order that budget figures would reflect the true deficit. Business director Gilleland responded that in the athletic program and in the cafeteria fund the school system does have revolving accounts but that Massachusetts law does not allow them in general.

Several areas of the budget came under fire as committee members explored ways of paring the budget.

Committeeman Hawkridge challenged Mayor Basbas' disapproval of the pupil transportation costs, asking whether the Mayor would be willing to present a motion for abolition of the existing service. The transportation will cost Newton $232,000 by the end of 1966 and the estimated expense for 1967 is $384,800. This represents an increase of $150,000, the largest included in the non-salary estimates.

A jump from $48,000 to $130,000 has been requested for the cafeteria account. It was disclosed that the cafeteria service charges 25 cents for a hot meal which is eaten by about 44 per cent of Newton students, for a total of 600,000 meals a year. A Federal and State subsidy of about 9 cents per meal is given.

Gilleland listed tardy federal and State payments of subsidies, a proposed increase in the minimum wage and mounting food costs as causes for proposed increases in the cafeteria fund. He indicated that any increase in meal prices not directly related to a change in the kind or amount of food offered could jeopardize payment of the subsidies.

Committee member Vincent P. Stanton of Ward 7 observed that while the driver training program conducted by the Newton high schools is laudable, it also brings financial benefit to the families of students since passing the driver training course earns lower insurance rates for teen-age drivers.

"Driver training is basically a commercial service. Also it brings immediate, real and measurable benefits to the families involved," Stanton said.

Chairman Berman, in response to the suggestion that the driver training program be made to pay for itself, affirmed that the program offers a "whole philosophy of safety" and therefore has a role in the schools. It was also pointed out that automobile manufacturers provide five cars a year for the program, virtually free of charge, which they would not do if the program were put on a commercial basis.

Berman himself questioned the expenditure involved in printing and mailing "Patterns," the organ of the Newton school system. Ward 1 Committeeman Francis P. Frazier replied that the School Committee has been striving to open channels of communication with parents. Public relations "demands money, and it is money well spent," Frazier declared.

Chairman Berman also advanced the idea that a flat rate might be charged organizations which use the school buildings after school hours. At present, it is caiculated that about $12,200 is used to light and heat buildings during after-school meetings. These organizations at present only have to pay a fee for the building custodians. Berman suggested that waivers could be granted to groups unable to afford the charge.

Committee members Mintz, Frazier and Hawkridge objected strongly to the suggestion. Mrs. Mintz maintained that the largest single user of school buildings are Parent-Teacher Associations, which the School Committee ought to encourage as an "appropriate extension" of the buildings' normal use, according to Mrs. Mintz.

Frazier said that many youth organizations operate on such slender budgets that any charge at all is prohibitive for them. Hawkridge recalled that in previous years the School Committee had reached an impasse over the question of discriminating between organizations which merited waivers and organizations which did not.

Committeeman Stanton added that the estimated figure did not even represent one 10th of one per cent of total expenditures for non-salary items. The cost of the use of school buildings for civic activities is one of two items for which no change has been suggested for 1967.)

Stanton vocied some surprise at the fact that $50,000 was allotted for school libraries, since the PTA's usually support these libraries. Superintendent Brown explained that the Newton schools are attempting to develop basic libraries. "We don't believe we should depend on PTA support for this," Brown said. He noted that the elementary schools do enjoy PTA support for their libraries.

Business directer Gilleland asserted that the Newton schools followed the patterns of the textbook industry. He said that while schools have not stopped using textbooks they are phasing out, and putting more emphasis on the use of library books. Gilleland estimated that about 10 per cent of the library money was spent on audio-visual material and the rest on books.

School Committeemen Stanton and Hawkridge demanded to know the effects of an announced Boston Edison Company rate reduction on the Newton schools' electric bill. An increase of $26,000 in school department's expenditures for electricity had been calculated.

Gilleland replied that the business office of the school department has not yet contacted the Edison Company to obtain a projection of next year's expenses, but that he would be unwilling to count on the advertised rate cuts until they actually became effective. He also stated that one new use of electricity in Newton schools is the electric heating of six portable classrooms at the F. A. Day Junior High School.

Chairman Berman and Committeeman Hawkridge questioned the appropriation recommended for transportation allowances. In the cases of some administrative officials there is a flat yearly payment, and it was requested that the allowance be increased from $560 to $750 a year.

A special account in the budget has been opened under the heading of "Out-of State Travel." The Instruction account, which is the most costly of the 17 headings on the non-salary budget, includes travel expenses for consultant services.

Superintendent Brown defended the numerous allowances for travel expenses, saying that the flat rates for administrative officials were less expensive than those based on mileage. He explained that the out-of-State travel allowances, which may be doubled for 1967, are used for recruitment of new teachers. He finally termed the consultant services a "most useful source of help" and stated that "Every segment of our curriculum is in the process of change."

Also listed on the budget were two special items, a $40,000 request for data processing and a $300,000 sum for an elementary school lunch program in the event that the single session is adopted. These expenditures would elevate the non-salary budget by almost $1 million.

Re-elected Hospital Officers

Bottle-Green Tux May Adorn Man Of Future

By Walter Logan
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jan Ross got to dipping into the future the other day to see what turn men's clothes would take next. And since he was calling the turn he came up with such items as a thigh-length walking suit, a bottle green tuxedo and a firemen's red sports jacket.

Ross didn't design the new items himself. He is president of Society Brand Clothes and has a lot of designers available. He told them what he wanted, urged them to use a little imagination themselves. They did and the result is a line that may appear in the shops — late in 1967.

"I think that our affluent way of life subconsciously dictates new outlets," Ross said. "One of them is clothing. We have lost the taboo of being called the well-dressed man or carefully-attired gentlemen. The reflection of masculinity and virility does not have to be typified by carelessness (to the point of being sloppy).

"We have more time and more money to think of our attire needs. The result is a much more diversified wardrobe than in the past."

"Men express their individuality now not only by the type of music they listen to and the type of shows they attend, but also in the way they dress. Hence, the birth of a garment like the walking suit which is stylized apparel perfect for the weekend or after work . . . to take a casual stroll . . . a good transitional outfit between summer and winter when the topcoat isn't quite necessary."

The gentlemen's walking suit was shown in a gray glenplaid with black buttons. The jacket was an eight button double breasted model with peaked lapels, two deep 11½" vents in the back. What made it different was the length — down to mid-thigh. It was shown with plain tapered pants. Another was slightly shorter in a fine check with a military stand-up doughboy collar.

"Great individuality can be expressed in dinner wear," Ross said. "Men don't have to look like they come out of the same mold. Color is becoming prevalent in dinner suits — blue, navy, burgundy, green, the Paisley patterns are very popular in dinnerwear."

To prove it he showed a tuxedo in bottle green mohair with a velvet shawl facing on a peaked lapel. There were velvet cuffs and pocket flaps and two deep vents. The pants had a built-in cummerbund and a velvet stripe down the side.

Other Creattions

Some of Ross' other future creations:

— A bright red one button dacron and wool hopsack sports jacket with two slashed pockets and a ticket pocket finished off with double besom. It was shown with shepherd check slacks in red and black.

— A double breasted sports jacket in a huge plaid with three slashed and flapped pockets including the breast pocket. It has four buttons set close together with narrow lapels and was shown in olive with a lighter over-plaid and coordinated slacks.

— A double breasted gabardine topcoat with four dark buttons against a light fabric. The flyfront was saddle stitched; flare and a single deep vent gave it a look of the future.

— A one button suit in gunmetal with peaked lapels, two slanted unflapped pockets, sharply nipped in at the waist and with two vents, modified square shoulders and no breast pocket. It future look came from the 90 per cent wool and 10 per cent silk combination.

His current line? Well, it's the Matador Collection with squared concave shoulders in 1, 2 and 3 buttons with emphasis on a bigger-appearing chest area. Jackets were cut with very little shape, a high gorge (not much shirt shows) and notched lapels.

Aid For Cancer Research Elects Four Newton Women

Four Newton women have been elected officers in the Aid for Cancer Research organization dedicated to the fight against the disease.

Officers this year are Mrs. Bernard Frank, president; Mrs. Eugene Rubin, vice-president; Mrs. Irving Goodman, vice-president; Mrs. William Aronson, treasurer; Mrs. Joe Goodman, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Leo Sontag, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Alden Zieman, recording secretary.

Aid for Cancer Research is a group of 27 Greater Boston women who know through experience that strength in dedication is worth far more than strength in numbers. Small in the size of membership, it is large in accomplishments. Established 19 years ago, the organization has played a strong role in acquiring urgently needed funds to be used to advance the fight against cancer.

Their tireless efforts in behalf of research have supported innumerable programs at local hospitals and medical schools. Over $350,000 has been raised in the past years and used to aid research, without delay.

All requests are first approved by the eminent doctors of the Medical Advisory Board, consisting of Dr. Francis D. Moore, Surgeon-in-chief, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital; Dr. Sidney Farber, Children's Medical Center; Dr. Joseph Aub, Mass. General Hospital; Dr. Shields Warren, Newton, New England Deaconess Hospital; and Dr. Peter Mosden, Mass. Memorial Hospital.

Whether it be for a piece of equipment, scholarship assistance, or a fellowship, when the need for money to continue research work is both urgent and immediate, that is when Aid for Cancer Research is called upon. The speed with which a request can be investigated and granted, makes this organization unique. There is also a special fund used to grant cancer research beds which enables doctors and scientists to study and help cancer patients at no cost to the patients.

It is a local organization and not a chapter of a larger national group. The major fund raising function is the annual luncheon to be held this year on April 10 and 11 at which time an Ad Book is distributed.

Financial aid was given the past year as follows: $5982 to the New England Deaconess Hospital toward a new Chromosome Lab,; $2500 to Harvard School of Dental Medicine for the purchase of precision instruments; $5000 to the Mass. General Hospital for a microprojector; $7000 to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital for a cancer bed, as well as other equipment to local hospitals.

Strength And Weakness Seen In First Year Of Head Start

Head Start programs in Massachusetts during their first year of operation "showed remarkable strengths as well as serious weaknesses. The weaknesses can be eliminated or at least mitigated with desire and planning; the strengths can be built upon."

This is one of many observations made in Head Start in Action, a report just published by the Massachusetts Committee on Children and Youth, following an intensive study of Head Start programs in the state in 1965, when nearly 8,500 children were enrolled in 253 centers, of which Newton is one.

The study, made under a contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity, was directed by Dr. Sarah T. Curwood, now associate professor of sociology at Rhode Island College. Altogether the study team visited 37 centers and interviewed almost 300 persons participating in the program: Directors, teachers, social workers, nurses, parents and neighborhood aides.

The study sought to pinpoint Head Start's weaknesses and make recommendations for eliminating them before they become firmly rooted in what will probably be a continuing program. Evaluations were made in five major areas:

The relationship of Head Start to the larger community and to institutions other than the public school was described as very limited. In many places, too much reliance on public school settings and public school personnel tended to isolate the program, whereas in areas where Head Start was conceived as part of a broad-based community action agency's attack on poverty, active participants might include business firms, churches, public and private health and welfare agencies, secondary schools, colleges and universities.

In general, the study team reported, the program succeeded in reaching many of the poor for whom it was intended, although most families responded favorably only to a personal approach. One major obstacle to recruiting poor children for Head Start was the stigma of poverty attached to it. Parents resented being identified as "poor" and sometimes greeted recruiters with "We don't want a handout."

The overall atmosphere for a child's growth experience was considered good. The study staff attributed this to the fact that groups were small with one adult to every five or six children. Thus, an average group of 16 had three regularly assigned adult workers, which promoted "highly personalized relationships . . . between children and teachers as well as between parents and teachers . . . Social and learning skills were fostered. Health and social needs were often detected even though referrals were not always made nor treatment always available." Also, it was found in the study that the few men who worked in the program provided an enriching experience for the children, particularly those who came from fatherless homes.

The involvement of parents, one of the most important goals of the Head Start program, left much to be desired, offering little opportunity for either parents or children to continue the learning experience in the home. But where this important aspect of the program was successfully carried out, the study found that parents were meeting with professionals and learning about nutrition, dentistry, child care, mental health and consumer economics. "Many went on trips and learned new things along with their children."

Most of the paid workers in the program were neighborhood residents, often mothers of children too old for Head Start or members of Neighborhood Youth Corps. Other neighborhood participants were fathers and older brothers and sisters, who served as volunteers. The study found a need for both increasing and improving the training given all these helpers.

Prior to publication of the report, its findings were submitted to the Office of Economic Opportunity for evaluating the first year's work and planning future programs.

Copies of Head Start in Action may be obtained at $1.00 each from the Massachusetts Committee on Children and Youth, 9 Newbury street, Boston. 02116.

Rabbi Stern Is Honored At Reception

A gala gathering of community leaders, parents, teachers, rabbis and friends of the Solomon Schechter Day School attended a reception last Wednesday (Nov. 16) in honor of Rabbi and Mrs. Joseph B. Stern. Rabbi Stern is the new principal of the Day School.

Special feature of the evening was the serving of various authentic Israeli dishes prepared by members of the faculty and parents of the Solomon Schechter Day School pupils.

A program of folk songs of many lands was presented by folk singer and guitarist Shulamith, a native of Israeli.

Rabbi Paul Katz, spiritual leader of Temple Shalom of Medford, was chairman of the evening and opened the program. Rabbi Zev Nelson, of Temple Emeth, South Brookline, Chairman of the Board of Directors, officially welcomed Rabbi Stern on behalf of the community. Harry Lakin, president of the school, discussed its rapid growth and expressed confidence that under the leadership of its new principal it will become one of the outstanding Jewish day schools in the country.

Rabbi Stern in acknowledging the tribute paid to him expressed his gratitude for the challenge and responsibility given to him.

"I am firmly convinced," he said, "that the Jewish day school offers the best hope for developing future Jewish leadership in America. Our school aims to develop the total personality of the child with an integrated program of Hebrew and Jewish subjects on the highest level attainable.

"Our excellent faculty and friends who have devoted themselves to the school in the past have significantly advanced us toward that goal," Rabbi Stern stated.

The Solomon Schechter Day School is the only Conservative day school in the Greater Boston area. It is sponsored by the New England Region of the United Synagogue of America and Rabbinical Assembly. At present it enjoys the use of the school facilities of Temple Rayim, Newton, and has a student body from the entire metropolitan area.

Basketball Jamboree At Our Lady's

Our Lady's high school basketball team jumped to a commanding 20-7 lead in the first period and were never headed as it recorded a 56-44 win in the future game of an "Alumni Tripleheader" in the school gym last Sunday night.

Pat Connaughton with five points and Charlie Creeden, Tim Sullivan and Jay Feeley, all with four, were key performers in the first-period spurt. Andy Nicoletta, Boston College senior who graduated in '63 from Our Lady's, led the Alumni with 10 pts.

Newton policeman Mario Marino dropped in the winning basket with less than three minutes left to pilot Our Lady's 1937 team to a 17 to 15 win over the Varsity "B". John Donovan led the "B" group with five points.

Roberta Ranley led the way with eight points to spearhead the girls' team to a 30-26 win over the Alumnae. Irene McLean, class of '64, was the Alumnae's leading scorer with 10 points.

Proceeds Of Cat Show To Help Charities

The domestic cat—that panther of the hearth—forgets mousing for a weekend and puts his best paw forward for charity, when the Boston Cat Show has its 61st annual exhibition Dec. 10 and 11 at Horticultural Hall.

The Massachusets Society for the Prevention of Crulty to Animals which owns and operates the Angell Memorial Hospital, the Animal Rescue League of Boston and the Boston Cat Club, Inc., are showing some 300 cats of every known breed to raise money for charity, most notably for children's hospitals.

There are at least 21 million cats in the United States. America's favorite pet, the alley cat, plays a big part in the show. He is called a "household pet" and is judged right along with the fancy breeds.

The breeds at the show represent every known variety, some 89, in fact. Everything from the exotic curly-coated Rex to the rare Russian Blue to the Abyssinian who traces his origins back to the sacred Egyptian cats Plus Persians and Siamese in every color. The breeders have developed not only sea-point Siamese, but red-point, blue-point, lilac-point, chocolate point, frost-point and tortie-point.

The exhibition and judging lasts from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, December 10, andn from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday, December 11.

Hike -

However, when it is brought up again — expected in about two weeks — five or more aldermen must object to force a second postponement.

In other financial matters, the Board approved a request by the secretary of the Traffic Commission for $30,000 to employ traffic consultants for a traffic study in West Newton square, Newton Corner and Newton Centre square. It was suggested that a time limit be put on the study to insure fast action.

A request by the City Engineer for $3040 to cover awards in land-taking for widening corners of Lagrange and Vine streets was also approved. The work is to be done with Chapter 90 money, the state paying half, and the city and county one-fourth each.

Also unanimously approved was a request from the street commissioner for $9616 to cover the cost of curbing at the new Rumford avenue incinerator, scheduled to go into operation at the end of December.

In other Board action, two Traffic Committee recommendations were approved. One bans parking at all times on Sheridan street, West Newton, on the east side from Derby street to Grant street. The other calls for a ban on parking on the southwesterly side of Trowbridge street, Newton Centre, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily except Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays.

Four items were held for Traffic Commission recommendations: A request for a stop sign at the intersection of Tyler terrace and Pleasant street, Newton Centre, for the protection of pupils of the Mason - Rice School. A protest by Herbert Abramson et als against the no parking or possible metering of Watertown street from Adams street to Crafts street, Newtonville. A request for no parking from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on the southeast side of Washington street from Commonwealth avenue to Myrtle street, West Newton. A resolution by residents of the Centre street, Newton, area for installation of pedestrian-access lights in cooperation with the Turnpike Authority in the intersection with Newton Public Library and Vernon Court Hotel to the Elks Building.

Three items were denied: A request by Mrs. Elinor Selame that the one-hour parking ban be lifted in front of her place of business at 2330 Washington street, Newton Lower Falls. (The denial was recommended by the Traffic Commission). A recommendation by the Mayor for a study of heavy trucking on Centre street and consideration of an ordinance procluding heavy trucking and recommending alternate routes. (It was explained that this suggestion had been made many times, but that alternate routes were non-existent). Raymond Glavin's request for no parking in the area of 29 Tower road. (Tower road is a private way, it was explained, and there is no authority to ban private way parking.)

Held for further study were: Agnes N. Earl's request that the Traffic Commission take steps to protect the lives of persons obliged to cross the intersection of St. James street and Charlesbank road, Newton. (The Commission recommended that two residents of the area come to a meeting to clarify the request.) S. Giampapa's request for consideration of hazards at the intersection of Lowell avenue, Homer street and Commonwealth avenue. (On this, the Traffic Commission recommended consideration of a new traffic island.) A request for pedestrian control traffic devices at the intersection of Lexington and River streets, West Newton.

The following matters, recommended by the committee on Franchises and Licenses, were accepted by the Board.

A request for an additional public automobile by Alice D. Wilson, who does business at Holden's Taxi Service, 50 Union street, Newton Centre.

A request by the Street Commissioner that John Glynn, 28 Beach street, Newton, and Richard McGarry, 30 Wiltshire road, Newton, be given licenses as official weighers at the Rumford avenue incinerator.

Applications for dormitory licenses approved were those of Lasell Junior College, Andover Newton Theological School, Fessenden School, and Mt. Ida Junior College.

Approval was given applications by the New England Telephone Company to put cables underground in the areas of Brookline and Vine streets, and Dudley road, to serve the present residents and 100 single residences that are to be developed. There was some objection to this voiced at the Aldermen's meeting two weeks ago, but the company had agreed to restrictions assuring that abutters would not be inconvenienced during the operation.

Recommendations for a new ordinance made by the committee on Franchises and Licenses, were referred to the committee on Claims and Rules:

1 — That all presently metered taxicabs shall continue to be metered and all newly licensed taxicabs shall be metered.

2 — That taxicab meters in metered taxicabs must be used except with the consent of the passenger, when a flat rate may be charged.

3 — Require that all taxicab meters be inspected by the City Sealer annually prior to the June police inspection of taxicabs.

4 — That no person having charge of a taxi shall take up or carry any passenger after the taxi has been occupied or engaged by a prior passenger, without the consent of such prior passenger.

Single Sessions Request Denied

A request by a group of Newton parents for an early public meeting on the proposal for a single session in Newton public schools has been turned down.

The parents had sought a meeting with the members of the School Committee, the School Superintendent and the chairman of the group studying the advisability of single school sessions.

They had asked for the meeting in order to ascertain the progress being made by the Study Commission and in order to raise any questions about the group's findings to date.

School Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman and School Superintendent Charles E. Brown said they did not feel a public meeting would serve any useful purpose before a scheduled poll is made of parental opinion on school sessions.

Dr. Brown said the questionnaire will be sent out later this week.

Woodsmen Spare 'Largest' Tree

GRANT GROVE, Calif.(UPI) — "The nation's Christmas tree' is a towering Sequoia redwood that is believed to be the largest living thing in the world.

It is estimated it would take three and one half miles of tinsel and 3,000 light bulbs to decorate properly the 267-foot high General Grant Tree in Kings Canyon Nattional Park.

The stately monarch, which already was 30 centuries old when Christ was born, is the nation's only Christmas shrine.

It was formally dedicated as "the nation's Christmas tree" in 1926 by the U. S. Department of the Interior. Each year since, thousands have made the drive to the site of the tree in the Sierra Nevada range east of Fresno.

The idea for the Christmas shrine came from a small child, who looked up at the towering redwood in 1923 and asked her mother how many lights it would take to decorate it. Her question was overheard, and a two-year campaign was begun to have the tree dedicated.

Architecture Called Absurd

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A church leader says the competitive scramble to build churches "bigger, higher and more daring than the church across the street," has led to a church architecture that is gauche and absurd.

That's the way the Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglass, executive vice president, Board for Homeland Ministries, United Church of Christ, put it in a speech here.

The Rev. Dr. Douglass said "impressiveness has become the criteria for new buildings." He said churches "are bedevilled by the allurement of novelty for novelty's own sake and sensationalism."

"Only the operators of funeral parlors are more weird, pretentious and vulgar than church building committees," he said.

Minitrains Helping To Make Washington Tours

By ROY McGHEE
United Press Internation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Constitution avenue used to be an open sewer and the stench sometimes forced President Lincoln to ride to the suburbs to get a night's sleep . . .

The Pan American Union is the oldest international organization in existence . . .

The White House has 122 rooms and 20 baths . . .

The Hope Diamond is on display at the Smithsonian Institution . . .

These are a few of the things one learns if he takes a ride on the capital's newest tourist attraction — National Park Service minitrains.

The minitrains will be familiar to tourists who visited the New York World's Fair. Park Service has acquired seven of them for an experiment in improving tourist services in Washington, which attracts more visitors each year than any other place in the nation.

The Capital offers such a bewildering number and variety of attractions that the visitor is ofen overwhelmed. But a great many of the sites, fortunately, are along the Mall stretching from the Capitol building to the Lincoln Memorial. A great many others are along the transept arm of a giant cross, bisecting the mall and leading from the White House to the Jefferson Memorial.

The minitrains permit a tourist to take a short (about an hour and a half) orientation trip along both arms of the cross. Park Service guides indicate points of interest. They enliven their monologues with such esoteric bits of information as the fact that the Bureau of Engraving prints $30 million worth of currency a day and a dollar bill has a 16-month life exptcetancy.

The tourist can jump off the train anywhere he pleases and get the full course, say at the Freer Galler of oriental art, or the aerospace museum, where Lindberg's Spirit of St. Louis dangles from the ceiling like a chandelier.

The minitrains have not met with universal favor. Washington cab drivers hate them, and frequently yell unseemly epithets when encountering 10-cent-a-ride open-air vehicles. The hackers have even picketet the White House in protest.

The Park Service says it is only conducting an "experiment" with the minitrains this fall. But if the service meets with general acceptance, it probably will license a concessionaire to operate them next year. From the response so far, this seems very likely to happen.

Departure point for the trains is the Washington Monument, the 555-foot obelisk dominating the Washington skyline. One route leads up the Mall to the Capitol building. On the right is the mammoth Department of Agriculture. (The building is so long, the guide says, because Theodore Roosevelt wanted a long building; Congress wanted a short one and refused to appropriate money for a long one; Roosevelt took the money and built two wings, leaving a vast open space in the center, whic hwas later filled in.) Next comes the Freer Gallery, the Aircraft Building, Arts and Industries Building, Army Medical Museum and the original Smithsonian buildings erected in 1879. Continuing up the Mall, the minitrains pass the Botanical Gardens, with the most costly office building in the world — the $120 million Rayburn House Office building — looming in the near distance.

On the left of this leg the minitrain goes by the National Archives building (where the original drafts of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence are displayed), The National Gallery of Art and the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History and History an dTechnology. Visible also are the vast complexes of the Federal Triangle — the Departments of Labor, Post Office, Commerce, HEW, Justice, the Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commission.

The other route weaves through the Washington Monument grounds past the Sylvan Theater. The Tidal Basin, which catches the slight tide in the Potomac estuary and keeps the Washington Ship Channel at a constant level, appears on the right.

The basin grounds are planted with more than 700 Japanese cherry trees. Across the basis the train stops briefly at the Jefferson Memorial before recrossing the basin onto a drive flanked by the Potomac on one side and West Potomac Park on the other. (The park, originally a cavalry polo field, was the landing site in 1922 of the first airmail plane from New York to Washington, British diplomats now use it for a cricket field.)

The guide tells the riders about the Erickson statue and the Monitor as the minitrain approaches the Lincoln Memorial. The Lincoln Memorial Bridge to the left leads to Arlington National Cemetery across the river. ("The bridge symbolizes the union of the North and the South after the Civil War," the guids says.)

All eyes turn to catch the magnificence of the Lincoln Memorial as the minitrain circles the vast stone edifice. Abruptly, however, the train is in front of the monument and the guide directs attention to the grandest view in the city — over a reflecting pool up the mall past the Washington Monument to the Capitol.

From that point up Constitution avenue to the Monumen terminal the tour is mostly anti-climax. But if one pays attention to the guide, he will learn the avenue was once a canal carrying sewage; get a view of Constitution Hall and American Red Cross headquarters; see statues of Simon Boliver and Jose Artegas, Uruguay's national hero.

Just before the trips ends, the south lawn of the presidential mansion and the White House itself sweep into sight.

Italy's Children Benefit From Christmas Feud

ROME (UPI)—"Babbo Natale" and the "Befana" are battling it out for Christmas-time supremacy in Italy, and the children are delighted with it all.

It means, in many cases, that they get two sets of toys.

There was a time when Italian children received gifts only on January 6th, the Epiphany of "Day of the Mother and Child." Dispenser of the goodies on that day is the "Befana," a good-hearted witch who uses a broomstick to get around.

But more and more in recent years the "Befana" has had to contend with competition from "Babbo Natale," the Italian equivalent of Santa Claus. His day for being generous with good little children is December 25.

"Babbo Natale" is no newcomer to the Italian scene, but his giving gifts is. It's part of what some Italians consider the "Americanization of Italy."

Italian children like the competition because they are the beneficiaries. The parents?

"I wish either 'Babbo Natale' or the 'Befana' would win," said one Italian father. "This competition is hurting my pocketbook."

Others have a definite preference for who should emerge victorious—Italianists pulling for the "Befana" and internationalists urging Santa Claus on. "The 'Befana,' is our symbol," say chauvinists.

"Santa Claus belongs to the world," is the response.

The two gift givers don't always co-operate with their respective supporters. They were once seen getting out of the same helicopters together.

One of the particularly strong lobby groups for "Befana" are Italian traffic policemen. Like most lobby groups they have a vested interest. Traditionally they receive gifts on January 6, but from motorists and not the "Befana."

The tradition, probably dating back to the days of chariots, dictates that motorists give something to the street policemen—a bottle of wine, a cake, a tie, a pair of socks.

It's very difficult to get a traffic ticket on January 6. And for that matter it's getting more and more difficult to get one on December 25.

Studies Herbs As Cancer Preventative

DALLAS (UPI)—A Southern Methodist University professor says the white man has missed much — including a possible cancer preventative —by not studying the American Indian's heritage more closely.

"They know a lot of tricks, but the white man has never availed himself of their knowledge of herbs and other remedies," says Dr. Jack J. Kilpatrick, a music professor.

Dr. Kilpatrick, who is three-quarters Cherokee, is seeking a possible link between the low incidence of cancer among Indians and their use of herbs and grasses.

He adds the white man might profit in other ways.

"The Cherokee heritage would be of value to the white man today, but anthropologists have never taken the trouble to investigate it," he declared. "They assume there is nothing to investigate.

"The Cherokee social structure should be of interest to the entire world. The aboriginal Cherokee religion, moreover, coincides with Christianity as it was intended to be."

He said cultural value could be derived from Cherokee music, ritualistic expression, literature and poetry.

Busch Stadium Doomed; Site To Be Rec Center

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Old Busch Stadium, formerly Sportsman's Park where such baseball greats as Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby, Stan Musial and Dizzy Dean played ball, is coming down.

The old stadium lasted for 100 years. Both the St. Louis Cardinals and the old St. Louis Browns played their games there. Last Spring, the Cardinals moved out to the new downtown Busch Memorial Stadium, and the Cardinal President August A. Busch, Jr., donated the stadium to the newly organized Herbert Hoover Boys Club.

The Herbert Hoover Boys Club, headed by a list of distinguished citizens, including Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, a Newhouse newspaper, plans to build on the stadium land an athletic and recreational center for underprivileged youngsters.

Professional sports are gone from old Busch. The projects planned for youth range from woodworking to swimming in an indoor pool.

Thrifty Types Ready for Santa

The 15 million members of this save-now-rejoice-later organization averaged savings of $125 each for the year, reports the Christmas Club Corp., which originataed the savings plan in 1910.

Checks totalling $1,882,890,000 are being mailed by 10,000 banks and savings institutions, the corporation reports.

It adds that while members average savings is about $2.50 each per week, some 2.5 million save as much as $5 weekly and an additional 1,350,000 put away $10 or more a week.

Tornadoes Batter U.S.

NEW YORK—A record 898 tornadoes occurred in the United States during 1965, according to the Insurance Information Institute. They took a toll of 299 lives, the highest total since 1953, when 516 persons were killed by these violent storms.

Soup Chips Make Tasteful Snacks

Soup chips are handy to serve as snacks or with soup during the cold winter months. The dough, made ahead, can be frozen and defrosted as needed. Allow about 1½ hours for defrosting at room temperature, or 4 hours in the refrigerator.

Mix together ½ pound of butter, ¼ pound of grated sharp cheddar cheese and ¾ cup of blue cheese (about 4 ounces, crumbled). Add 1 clove of garlic, minced, and 1 tablespoon of chopped parsley. Work in 4 cups of flour with fork or pastry cutter. Shape into 4 rolls, each about 1 inch in diameter and 6 to 7 inches long. Chill before slicing about ⅛ inch thick. Dough may crumble if sliced while fully frozen.

Bake about 6 to 8 minutes or until lightly browned in pre-heated 375-degree oven. Serve hot. Makes about 16 dozen. Wrapped in airtight paper, the dough keeps about 5 to 6 days on a refrigerator shelf, or several months in a freezer.

W'thermen Plan Huddle On Gal Names For Hurricanes

BY THOMAS P. FAZIO
United Press International

MIAMI (UPI) — Some of the nation's leading weathermen will huddle privately in Miami in December to talk about some of their women—namely, Alma, Becky, Celia, Dorothy, Ella, Faith, Greta, Hallie and Inez.

Their "women" of course are tropical storms and hurricanes.

The Hurricane Evaluation Conference Dec. 5-7 will be the third annual one in which weathermen examine any weak points which develop during a hurricane season and try to improve the warning system to the public for the upcoming year. The season runs from June 1 to Nov. 30.

One of the many problems confronting the weathermen this year will be the move underway in the Florida Keys to get them to change the names of storms to something other than women — in order to keep tourist dollars flowing in.

The nation's leading hurricane tracker, Cordon Dunn of the Miami Weather Bureau, says however, he'll oppose that move — mainly on grounds that storms named after women are "attention-getters" and help protect life and property in the Caribbean.

Attending the conference will be weathermen and meterologists from Washington, New Orleans, Boston, San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Miami.

THE CAMPAIGN to strike down the use of women's names began several months ago. The Chambers of Commerce at Marathon and Islamorada called in Dunn to hear complaints from a number of motel and hotel owners.

They claimed that panicky tourists — hearing first reports on radio and television that a tropical storm was brewing perhaps 1,000 miles from the U.S. mainland — would pack their bags and head for home. Others complained of cancellations from as far away as New York and Massachusetts.

The businessmen suggested to Dunn that women's names be used only for hurricane-strength storms — over 74 miles an hour — and that names of tropical storms be withheld from news media until that time.

They also suggested that tropical storms be simply called by letters of the alphabet until they reached hurricane intensity.

Dunn argues that feminine names given the storms from their beginning as mere disturbances until some of them become hurricanes have "real meaning" to residents of the tourist islands.

He said the public should "take a dim view" of keeping news media from knowing beforehand the list of girls' names chosen by weathermen and "I see no real purpose in it."

Dunn said island residents depend on the earliest broadcast advisories for the protection of their lives and property and "the best way to get their attention is to name hurricanes after women."

HE SAID the Miami Weather Bureau not only serves as a warning service to the United States but "we have accepted responsibility for adequately warning Caribbean Islands, the north coast of South America and Central America. The advices also serve maritime, international aviation and military interests."

He said the feminine label to storms — because of their "unpredictability" of moving in any direction — has been popular since the late 1940s when anonymous military forecaster pinned them on Pacific typhoons — "sisters" of the Atlantic hurricanes.

The idea caught on and is now used around the world.

Before that time they were known simply as "Able, Baker, Charlie" etc., in that order to correspond with the alphabet.

Again defending use of the names, Dunn said, "As soon as you name a storm, people sit up and take notice and plan to keep advised until it it evident that the storm will not affect their area.

"This is true and this is the reason why they are so named — so that people will pay attention to the advices." History has shown that seven out of 10 tropical storms develop into hurricanes.

Many fishermen, he said, depend on such advisories so they can quickly put into the nearest port. "If they start out not knowing the existence of a hurricane, many of them are lost at sea.

When Hurricane Flora swept the Lesser Antilles in 1961, it caught many small boats unaware and "50 were never heard of again after the storm."

Dunn said he has asked for names of persons who have cancelled their vacation trips to the Keys "but I feel that I am not convinced that the situation is as serious as some of the motel owners insist.

"I'm willing to be convinced if my study substantiates — but I am not yet," he said.

Status Symbol Yule Gifts Will Stagger Santa and Bank Account

UPI Women's Editor
By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dreaming of a status symbol Christmas? All you need is money.

For the "visible evidence of superior rank," as author Vance Packard has described the term, is more visible than ever this year in the stores and specialty shops.

How about a ski slope in your own backyard? It's 121 feet long, comes with lights for skiiing at night, and has a plastic surface so there's no snow shoveling involved. Price, $100,000.

Or, for clanking around the house, there are authentic suits of armor, one of them German, circa 1540, with helmet and visor and "all finger, hand elbow joints in working condition," for $6,500.

For her, a necklace, with round, marquise and pear-shaped stones set in platinum, for $170,000.

Or in case this necklace is grabbed up already, a diamond and emerald drop necklace is available at $57,500, and an all diamond bracelet for $18,500.

Also for her, a Leo Ritter-designed Russian sable coat for $25,000 or a Jacques Kaplan-designed chinchilla blanket for $5,000.

Or for the do-it-yourself female, there's a tool chest from France, with decorations in jewels and sequins. Included for $400 are vicuna working gloves and aprons. Or goggles for cycling or askiing, with mink border, are only $12.50.

Tired of the paper shopping bags? One from Portugal, at $250, is beaded with rhinestones and pearls and has a gold frame.

Want to get away from it all? All sorts of charter your own villa plans are offered at a mere $200 a week but for real status, charter an island with accommodations for 35 persons, and a priavte yacht, for $5,000 per week. Or, go on a shooting safari to Africa, 22 days for $3,600.

These are just a few of the many often costly and often off-beat gifts for the person who has everything else, spotted in a tour through stores and Christmas catalogs.

Baby can have in his Christmas collection anything from a set of sterling diaper pins at $5.50 to a carriage blanket, in any fur, ranging in price from $175 to $500 "depending on whether baby was born with a silver spoon in its mouth," said furrier Kaplan.

Or, there's a formal christening apparel set from Spain for $550 and a cradle in white molded wicker from Germany for $295.

For the men, there's a fur "blotter" for the desk, done in either jaguar or leopard, for $1,500.

Or, for him, there's a baby grand piano in white wood, which doesn't play music, but does open up into a cabinet with bar, serving cart, hi-fi and stereo set, record player and television, for $1,850.

For his jacket, there are 14-k gold buttons, at $90, and the "millionaire's diary," bound in black pigskin, stamped in 18-k gold, and including facts on yacht brokers, polo meets, racing stables, and clubs of interest, "to the favored few," for $25.

For the canine seeking status, a split level indoor dog house imported from Italy sells for $119 and a mink blanket cape comes with it for $90.

For the collector, one store is offering the complete Vanity Fair, 32 volumes bound in purple and silver, at $1,000.

There are of course those well-publicized "his" and "hers" side by side bathtubs for $4,000. Also for the house are wink and cashmere Christmas stockings for $50 each or mink and jewel-trimmed Christmas tree decorations sprinkled with silver dust for $10 each.

A French-made silver-plated duck press, resting on marble base, costs $410.

For the gourmet, canned tiger meat from India is prepared in mushroom sauce, at $2.49 a can. Or, there's a complete wheel of Swiss cheese, three feet in diameter, weighing 180 pounds, at 2043.

In the odds and ends department, look for:

— An English taxi cab that survived the World War II lbiz, at $2,000;

— A "nothing rock," a foot wide and 18 inches high, carries the legend ". . . historical marker, on thi sspot, February 29, 1775, absolutely nothing happened," but the plaque can be used instead to carry mottoes, advice or for identification, at $30;

— A "letect-a-drink" which indicates the amount of imbibing done during the holidays or any other time o fthe year, for $5;

— A diet computer, that indicates how much weight one looses or gaines over any given period or after one meal, for $25;

— And cuff links which double as pill boxes, for$5 a pair.

Book Is A Must For Those Interested In South Pacific

BY MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

How does the traveler know if a Polynesian maiden is married or single? Why did President Johnson receive such a warm reception in Pago Pago? Why is it difficult to get rare roast beef in Australia? What head of state lives in Robert Louis Stevenson's house? What's the most swinging city in the southern hemisphere?

Robert S. Kane provides the answers—and a lot more — in his "South Pacific A to Z," the fifth in his no-punches pulled series of A to Z travel books published by Doubleday. Kane has visited more than 100 nations in his travels to every corner of the globe.

In his latest book, Kane takes the traveler — armchair or actual — to "as peaceful a chunk of earth as one can expect in an imperfect world."

"South Pacific A to Z," Kane notes also is "a book of islands, or actually . . . of selected islands — the most representative, the most accessible and the most developed for visitors, in that unfathomably tremendous stretch of land and water which is surely the most romanticized and stereotyped portion of our planet."

Included are Australia, New Zealand, New Caledonia, Fiji, the Samoas, Tahiti, Tonga and Hawaii.

The answers to the questions posed above?

Polynesian women advertise their marital status by wearing flowers behind their left ear if available, their right if not, "over both ears — will consider most desirable bid." Johnson's a hero in American Samoa for transforming the island from a Pacific slum into a model and modern territory .

Aussies like their beef well-done and restaurants simply won't prepare it any other way. Vaalima, the Samoan residence of Stevenson is now the official home of His Highness Malietoa Tanumafili II, ruler of Western Samoa.

Fun City

The top fun city Down Under, according to Kane, is Sydney, abounding in beaches, discotheques, coffee houses, pubs, splendid restaurants and hotels and a jumping after-dark theater, dance and night life.

Like his previous books on Canada, Asia, South America and Africa, "South Pacific A to Z" is a delightfully blended brew of historical background, political lowdown and invaluable information.

Chapters contain such subheadings as "Entry Requirements," "Best Time for a Visit," "Currency," "Transportation," "Film Availability," "What to Buy," and "Creature Comforts."

He writes about eating (how about a Tahitian tamaara or feast?), of sleeping (how about a modern version of a thatched bure for a hotel room in Fiji; of shopping (tapa cloth in Tonga( woolens in Australia, suedes in New Zealand, French perfumes and fashions in New Caledonia); of touring (Australia's Great Barrier Reef, New Zealand's glaciers) — all peppered with liberal doses of Kane's candid opinions.

And he writes of people, too—of towering King Tupou IV of Tonga, Gov. Rex Lee of American Samoa, Australian drinking companions, Maori guides in New Zealand, village chiefs in New Caledonia, and the beautiful maids of the South Seas.

It's all there, from air and ship routes to tipping (precious little in the South Pacific). The book is a must for everyone interested in places, people and things.

Varying Customs and Feasting Feature Christmas in Norway

OSLO (UPI)—Norway's Christmas is a strange mixture of ancient heathen customs and the Christian celebration of the birth of Christ — with a sprinkling of commercialism thrown in.

And it isn't a real Christmas unless the white firewater called aquavit has been round the world, from Norway across the equator to Australia and back again in big casks, before being bottle and and sold in the state-owned liquor shops.

With the aquavit and copious quantities of beer, Norwegians start celebrating Yuletide at the beginning of December at Christmas meals of 15 sorts of herring, smoked salmon, all sorts of fresh, dried or salted meats, hot or cold, fowl turkey and other delicacies.

Traditional fare varies geographically. Those who live on the West Coast and up towards the Soviet border make a meal around boiled cod and—to the horror of a visiting winegrower — drink French claret with it.

Families in the interior concentrate on pork of all kinds.

The people of Bergen, traditionally unusual, like ribs of mutton driedin the wind and slightly salted before being steam-cooked on a raft of young birch tree branches.

If the emphasis on food dates back to heathen times when pagans celebrated the fact the days were beginning to draw out, modern Christmas also has special services in over-crowded churches on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Religious songs and carols are sung and gospels read in most families.

Christmas Day is the day for family reunions and dinners. The day after Christmas is the gay day for dancing and music, particularly for the younger people.

In the rural areas some of the age-old traditions still are honored. No wood is chapped on Christmas Day and the farm animals get special food.

As in neighboring Sweden, the farmers put a special dish of porridge and butter in the farmyard for the "rudkall"—the first settler of the farm who, according to folklore, still lives on the farm and protects it from evil if he is well treated.

Auto Safety Belts

NEW YORK—Experts estimate that more than 5,000 lives would be saved each year in the United States and that injuries would be reduced by one-third if everyone used auto seat belts, says the Insurance Information Institute.

Santa's Annual Parade Draws 12,000 In Nonantum

Some 12,000 braved last Sunday's chill for the annual Santa parade in Nonantum and the unanimous opinion was that it was the "biggest and best yet."

Sponsored by veterans and other community organizations, the parade featured bands, floats, politicians, clowns and sprightly elves.

As the parade, with Santa riding on top of a trailer truck wound through the street of Nonantum, clowns roamed through the crowd collecting coins for the children's Christmas Party on Dec. 18, the annual treat for some 2000 children aged 10 and under.

There were nearly 4000 persons, including Mayor Basbas, waiting in the parking lot of Our Lady's Church when Santa Claus landed by helicopter after a long, long, long journey from his home at the North Pole.

Mayor Basbas paraded the entire route along with Reps. Joseph G. Bradley and Paul F. Malloy, Aldermen Andrew J. Magni, Paul J. Burke, Joseph M. McDonnell, Adelaide B. Ball and Melvin J. Dangel, and former Alderman William A. Lincoln, chairman of the Massachusetts Stadium Corp.

The Newton Police drill team with Sgt. Thomas M. Dargan, drillmaster, led off the four divisions. A contingent of Newton police, led by Officer Frederick D. Fraini, followed.

Roger Marrocco was parade marshal and Charles E. Feeley, assistant marshal.

Anthony Pellegrini, chairman, was assisted by Dominic Bianchi, Jr., treasurer, and a committee representing the following organizations:

American Legion Post 440; Italian - American War Veterans, Post 50; Franco - American War Veterans, Post 24; Umberto Primo Lodge, Sons of Italy, and the Newton Boys' Club.

"Dick" Simmons' 49 Years With 'Y' To Get Recognition

An opportunity for friends and neighbors to congratulate Richard Bryant Simmons, past physical director and now membership director of Newton YMCA, on his completion of 49 years of service to the "Y" and the community, will be offered at a reception in the YMCA auditorium Wednesday evening, December 14, at 8:15 o'clock.

Richard Bryant Simmons was born in Dorchester on Mar. 7, 1900, and spent his childhood in Hyde Park and Brockton. On graduation from Brockton High in 1917, at the age of 17, he officially entered the rolls of the Y.M.C.A., according to the records of the National Council.

During the first World War, he served a short time in the U. S. Army, and then assisted the then Two State Area Y.M.C.A. War Work Council —a 1918 version of a USO type program.

In the fall of 1919, Richard enrolled at Springfield College, and is a member of the Class of 1923.

"Dick" came to the Newton "Y" on Sept. 1, 1925, from the Holyoke Association.

It was while he was in Holyoke that he met and married Miss Barbara Hutton. They have four married children who live locally: Richard B. Simmons, of Hopkinton; Mrs. Malcolm (Barbara) Stone of Auburndale; Wallace P. Simmons of Wellesley, and Mrs. Edward (Alyce) Wolosski of Newton. He also has 12 grandchildren.

Mr. Simmons has served under four general secretaries, starting with the late Harry Bascom, followed by Kenneth Dale, now retired, Clarence Mease at the Y.M.C.A. of Orange, N. J., and the present executive, Alex R. Miller.

Besides the development of the physical wellbeing of many men and boys in this west suburban area, Dick spent part of his time training and encouraging young men to pass their Civil Service strength tests for fire and police departments.

During the 31 years that he was physical instructor at Newton, he became the first director of Camp Massasoit, the summer day camp for boys run on the grounds of the Association in Newton. This was in 1944.

In 1956, he became membership and world service director.

Along with conducting classes in gymnastics and calisthenics, directing tournaments and camp, "Dick" has been secretary to the following major counseling groups of laymen: The Physical Department Committee, the Church League Basketball Committee, the Camp Massasoit Committee and the Membership and World Service Committees.

In community life, he has been a volunteer male nurses aid at Newton-Wellesley Hospital when help was needed, and he still is assisting the Red Cross in its Blood Mobile program. At the present time he is treasurer of the United Presbyterian Church in Newton.

All acquaintances of the Simmons' are cordially invited to attend the reception and letters of recollection should be sent to Ralph B. Emery, chairman for the affair, who resides at 17 Kenmore St., Newton Centre, 02159.

Tomorrow, a morning unit will meet from 9 to 11:15 a.m. at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock st., Auburndale. A baby sitter will be in attendance.

Rabbi Blau To Address B'nai B'rith Lodge

The Architects and Engineers Lodge of B'nai B'rith will hold a special meeting at Temple Emeth on Sunday morning, Dec. 11, with breakfast at 9:30 a.m.

The guest speaker will be Rabbi Yosef Blau, associate principal of the Maimonides School in Brookline. The topic of Rabbi Blau's address will be "Jewish Identity and Survival through Jewish Education."

Rabbi Blau is a graduate of Yeshiva College, holds a Masters degree in Mathematics from the Belfer Graduate School of Science and is a candidate for a Ph. D in Mathematics.

Members, wives, and guests are cordially invited.

No Disharmony Over Attendance Officers In City

One point of harmony in the controversy at Monday night's School Committee meeting dealing with non-salary budget items was the unanimous agreement about the ability of Newton's attendance officers.

The work of the attendance officers was touched upon when an item appeared on the agenda relating to their travel expenses. An additional cause for the unity of opinion was that this is one of the two categories on the 17 item list in which expenses are not expected to rise for 1967.

Newton enjoys a bargain in having a supervisor of attendance and two assistants for some 18,000 school children, it was pointed out. One School Committee member recalled having been principal in a nearby community of a school which had three attendance officers for 1,000 children.

Girls Of Raynace Society Planning Charity Program

The Raynace Society, a group of local high school girls, is beginning its sixth year of fund raising for the Massachusetts Kidney Disease Foundation and their goal this year is $2000.

The youngsters, all local high school girls, have raised $6000 since 1961 through dances, workdays, fashion shows, cake sales and plain old - fashioned knocking - on - doors.

In February, 1961, the late Daniel J. McDevitt, past executive director of the New England Kidney Disease Foundation, brought the idea of a teenage fund-raising organization to a group of 18 girls. They chose the name "Raynace" from the Latin word "renes" for kidney.

Joanne Weiner, president, said, "we are now planning our sixth annual dance and ad book and through the dedicated efforts of these girls, I know that we will be able to not only exceed all other years but, also, top our goal of $2000 for this year."

The officers of the Society this year are Miss Weiner, of Newton; Marcia Sudman, vice president, Newton; Nancy Richmond, treasurer, Newton; Leslie Randall, recording secretary, Newton; Patti Leary, corresponding secretary, Brookline; Stephany Marder, corresponding secretary, Brookline, and Linda Lank, sergeant-at-arms, Newton.

Community Center Plans A Children's Holiday Program

Newton Community Center has announced its Holiday Enrichment Program for youngsters in nursery and kindergarten and in Grades 1 through 6. The program is designed to provide children with stimulating activities during their vacation days, and will feature a full art program as well as a number of interesting field trips.

Art classes are to be given on Tuesday and Thursday, Dec. 27 and 29, and will emphasize imaginative use of everyday objects. Holiday projects will vary according to the grade and interests of the youngster.

Field trips are to be tailored to the age and understanding of each child, and are aimed at satisfying the natural curiosity all children have for the world around them. Nursery and kindergarten children will tour the fire station, police station and post office for an inside look at the community at work. Youngsters in Grades one, two and three will extend their visits to the Boston area, with trips to Boston Common (for ice skating), and tours of the Continental Baking Co. and Angell Memorial Hospital. Grades four, five, and six will be able to examine the city's communications and transportation system at work with their tours of the Boston Globe, and the Massachusetts Port Authority at Logan Air Field.

Creative follow-up activities where time permits will emphasize the imaginative resources of the children, and will make the day's excursion more meaningful. The groups will be held by Mrs. Murray Janower, experienced elementary teacher of Brookline and Art and Enrichment teacher at the Center.

Groups are limited in size and registrations are open through Dec. 20. Parents who are interested in having their children participate in this unusual program should contact Newton Community Center, 429 Cherry street, West Newton (244-2260) before registration closes.

LOOK TO PRINT JFK BOOK OPPOSED BY WIDOW

BOTH LOOK MAGAZINE, and Harper and Row, book publishers, announced Wednesday night they would go ahead with publication of the "official" book about President Kennedy's assassination, despite threatened court action by Jacqueline Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy announced earlier Wednesday that she would go to court to block publication of the book "The Death of The President," written by William Manchester, who was chosen by Mrs. Kennedy to author the history. She said she would charge breach of faith and of contract and invasion of privacy.

"The public should have the opportunity to read it," said Gardner Cowles, editorial chairman of the firm that publishes Look. "It would be improper to withold this significant document from the American people. To do so would amount to censorship of history."

By moving swiftly to obtain a temporary injunction against author William Manchester and his publishers in N. Y. state supreme court, Mrs. Kennedy hopes to keep the first installment of a Look Magazine version of "The Death of the President" off the news stands Jan. 10 and prevent publication of the book by Harper and Row next April. Mrs. Kennedy was angered because Manchester did not wait for her approval of the book about her husband's assassination.

Informed sources said she was particularly upset because Manchester pictured some of the Kennedy family as regarding Prseident Johnson with disdain and she felt this might have a backlash effect on Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's political career. The senator, however, has said he will do nothing to prevent the book's publication.

15 MINUTEMEN INDICTED IN NEW YORK

A NEW YORK CITY grand jury Wednesday indicted 15 Minutemen on charges linked to an alleged plot to blow up pacifist camps they believed were "pro-Communist". One of the camps was the New England Committee for non-Violent Action headquarters at Voluntown, Conn.

The Minutemen were arrested Oct. 30 by city and state police. Authorities seized an arsenal of weapons, including machine guns and mortars.

JURY MAY GET COPPOLINO CASE TODAY

DR. CARL A. COPPOLINO, Wednesday told the jury in Freehold, N. J., trying him for the murder of William E. Farber that Coppolino treated Farber for a heart attack but did not mark him for death. He said he pleaded with Farber's wife to hospitalize him, then withdrew from the case hours before the retired Army colonel died because both Farber and his wife refused his advice for hospitalization. After telling his story, the poised and articulate Coppolino withstood intense prosecution efforts to shake his testimony. The defense then rested.

Defense and prosecution summaries in the sensational case will be made today followed by Judge Elvin R. Simmill's charge. It then will go to the jury.

U. S. SMOG CONTROL STANDARDS DEMANDED

THE NATIONAL Conference on Air Pollution concluded Wednesday in Washington that it is up to the federal government to bring the United States out of the smog age by setting nationwide standards for clean air.

The government also must direct millions of dollars to state and local governments for air pollution control programs to meet these standards, delegates said.

"Society must establish that the right to clean air exists as a right co-equal to the right of economic opportunity and the right to education," declared Dr. Alfred L. Frechette, Mass. public health commr.

LAG IN SALES TAX INCOME DECREASES

STATE TAX dept. figures showed Wednesday sales tax collections are $19.5 million behind predictions for the first seven months of the levy. This compares to a lag of about $25 million two months ago, indicating the sales tax collections made a significant increase in the back-to-school buying period.

Some $68 million in sales tax revenue was collected for April through October for a $9.7 million-a-month average.

The state's monetary experts had predicted sales tax collections would average $12.5 million a month for a $87.5 million total at the end of October.

VOLPE TRIES TO RETAIN COMMR. McCARTHY

STATE ADMINISTRATION Commr. John J. McCarthy, an outspoken foe of bureaucratic waste and red tape on Beacon Hill, has submitted his resignation to Gov. Volpe. However, Volpe did not immediately accept the resignation and said he would try to persuade McCarthy to remain in the post, often referred to as the deputy governorship.

"No definits decision has been made on whether he will resign and, if he does, when he will resign," Volpe said.

MEDIATORS TRY AGAIN FOR RAYTHEON PACT

U. S. MEDIATORS meet today at the U.S. Federal Building in Boston with union and management representatives in an effort to end a five-week-old strike that has idled 10,000 workers at Raytheon Co. plants in 12 eastern Massachusetts communities.

James Mulloney, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said an end to the strike is "possibly any time the company wants to settle with us honorably."

A company spokesman contended that Raytheon's latest offer should provide the basis for continued negotiations. The offer was rejected by the union Sunday, apparently because it contained no cost-of-living wage escalation clause.

LBJ PRESS AIDE QUITS TO BE PUBLISHER

WHITE HOUSE Press Sec. Bill D. Moyers, a young Baptist preacher from Texas who became President Johnson's closest and most trusted adviser, resigned Wednesday to be publisher of Newsday, a Long Island newspaper.

Moyers told newsmen he was leaving Feb. 1 solely for "reasons of personal family obligations" requiring increased income and not because of reported differences with Johnson. His present salary is $30,000 a year.

His replacement as press secretary will be George Christian, 39, a former Texas newsman and governor's assistant who joined the White House staff last May.

TURK-CYPRUS ARMS SHIPPING CRISIS BREWS

TURKISH warships put to sea and two major Turkish naval bases went on a 24-hour alert Wednesday following reports of new shipments of Communist-made weapons on the way to Cyprus.

There was speculation the Turkish warships were under orders to take direct action if necessary to stop arms-carrying ships bound for the island republic in the Mediterranean. One shipment of Czech-made arms has reportedly reached the island.

HUGE VOTE OK'S NEW SPAIN CONSTITUTION

SPANISH VOTERS Wednesday overwhelmingly approved a new constitution expected to bring a measure of liberalization and religious freedom to a nation ruled sternly for nearly 30 years by Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Officials said 90 per cent of the 19.6 million eligible voters went to the polls and that about 80 per cent of them voted in favor of the new constitution Franco proposed.

Unofficial tabulations showed 1,124,516 in favor and only 32,661 against.

The principals of all 24 public elementary schools in Newton were recorded at Monday night's School Committee meeting as being unanimously opposed to a shift to a single session for their pupils.

Five of the principals appeared before the School Board to submit a petition strongly urging the retention of the present elementary school split session.

School Superintendent Charles E. Brown announced that the Elementary School Schedule Study Committee, which has been probing the advisability of a change to a single session and the problems such a change would involve, will submit an interim report at next Monday night's School Committee meeting.

Parents of the elementary school pupils have been polled to determine their preference, if any, between a single session and a split session. The returns will be tabulated and evaluated prior to next Monday night.

A proposal for the adoption of a single session in the city's elementary schools, with the children eating their lunches at school instead of going home, has been the subject of sharp and at times bitter controversy. It has strong backing but also has met forceful opposition.

School Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman declined to read the communication presented to him by the five principals at Monday night's meeting, declaring that he would adhere to his policy of not reading letters on the single session issue. "If we start reading the letters which have reached us on the subject, the demands upon our time would be overwhelming," Berman observed.

School Committeewoman Norma W. Mintz, who has been the School Board's representative on the group studying the single session recommendation, expressed the contrary opinion that the letter should be read.

She said it was the one statement which had the support of all the elementary school principals and voiced the belief that an exception should be made in that case to the policy of reading letters at School Committee sessions.

Teacher Aids Wage Raises Are Sought

A 35-cent-an-hour wage increase and a five-step salary schedule for teacher aides in the Newton public school system was sought at Monday night's School Committee meeting.

The request for the pay raise for 43 teacher aides was made by a committee headed by Mrs. Yetta B. Siegel. Mrs. Jean G. Barrows and Mrs. Sybil Gladstone also acted as representatives and spokesmen for their fellow teacher aides.

They asked that the pay of the teacher aides be raised 35 cents an hour in each of their first two years of service and that they be placed on a five-step plan. At present the aides receive only one wage hike and achieve their maximum salary at the start of their second year of service.

The 43 teacher aides in the Newton schools supplement the work of the regular teachers by running language and science laboratories, directing libraries, giving special attention to small groups of children in studies such as English composition and in other ways.

Mrs. Siegel expressed the belief that the present rates of pay for the teacher aides are "both inadequate and inequitable" in view of their educational and personal qualifications.

She pointed out that many teacher aides have the same qualifications as teachers and that some are certified as teachers.

"We propose a base rate for beginning teacher aides," Mrs. Siegel stated, starting in September, 1967, of $2.50 per hour, with annual increments of 25 cents for the second and third years. Thus a second year per hour and in the third year, $3.00 per hour.

"Several aides have worked for many years without financial recognition of their increased value to the schools," Mrs. Siegel contended. "We suggest that the salary schedules should include a longevity clause as follows: those aides who will have served four years should receive a salary of $3.50 per hour; those who will have served eight years should receive $4.25 per hour.

"We believe that much of our value lies in our flexibil-

Mayor In Plea For More Vietnam Gifts

Mayor Monte G. Basbas, filling the role of Santa's aide, has sent Christmas gift packages to an even dozen servicemen from the Newtons who will spend a lonely Yuletide in far-away Vietnam.

The bundles now on their way to Vietnam with holiday greetings from the Mayor and his wife contained candies, cookies, jellies and other delicacies from home which should help to make a festive feast on the Birthday of the Prince of Peace.

Now the Mayor is arranging to send similar gift packages to more servicemen from Newton stationed in Vietnam whose names and mailing addresses were received by the Graphic after last week's edition was distributed.

But what are you doing to help let the servicemen from our city, who for the cause of freedom will spend Christmas far from the warmth of their homes and the love of their families, know that they are being remembered by the folks back in Newton?

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Gov. Volpe A Fence-Builder At GOP Governors' Conclave

Gov. Volpe isn't running for anything, but he did some effective political fence-building at the National Conference of Republican Governors in Colorado Springs, according to those who attended the conclave.

Volpe wasn't buttonholing his fellow Governors to seek their support for the Presidential or Vice Presidential nomination, but he did make a highly favorable impression on them by the part he took in their deliberations.

The 25 Republican Governors will control a majority of the delegates to the 1968 GOP national convention. Even though there is a scant likelihood of any unanimity of opinion among them, they will have a good deal to say about the selection of their party's next Presidential standard-bearer.

Indeed, the probability is that one of the 25 will be the GOP nominee for President in the 1968 election, and he might well tap another Governor to be his Vice Presidential running mate.

It was the Republican Governors who delivered the necessary votes to nominate Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Presidency at the 1952 GOP national convention in Chicago.

The late Robert Taft had tremendous support among his fellow Senators, but in the showdown the GOP Governors had more political muscle than did the Republican Senators, and they put Eisenhower over.

On the eve of that convention it appeared that Taft had the nomination all but sewed up. When the conclave ended, the Taft supporters were moaning that the Governors had picked their man's pockets of delegate votes.

A big factor in Volpe's favor, which stood out at the Governor's Conference, is that he is on friendly terms

Mayor Offers $800 Hike To Patrolmen

Mayor Monte G. Basbas has offered the patrolmen in the city's police force an $800-a-year pay raise.

Whether the patrolmen will accept the Mayor's compromise proposal and whether the Board of Aldermen will approve it if the police do agree to it, was uncertain last night.

If the wage hike is granted to the patrolmen, it also will be given to the privates in the fire department.

The police originally sought a $1200-a-year boost which would increase the annual pay for patrolmen on the police force and privates in the fire dapartment from $6900 to $8100 annually.

Mayor Basbas countered by offering a $600-a-year raise which would become effective next May.

The police rejected that offer and sent it back to the Mayor.

Mayor Basbas then sweetened up the proposition by offering an $800-a-year raise.

The Mayor earlier had expressed the belief that he could gain Aldermanic approval of the proposed $600 hike. He did not make the same comment concerning the $800 raise.

Some Aldermen indicated last night that they would withhold judgment on the proposed salary increases for the police and firefighters until they see what agreements on raises are reached with other groups of municipal employees.

When Mayor Basbas made his $600-a-year pay raise offer to the patrolmen last week, he proposed that police sergeants be boosted to $8600, ity and versatility. Because of this we have made no effort to correlate this salary schedule either with our educational backgrounds or with the varied demands of our work," she continued.

"It is our intention to study and evaluate the teacher aide structure more fully during the winter. As a part of this proposal we would like to meet with you again next year and share with you the results of our study," Mrs. Siegel concluded.

School Committeeman Edwin Hawkridge recommended that the teacher aides press forward with their study of a salary schedule which would take into account the educational background of the teacher aides."

In answer to a query by Hawkridge, teacher aide Mrs. Sybil Gladstone of the F. A. Day Junior High School explained that the role of the teacher aide is distinguished from that of the teacher by the fact that the teacher aide does not have the final say over curriculum content or over grades.

She explained that the teacher aides do test and grade their pupils on work covered and that the marks are taken into account by the teacher. She added that many teacher aides have enough educational experience so that teachers delegate a great deal of authority to them.

In answer to a question by Committeeman Way Dong Woo, it was stated that to the pupils, the teacher aides are the same as teachers, Dr. Woo also asked whether an expansion in the number of teacher aides was not foreseen. School Superintendent Charles E. Brown commented that the number of teacher aides is held down only by economic consideration.

School Committeeman Francis P. Frazier asked whether the teacher aides are not doing work that would be accomplished better by splitting large classes. Superintendent Brown responded that "Sometimes the most important reason for having teacher aides is because classrooms are too large. But teacher aides also perform a variety of specific tasks, such as directing a language laboratory which require very definite preparation."

Committeeman Vincent Paul Stanton inquired about specialization of the teacher aides. Teacher aide Mrs. Jean Burrows of Newton South High School replied that part of the value of teacher aides is their great flexibility. Mrs. Gladstone pointed out that she is at present working in an English department but last year tutored a small group in American history.

Committeewoman Mrs. Norma W. Mintz called the teacher aide system "an admirable example of how Newton has developed a program of great value from its early stages."

Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman praised the plan under which "Newton citizens including mothers and housewives, can participate in our school system." He promised the group of teacher aides that the School Committee would give their requests "the most earnest consideration."

Hospital Units Are Named For Sherman

The first of three new buildings to be erected as part of Beth Israel Hospital's Golden Anniversary Development Program will be named in honor of George Sherman of Newton, an honorary trustee of the hospital and well known philanthropist and businessman.

Stanley H. Feldberg of Wellesley Hills, general chairman of the fund drive, announced today that Mr. and Mrs. Sherman had contributed a substantial sum to the drive in order to "ensure the hospital's future growth and development."

Now under construction, the four-story structure will be designated as "The George Sherman Clinical Research and Therapy Building." It is scheduled for completion in 1968.

"The hospital is most grateful to George and Beatrice Sherman for their generous support of the development program," Mr. Feldberg declared. "The new building will provide the patient study and laboratory facilities which are indispensable to the provision of high quality patient care, teaching and research services in the future.

"Through twenty-four years of association with Beth Israel Hospital as a trustee, Mr. Sherman and his wife have repeatedly demonstrated their responsiveness to the health needs of Greater Boston."

The new building, consisting of 25,500 square feet of space, will contain a number of clinical research and therapy units. The lower floor will contain a nuclear medicine area (radioisotopes), radiotherapy rooms, and a biomedical photgraphy laboratory.

The first floor will have an electron miscroscopy laboratory, three experimental pathology labratories, tissue culture and immunology, and two histochemistry laboratories. The second floor will be devoted to administrative functions and the Women's Auxiliary headquarters.

Mapor units on the third floor will contain a cardiopulmonary area; and expanded radiology facilities, including three special procedure rooms, four radiographic rooms, and other units. The entire fourth floor will be devoted to an X-Ray film library.

Lauding the donors for their "foresight and generosity," Samuel L. Slosberg, hospital president, and Dr. Mitchell T. Rabkin, general director, pointed out that the new structure would offer invaluable support to new inpatient facilities which will be built as part of the development program.

"We must think of beds and supporting facilities as one," they declared. "Adequate, comfortable and functional accommodations are meaningless without the best of ancillary facilities. By providing the space and equipment necessary to bring to bear on the patient the best that the art and science of medicine can offer, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman have helped immeasurably — to advance the Hospital's goals."

In commenting upon his gift to the Golden Anniversary Fund, Mr. Sherman, chairman of the Sherman Paper Products Company in Newton Upper Falls, and director of the St. Regis Paper Company, noted his long association with the hospital and his interest in furthering medical service to the community.

"The continuing medical revolution places upon all of us the obligations to assist the Hospital, to the best of our ability, to remain in the front rank of university teaching hospitals and to provide the highest quality of patient care during the second half-century of its existence," he declared.

"Mrs. Sherman and I are very proud to be part of this great effort. We are grateful that we can contribute in some measure to this broad community effort. We look forward with great eagerness to the completion of the building and its emergence as one of the components of the Beth Israel Hospital complex."

Through previous benefactions, the Shermans have done much to ensure the superior quality of patient care, teaching and research at Beth Israel. They established the Beatrice G. and George Sherman Endowment Fund; and the George Sherman Auditorium, principal lecture hall at the Hospital.

A native of Boston, Mr. Sherman, in addition to his membership on the Beth Israel Board of Trustees, is a trustee of Children's Hospital Medical Center and a national vice president of the Fellows of Brandeis University. He is also a trustee of Boston University, the Boston University Medical Center and University Hospital, Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged, Newton - Wellesley Hospital, and Honorary Trustee of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies. He was the 1961 recipient of the Award of Merit from the CJP for "outstanding humanitarian service."

Pomroy House To Be Razed; New Quarters Are Needed

The facilities now operating in Newton's famed Rebecca Pomroy House on Hovey st., are earnestly searching for another and suitable headquarters.

Pomroy House will have to close its doors by next June. The condition of the building, and commercial expansion in the area, are the reasons given for the sale of the property to a neighborhood concern.

Mrs. John Bourgeois, president of the Pomroy House Nursery School Parent-Teachers Association, has issued an appeal to all those who may know of any property or building which could be suitable for the needs of the organization. She can be contacted at 969-9746.

Mrs. Bourgeois pointed out that Pomroy House activities now include a well-baby clinic, nursery school, summer play school, day camp at Lake Cochituate, friendship clubs for boys and girls, sewing clubs for women and children, various arts and crafts, children's dance and music clubs, teenage social dancing classes, two mothers' clubs, special events and a very active Golden Age group.

The total attendance for Pomroy House last year was 23,986.

The Rebecca Pomroy House for Orphaned and Destitute Girls moved to its present Hovey st. location in 1859.

In 1939 a new charter was formed and it became incorporated as Rebecca Pomroy House.

Faced with the prospect of the June closing of this important local facility, both parents and children, and all those involved in the many activities of the House want to know, "Where Do We Go From Here?"

As Mrs. Bourgeois points out, the need for an activity center as Pomroy House, is great. The directors of all the various clubs are willing and anxious to continue the tremendous work carried on there. Therefore, the serach for suitable quarters to carry on the enterprise.

Newtonite Is Educational Group Leader

Dr. Albert I. Gordon, Rabbi of Temple Emanuel, Newton Centre, has been named chairman of the newly created Commission on Jewish Education of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, Bernard D. Grossman, president of Combined Jewish Philathropies announced this week.

The Commission, which will be involved with long range planning of Jewish education on all levels, was made possible through a grant of $25,000 from Philip W. Lown, prominent Boston industrialist and community leader, who is president of Hebrew Teachers College, Brookline.

Dr. Gordon said that the Commission will review the current status of educational activities and will also address itself to exploring opportunities for further strengthening and enlarging Jewish educational programs throughout the metropolitan area.

In addition, the role of Combined Jewish Philanthropies in financing Jewish education and coordinating various activities in this field will be examined.

The Commission is expected to use findings coming out of the Long Range Planning Study of Combined Jewish Philanthropies which is currently in progress. Members of the Commission will include representatives from the academic field, congregational leadership, the rabbinate, as well as from existing Jewish educational institutions.

Dr. Gordon, a trustee of Combined Jewish Philanthropies and a member of its Long Range Planning Committee and Budget Committee, is a member of the faculties of Andover Newton Theological School and Boston University.

He is the author of many noted sociological studies, including "Jews in Transition" and "Jews in Suburbia".

Because of a diversified itinerary and the fact that the members will be staying in the homes of local famiyoungA merican menand lies and students, "some 90 young American men and women will be given the opportunity to increase their understanding, through first-hand experience, of the life, culture, and people of Asia," Miss Brookssaid.

In order to prepare for this cultural exchange, the members of the tour are participating in an orientation course throughout the year, which includes meetings with such authorities on Asia as Harvard Professor Edwin O. Reischauer, former ambassador to Japan.

Miss Brooks said that "It is our hope that these meetings will make us better prapared to function effectively as representatives of Harvard and as ambassadors from the United States."

The strenuous tour schedule, which includes concerts with local student glee clubs, benefit concerts, and concerts at universities and colleges, adds up to about a concert a day, six out of seven days a week.

The group is planning special uniforms which will require minimum care and provide maximum comfort in the tropical climates, especially important since the schedule contains concerts in areas almost never visited by Americans, where there are no hotels.

As Miss Brooks explained, "the Asian tour has not been undertaken in a light-handed manner. It has been conceived with serious purposes and ideals in the full knowledge of the long hours of necessary organization, preparation and activity on tour. All in all, it promises to be a very exciting summer."

School Secretaries Have Well Attended Anniversary Dinner

More than 100 secretaries and guests attended the dinner meeting in Meadowbrook Junior High School Wednesday, December 7, marking the 20th anniversary of the Newton Educational Secretaries Association.

A candle-lighting ceremony, presided over by Mrs. Ruth M. Corey of West Newton, vice-president and chairman of the evening, highlighted the the occasion, as it called for the participation of past presidents of the association, honorary members, and charter members. Greetings and congratulations from the Newton Public Schools were brought by Dr. James E. Laurits, assistant superintendent for personnel. Entertainment was provided by Miss Mary Corey who sang a medley of show tunes with Dr. Joel Berg, director of data processing, accompanying her on the piano.

The association includes all office employees of the Newton public schools and this year is under the leadership of Mrs. Rose Silverman of West Newton, president. Mrs. Dorothy McCarthy of West Newton is secretary, and treasurer is Mrs. Mabel Fisher, also of West Newton.

Head table guests included, in addition to Dr. Laurits and the association's officers, Dr. Edward Landy, assistant superintendent for pupil personnel and special education, and Mrs. Landy; Dr. J. Bernard Everett, assistant superintendent for instruction, and Mrs. Everett; Thomas P. O'Connor, Jr., assistant to director of personnel; Stanley Russell, assistant to the superintendent, and Mrs. Russell; Donald T. Welch, coordinator of elementary school education, and Mrs. Welch; Harold A. Clark, assistant director of business services, and Mrs. Clark; Dr. Berg, Miss Phoebe Bell of Newton and Mrs. Mabel Goldrick of Auburndale, co-chairmen of the evening, as well as Mrs. Marguerite Fitch of Newton Centre, vice-president of the National Association of Educational Secretaries, who conveyed their good wishes; Mrs. Marjory Harting of Newton, who brought greetings from the Massachusetts Association of School Secretaries, and Mrs. Lillian Romanow, reservations chairman.

Jaycees Hear Talk By Member Of Peace Corps

The Newton Jaycees were honored to have as their December meeting guest speaker Wigmore Pierson, a graduate of Lake Forest College, and the Amos Tuck Business School at Dartmouth, who spoke about his recent two-year tour with the Peace Corps in Peru.

His speech, supported by slides, emphasized the great need the underdeveloped nation of Peru has for help. The slides depicted the primitive agriculture, the unemployed inhabitants, the deficient food diet, and the terrible living conditions of Peru. Wigmore's job in the Peace Corps was to set up co-operatives to help people combine their resources for the benefit of all.

John Brown, manager of the bookkeeping department of the Newton National Bank, was awarded the Jaycee of the Month for November from President Ted Clark. John's award was given in recognition of his outstanding money-raising activities in behalf of the G.I. Send-Off Committee.

Richard Hayden, chairman of the Christmas Shopping Tour Committee, announced that 20 Newton children will be selected by the Newton Community Center and taken on a shopping spree sponsored by the Jaycees. Money is being raised by "money boxes" distributed throughout the city. The shopping tour is scheduled for Saturday Dec. 17, and a party will also be held for the children at the Community Center in West Newton.

The next Newton Jaycees meeting will be the Distinguished Service Award Banquet, at the Holiday Inn in Newton on Saturday, Jan. 21.

Letters To Editor

Resents Parking Meters

Editor of The Graphic:

Parking meters, so the experts say, are designed and installed primarily to encourage commerce and keep a steady flow of spaces available for people who must shop in congested areas. Sometimes they also improve traffic patterns on moderately narrow streets where authorities are reluctant to completely forbid parking.

Quite incidentally, they make a little money for municipal government.

However, it now appears that Mayor Basbas and the Newton authorities have placed the incidentals before everything—including the inconvenience of a large section of Newton's populace — its rail commuters, be they daily, occasionally, or matronly downtown shoppers.

Although I cannot comment on other sections of the city (perhaps some readers will), the very recent installation of these metal monsters in every conceivable direction contiguous to the Newton railroad station, including the heretofore free city lot across from the Star Market—with maximum time allowances of four hours—has created a very real and annoying problem. Even for those willing to feed a 10- or 12-hour meter (although that would defeat its primary purpose, wouldn't it), none are available.

What then do we do? Do we walk from our homes, wherever they may be, to the train? Do we use free (family) or hired chauffeurs at all times and in both directions? Or do we, perhaps, play games with the police officers and take calculated risks on being ticketed?

The most interesting part of it all is that no one can even give the excuse that without the meters local commerce would be hindered by parking spaces which are dominated all day by autos which are never moved, because the key city lot in the Newtonville picture, particularly on weekdays, is never without at least a few empty spaces—even on Saturdays when so many more Newtonites are at home to shop locally. If such a condition ever occurs for more than five minutes, even during the last minute rush of a Christmas eve, should that mild, one-day inconvenience dominate the year-round needs of a community?

It seems, therefore, that city finances, not the more classical reasons, are the only justifications for the action. And more city money is needed in order to increase and improve the city's services to its citizens so that more of them will appreciate the conveniences they are being rendered. (Would it smack a bit of sarcasm at this stage of my missive if I pointed out that the new on-street meters in the area will also give our city fathers more money, though not quite as much more, while still leaving rail commuters a place to leave their air pollution machines?)

It is to be hoped that our local administrators will see fit to correct their mistakes, quickly, I trust, such as shortly before the next election. In the meantime, I invite others who may have been similarly treated in other parts of the city to make known their suffering, and I further invite all readers in general, and newspaper editors in particular, who feel my protestations to be justified to raise their mighty voices of public opinion and return justice to our down-trodden (local) society.

EDWIN B. CARTON,

Is Magic Gone:

Editor of The Graphic:

I wonder what has happened to Christmas? Santa Claus used to be a Christmas fairy who came down the chimney on Christmas Eve ond put toys in our stockings.

There was usually an orange filling out the toe of the stocking.

Now, he is in a parade, or helicopter on Thanksgiving Day shouting "Ho, Ho, Ho, Merry Christmas;" or in a department store with children climbing on his knee, and they're telling him all the expensive things they would like.

When I was a child we used to sit around the kitchen table and write what we would like on slips of paper. Then we would fold the paper, lift up the lid of the coal stove and put in the papers.

Since Santa was supposed to come down the chimney, the smoke from our notes would go up to him. Our parents never saw them.

The magic seems to have gone out of Christmas. I'm glad that I'm not a child these days.

Sincerely,
A. LUCAS,
A die-hard romanticist, or just plain old-fashioned.

What Chi Rho Does

Editor of The Graphic:

The other day I was looking through the Chi Rho Handbook and I found something which reminded me of what Chi Rho is and does.

I will quote from the article by John J. Lonergan, president of the Archdiocesan Young Adult Council:

"In this day of computors and automation the individual young adult can at times feel that he has little or no chance to help in the formation of a better world. Chi Rho offers him the opportunity to do just this.

"The Chi Rhoer who spends his time with the handicapped child, the Chi Rhoer whose club raises money so that others less fortunate than himself can have a truly joyous Christmas adds something to the world in which we live."

We are going calling to an old age home and possibly bring some gifts, depending on how much money we can raise. We had planned to brighten Christmas for someone less fortunate than ourselves. We did not look at this action in the larger light of adding something to the world. But look at it now—if everyone tried to brighten Christmas for someone else this year, how much better would the world be by next Christmas.

Steve Quinn,
Newton-Waltham
Deanery Chi Rho.

To School Boards

Editor of The Graphis:

It has been my belief that the School Committee should represent the citizens in the operation of the educational system.

There are several areas that the Committee members might look into before they commit themselves to anymore large expenditures.

1. What percentage of the school children of Newton attend private and parochial schools?
2. What Junior High School scores highest on the Ninth Grade Achievement tests and what is the relative median I.Q. of the class?
3. What percentage of new teachers are inexperienced?
4. What is the ratio of teaching staff to supervising personnel?
5. What is the percentage of dropouts among Newton High School graduates who attend college.
6. Are the many experiments conducted in the Newton Schools evaluated by competent, impartial outside authorities? (I refer to continuous education, ungraded schools, etc.
7. Is the budget the same for each Junior High School in relation to size.
8. Do some Junior High Schools have greater teacher turnover than others?
9. Would a new type of education be imposed on a school if the Principal was satisfied with his present system and methods?

Although the present teacher pay scale is one of the highest in the State, this doesn't seem to encourage teachers to stay in Newton.

It appears that the only function of the School Committee is to approve of every proposal the administration makes with little evaluation. This attitude may be one cause of the ever growing budget for a diminishing school population.

In spite of the many grants grants and funds coming to the Newton schools, the school budget continues to expand and we are being taxed out of the city by the schools.

Isn't it about time some of these projects were questioned?

Sincerely,
Russell F. Briggs

Alert Police

Editor of the Graphic:

The undersigned would like to express a vote of confidence for the men of the Newton Police Department.

The quick response of the department to a call from my wife on the evening of Tuesday, December 6, enabled the police officers to apprehend three men who had looted my home and were in the process of stripping another home in the immediate vicinity. The material removed from my home was quickly recovered.

When buying a Christmas tree, two ways to make sure it is not dangerously dry is to shake it vigorously and note whether needles fall, and then bend the branches. Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies says that if the branches snap off, they are too dry and brittle.

Newton Nun Is Scored By Australian Bishop

Pending receipt of further information, comment was withheld this week by the Newton College of the Sacred Heart on an Australian Bishop's charges against Mother Margaret M. Gorman, RSCJ.

According to Australian news sources, Bishop Thomas W. Muldoon, of New South Wales, castigated Mother Gorman for certain of her views pertaining to the Catholic Church and the Catholic religion.

The blast was leveled at Mother Gorman, chairman of the psychology department at the College of the Sacred Heart, for remarks she made more than two months ago on a Sydney television program.

The TV program was shown about two months ago and proved so popular it was repeated last Sunday night. In it Mother Gorman discussed and answered questions on the problem of symbols and words in relation to God.

She described in detail the ways in which man's symbol of God had varied in different times and places, and referred to a lack of adequate symbolism today.

Mother Gorman, who is also a psychological consultant to the Army, recently completed a 25,000 mile lecture tour of the Far East, Australia and New Zealand. She spoke to the religious of the Sacred Heart teachers and future teachers, discussing the latest developments in psychology which might help them as educators, philosophers, university students and graduate associations on the relation of psycological theories to literature, art and religion.

The Sydney Sunday Herald reported that copies of a private letter have been circulating among the city's Catholics. A leading layman said: "The main reaction came from intellectuals and graduates who were very interested in Mother Gorman's views."

However, the main attacks on her have come from fundamental Catholics who complained of "avant-garde" theology.

The Bishop allegedly said Mother Gorman had no permission from ecclesiastical authorities to speak of doctrinal matters in his archidiocese.

According to the Sydney newspaper story, the nun was told she would not be welcomed again in that city and was, in fact "banned."

The Australian paper reported the bishop said: "The language of the letter is strong. Many will contend that it is far too strong. But very often, when shocking things have been said, they can be counter-balanced only by saying shocking things."

Mother Gorman, a full professor of psychology at Newton College of the Sacred Heart since 1959, regularly lectures to the Civilian Personnel Division of the Army at Washington, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., and Fort Lee, Va.

She is a native of Kingston, N. Y., who earned her bachelor of arts degree at Trinity College, Washington, master of arts at Fordham University, N. Y., and a Ph.D. at Catholic University.

Newton Junior In 104-73 Loss

High scorer for the Newton Bears was Jim MacLaughlin with 26 points. Teammate John Melnick had 22 markers, his career high.

Lee Loumos Says:

The Boston Patriots are fast becoming the Cinderella team of professional football. The humble persistency of coach and players has endeared them to me and I'll be rooting them on to victory this weekend. If you don't have a color TV set, come in and watch them in my showrooms. My fond hope is that they will be able to meet the Packers in the Supergame. Despite the prevailing feeling I am very optimistic about their chances and do not hesitate to pick them to go all the way. Without admitting any inferiority in ability, I think that desire could make the difference.

A Christmas Carol

HE lived alone in a cheerless tenement in a dim alley in the heart of the squalid and congested East Side of London. Who he was, from whence he came, what he did, nobody seemed to know. To tell the truth, nobody appeared to care. A stooped, pinched and shabby little figure with an air of timorous shyness and haunting pathos about him, he looked for all the world as if he had just emerged from a drawing by Daumier. When he went out, he was swallowed up immediately in the immensity of the metropolis. When he came back, he retired at once unto himself. He seemingly lived in the desolation of utter loneliness and the hopelessness of abject poverty—a forgotten man submerged in the teeming population of the vast city.

As the Winter set in, he was seen less and less. For several days before Christmas, he was not seen at all. Then some incident with which I am not familiar led the authorities to visit his wretched habitation. They found him dead—dead on the greatest day in the Christian calendar, a victim of acute privation and long neglect. As he had lived by himself, apparently alienated from his fellowmen, so he had died, with no one to smooth his pillow for the last time, or to say a prayer or utter even so much as a friendly word to mitigate the pangs of departure into the great unknown.

When they took out his pathetic remains, consigned no doubt to a potter's grave, the neighbors merely shrugged their shoulders. Another poor devil gone, who was doubtless a sore burden to himself and certainly of no possible good to anybody else. Then they dismissed him from mind. There was, however, one fact that the neighbors did not know.

When the authorities examined his poor and meager effects, they found literally thousands of receipts for postal orders. They covered a period of many years. They were not large in individual amounts but they represented hundreds of English pounds in the aggregate. They all went to charities—charities of all kinds, without discrimination as to race, creed or color of the beneficiaries. Orphanages, hospitals, shelters, homes for the aged, all manner of institutions for the relief of human misery in all its pitiful forms were included in the benefactions. Yes, and among the list animal welfare societies had not been forgotten. The last receipt was for a contribution to the Salvation Army to buy Christmas dinners for the poor.

This man had lived in extreme penury and died in utter destitution that the least of these, his brethren, might be administered unto in their helplessness, want and suffering—that those who were hungry might be given meat, that those who were thirsty might be given drink, that the stranger might be taken in, the naked clothed, and the sick visited. The brief item I read in a London paper some years ago, and upon which this story is based, gave no hint of the personal drama or inner crisis—if such there was—which led to this great renunciation. But surely in some way the transforming power and grace of that love and compassion which Jesus insistently preached and consistently lived and died to vindicate, had quickened the heart and possessed the soul of this man of the London slums, and had become the absorbing passion of his life.

Six Accidents On Newton Roads In 24-Hour Span

Six minor auto accidents occurred in Newton last weekend during a 24-hour period. Most of the accidents happened in heavy fog that enveloped the area.

Included in the accidents was a collision of a police cruiser and a car. Patrolman Paul F. Cummings, of 24 Columbus pl., West Newton, was the driver of the cruiser parked on Centre st., near Norwood ave., Newton Centre, when a car police said was operated by Charlotte Lynch, of Brighton, was in collision with it.

Adeline C. Weiner, of 31 Fox Hill rd., Newton Centre, was treated for a head injury at Newton - Wellesley Hospital after her auto struck a utility pole at 1073 Walnut st., Newton Highlands. She told police another car forced her off the road.

Allen M. Gopen, of 63 Bonad rd., West Newton, suffered injuries to his left side in a two-car accident on Austin st., Newtonville. Eugene McGrath, of 17 Hull st., Waltham, was uninjured.

Another two-car accident at Chestnut and Boylston sts., Newton Upper Falls, resulted in heavy damage to the vehicles. Police identified the drivers as Guido J. Andrews, of 1124 Chestnut st., Newton Upper Falls, and Heikka Lampela, of New York City.

No injuries were reported in two more two-car accidents. One was at Boylston st. and Langley rd., Newton Centre, and the other on Hammond st., Chestnut Hill. Out of town drivers were involved.

Director Sees New Era For Hospitals

More than 200 attending the annual dinner and evening program of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, held on December 6th, heard the hospital director describe the busiest year ever and discuss the accelerating changes in the nature of hospitals.

In his annual report to the trustees and to the community, director William S. Brines of Wellesley noted the 250-bed teaching hospital saw records of service set in nearly every area during the 12 months ended September 30, the hospital's fiscal year.

He said the number of x-ray examinations topped 28,000, an increase of 2,000 over 1965. Emergency cases rose to nearly 16,000 or better than 1,000 more than the hospital had received in 1965. A total of 268,000 procedures performed by the laboratories of pathology represented an increase of six percent over levels of a year ago.

Days of care provided to patients of the hospital totalled 74,112, the highest number in history. Occupancy of adult beds averaged nearly 93 percent, or a peak level, the director revealed.

"The day of the individual hospital and independent decisions in the field of hospital care may well have ended during 1966," director Brines also cautioned.

"From now on hospitals will find a need to plan, decide and act in closer unison. Two powerful forces will be in contention. They will be the payers on the one hand, whether government or insurers. Today they participate in about 90 percent of all hospital care purchases.

"The second force will be the hospitals themselves, the providers of service, arrayed and allied to represent the people of the community.

"Both will strive to be spokesmen for a common public, but with a differing emphasis. The payer will focus upon how much it costs. The providers will focus upon the services people need in order to be healed. The inevitable clash of viewpoints will provoke lusty give and take on an entirely different plane from heretofore. To assure that it is a stronger, progressing health care system will take leadership and community understanding. Both payer and provider, in the end, represent the same person — the patient."

Medicare, the director reported, was a major challenge during 1966.

"After months of predicting and preparing, selecting an intermediary and tooling up to meet the regulations, we moved into the new realm of national health financing. Even now, five months later, we have no real experience from which to make long term predictions, save that the program has had great impact upon our accounts receivable and produced a great deal of new paperwork.

"One simply does not step lightly into a movement that will encompass 60 - million citizens, one quarter of the men, women and children comprising the national population," he said.

Touching upon other problems, Mr. Brines cited shortages in the nursing profession in general. He criticized the undisciplined predictions of an organized move toward baccalaureate degree programs for nurse education.

"These, he said, are made in the face of great shortages, when recruiting should be at its strongest for any form of nurse education especially since there is no major source other than the hospital diploma school today."

The cost of care remains an enigma, he pointed out.

"People demand of the hospital and of medicine that there be night and weekend coverage of every kind, at all moments, and of the very best. All skills are expected, during time periods few people would consider working themselves. Against these as a government, we legislate minimum wage laws and laws of time assignment.

"All are decided according to 40-hour, five day week thinking. It is one of our great blessings that even now, in the face of union pressures and non-professional influence, those who work in hospitals really care."

Mr. Brines praised the substantial contributions of the medical staff, the board of trustees and volunteers of the hospital.

He noted the formal teaching affiliation with Tufts University School of Medicine grows more effective and productive with each passing day.

During the annual meeting of the board of trustees, held on Tuesday afternoon, officers were elected and new trustees were named.

The officers for 1967 are Jarvis Farley of Wellesley, president; Richard H. Lovell of Newton, first vice president; Philip C. Raye of Wellesley Hills, second vice president; David H. Harris of Wellesley, treasurer; William Wright of Wellesley, assistant treasurer; and Harold Bishop of Wellesley, clerk of the corporation.

New trustees elected are Donald P. Babson of Wellesley, vice president, treasurer of United Business Service; Arthur D. Baldwin, M.D., of Wellesley, immediate past chief of medicine at the hospital; Robert E. Giese of Wellesley, vice president, treasurer of R. H. Stearns Co.; Edward A. Green of West Newton, vice president and group actuary of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company; David H. Harris of Wellesley, management consultant; and David C. Hoover of Wellesley Hills, account executive with Eaton and Howard investment counselors.

Also, Miss M. Elizabeth Kilburn of West Newton, a member of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Aid Association; John B. G. Palen of Auburndale, vice president and trust officer of the Newton-Waltham Bank & Trust Company; Burton S. Stern of West Newton, senior vice president of the Zayre Corporation; D. Thomas Trigg of Wellesley, executive vice president of the National Shawmut Bank; and William Wright, a partner Haskins and Sells, certified public accountants.

Honorary trustees elected by the trustees were William F. Shelley of Wellesley, a partner in Vance, Saunders and Company, Inc., investment counselors; and Roger W. Babson of Wellesley Hills, internationally known business analyst.

Recommend New Newton Taxi's Have Meters

A new ordinance requiring meters in all new taxis licensed for operation in Newton has been recommended by the city's Franchises and Licenses Committee.

The proposal is designed to implement a petition from the city sealer requiring the testing and sealing of all taxi meters and providing a penalty for illegal operation.

There are now 55 cabs operating in the city. Of those, only seven are without meters and charge on a flat-rate basis. The F.&L. Committee suggested a variance to allow the seven cabs to continue to operate without meters.

The new regulation also provides that meters must be used in all transactions except when the passenger consents to be charged a flat rate.

One section of the proposed new ordinance bans drivers from picking up additional fares without the consent of the prior passenger.

The present ordinance says a cabbie cannot pick up another fare if the prior passenger objects.

In recent months, Newton taxis have been strictly regulated.

In addition to a twice-a-year police inspection plus a twice-a-year state inspection, cabs in Newton must have standardized lettering four inches high and a half inch wide on both sides of the vehicle listing the owner's or company name, and the city.

The seven taxis presently without meters were allowed a variance due to the high cost of installing meters which is often over $300.

However, officials said the life expectancy of any suburban cab is short and Newton expects to be fully metered within three years.

Partnership Teachers Fill Definite Need

Favorable reports from all quarters were heard at the recent evaluation meeting of teachers involved in the Partnership Teachers' Program held at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union in Boston.

The program provides hard-to-get part-time teachers to schools in Newton and other communities.

Commenting on the advantages of Partnership Teaching at the elementary level, one teacher stated: "Two teachers looking at one child provide the same improvement in perspective that binocular vision does. Each sees aspects of the child that one alone cannot. The result is more accurate perception of the student as a whole."

Part-time teaching provides a solution to one of education's perennial problems — how to get enough teachers of superior calibre. Many experienced, highly motivated teachers cannot teach full-time because of family responsibilities. By having two teachers on a half-time schedule, many of these excellent teachers may be returned to the classroom.

Mrs. Sandra Lerner, 7 Hyde avenue, Newton, is on a Guidance Partnership in the Newton school system. Mrs. Shirley Frant, 131 Westchester road, Newton, is a fifth grade Patrnership Teacher in the Nahum Hardy School, Waltham. Mrs. Ruth Wheeler, 20 Caulfield road, Newton Centre, is a part-time teacher at the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown.

Things From Dulcimers To Dolls Shown At Library

Dulcimers, dolls and decorative old Christmas cards are harmoniously displayed this month at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre st., along with the beautiful menorahs and dreidles of Chanukah.

The dulcimers, hand made by George Brewer of Newton, are replicas of old instruments which originated generations ago in the southern Appalachian mountains. The plucked dulcimer is often made of native woods, though each individual maker (for dulcimers are always made by hand) seems to have worked out a combination of woods which he considers best for tonal qualities.

The dolls, created by Mrs. Adalyn Daniels of Natick, are reproductions of the Seneca Indian craft of apple head dolls. This craft originated in New York state 250 years ago.

Interest in the almost forgotten art of making the intriguing little old folk apple head dolls is being revived today. Mrs. Daniels, a sculptor, has been making her dolls for three years. Her method is a long process which takes from four to five weeks to complete. Each apple dries differently, and it is up to the imagination and skill of the maker to decide on the personality of the doll. Apple head dolls are classified as collectors' items, and will last indefinitely if cherished by the owner.

The old Christmas cards are from the collection of Robert McCarron of Newton, who tells us that only in the last hundred years have Christmas cards been popular. In his collection are many unusual types of cards, including three-dimensional, fringe-trimmed, gelatin-coated, Christmas postal cards, and cards used at Chrsitmas time as advertising pieces by merchants all over the country. Among those in the display at the Newton Free Library are such commercial cards used by local Boston firms, some of whom are still doing business.

Prang, a Boston firm which was one of the largest makers of Christmas cards, is represented with a group of cards whose designs are unmistakable and uniquely charming. Visitors to the library will be surprised to see the evolution of Santa Claus from the early days to today.

The final holiday season exhibit is a collection of Chanukah menorahs, along with Chanukah gelt (coins) for the youngsters and Chanukah dreidles or tops. Mrs. Jack Gordon, education chairman of Temple Emanuel Sisterhood, has put together a delightful arrangement, which shows the various articles used during the Chanukah Festival of Lights.

Organ Virtuoso To Give Recital Here Saturday

Organ virtuoso Anthony Newman of Cambridge will give the sixth in a musical marathon of nine recitals of the complete organ works of Johann Sebastian Bach Saturday evening, Dec. 17 at Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

The unusual recital, scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. sharp, will be presented in the College Chapel, 885 Centre street, Newton. A donation may be made at the door.

Dr. Newman will play at this performance a varied program of preludes, chorales, and fugues, as well as the great German composer's "Trio Sonata Number 6 in G."

The young organist recently lectured and gave harpsichord recitals at Princeton University and Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart. Later this month he will present a lecture on and demonstration of his own major organ composition, a fantasia, at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City.

Civic Symphony Orchestra Being Organized Here

Newton residents are soon to have their own civic symphony orchestra.

Formation of the group is underway, and Michel Sasson, a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has been invited to be the conductor and the group's musical director.

With the Symphony for the past seven years, Mr. Sasson came to Boston after study at the Conservatoire in Paris.

Primarily, the orchestra will serve as a place for amateur musicians to meet and find enjoyment in playing with an organized group. It will encourage soloists to join. Mr. Sasson will also welcome composers who wish a hearing for their compositions.

Other than rehearsing the usual repertoire of concert pieces, Mr. Sasson plans to offer the members an opportunity to play many baroque, classical, romantic and modern pieces.

Persons interested in joining the orchestra can make contact with Mrs. Alan Bennett at 106 Brookline St., Chestnut Hill, 969-4573.

Rev. Smith Is Participant In Hub Discussion

The Rev. Burton S. Smith of Newton Presbyterian Church was one of the participants in a discussion of morality in government at the 72 annual luncheon program of the Churchman's League for Civil Welfare, held last week in Boston.

Principal speaker at the luncheon was the Rev. Dr. Alfred B. Minyard, executive director of the league.

Rev. Minyard emphasized the need to put the common good above partisan issues in government and called for citizen pressure in favor of a reform in civil service. He also recommended a search for effective ways of dealing with dishonesty in government.

Local Legislators Co-Sponsors Of Bill For Wider Social Services

Three Newton members of the House of Representatives have joined 18 other legislators in co-sponsoring a new bill, filed Wednesday, Dec. 7, which is designed to bring broadened social services to all citizens of the Commonwealth through changes in the public welfare system.

The Newton representatives are Theodore D. Mann, Joseph G. Bradley and Irving Fishman. Beryl M. Cohen, who represents Brookline and a part of Newton in the Senate; Dr. Martha M. Eliot, chairman of the Massachusetts Committee on Children and Youth, and Henry M. Leen, president of United Community Services of Greater Boston, are the petitioners for the legislation.

The proposed legislation, based upon an intensive study of the Commonwealth's public welfare system has been prepared by a team of specialists in many aspects of public welfare. A similar proposal was submited to the Joint Committee on Public Welfare at the last session and referred to the Committee for study before adjournment.

In addition to providing for State administration and financing, other changes included in the proposed legislation are:

That social services essential to meeting the needs of people in trouble or facing trouble be made available to all citizens of the State, no matter where they live or what their economic status may be.

That these people may find help in easily accessible community service centers which will provide not only financial assistance but also a full range of services they may need for the protection of their children and the preservation of their families.

Under the present system, composed of 270 local public assistance offices, 106 of which have one-man staffs, Massachusetts is not providing large numbers of its neediest citizens with the services to which they are entitled.

The proponents of this welfare legislation are convinced that state administration and state financing represent the only feasible and comprehensive plan which would enable many thousands of people who are now recipients of welfare to become independent, increase possibilities for healthy growth and development of children and decrease the number of broken homes.

It is believed by authors of the legislation that it will eliminate existing inequities in welfare assistance and provide more efficient and effective administration.

Threshing Bee Recalls Old Time Farming Days

BEDFORD, Iowa (UPI) — Allen Bartles brought up memories and skills of the past when he staged on old-fashioned threshing bee to harvest his oats.

He used hay racks pulled by mules, a threshing machine, and big meals for the workers. Adding to the old-fashioned atmosphere was an outdoor washup spot, complete with tubs and mirror.

About the only thing lacking was a steam engine. The threshers had to rely on a tractor for power.

The threshing machine, now owned by Bartles, had been in retirement since combines came into use. But Ed Moellenberndt, 78-year-old former owner of the machine, recalled one summer when he threshed on 57 consecutive days.

Moellenberndt, who spent 56 seasons in the threshing business, has been helping Bartles in the old-fashioned venture.

Mark D. Alpert, son of Dr. and Mrs. D. Robert Alpert, 34 Whittier Rd., Newtonville, a freshman at Tufts University College of Liberal Arts, has been elected Marshal of the class of 1970. He is a graduate of Newton High School.

Safe Toy Campaign Launched To Prevent Accidents To Eyes

It is estimated that several hundred American children will suffer needless eye accidents during the coming holiday season due to potentially dangerous toys and Christmas tree hazards and that some will become blinded, reports the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc.

On behalf of the Society's nation-wide Safe Toy Campaign, John W. Ferree, M.D., executive director of the NSPB, warns parents that 17% of the more serious injuries to children's eyes are caused by missile-type toys such as pellet guns, dart guns, air guns, bean shooters and many toys with rubber bands such as sling shots.

He cites a recent case of a four-year old boy who was accidentally struck in the eye by a plastic whirling helicopter launched at close range with a rubber band causing an eye injury which could result in blindness.

Dr. Ferree also alerts parents against buving "seemingly harmless" toys having protruding points, sharp edges, detachable parts or those made with flammable or plastic materials that shatter. Last month President Johnson signed "Child Protection" legislation which includes banning the sale of children's toys containing hazardous substances.

As part of its seasonal Safe Toy Campaign, the Society recomemnds that:

Lighted candles should never be used on the Christmas tree and all tree decorations should be unbreakable and nonflammable.

All electrical wiring should be double-checked for shorts that can cause sparks and flames.

The Society emphasizes that good eye safety habits and attitudes should be practiced in thehome ont only at Christmas time but all year round. Aerosol spray cans containing many different pressurized liquids such as insecticides, deodorants, antibiotics, oven cleaners, paint, and hair fixatives, should be kept out of reach of children at all times. It has been recently found that these liquids, if accidentally sprayed into the eye, can cause severe corneal damage.

Christmas trees should be kept away from heated radiators or fireplaces.

Christmas trees, not made fire-proof by approved chemical sprays, should be kept in water to prevent drying and causing fire hazards.

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindess, Inc., founded in 1908, is the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in the prevention of blindness through a comprehensive program of community services, public and professional education and research.

18 Judo Clubs Take Part In First Senior Tourney

The Bay State Judo Club under the sponsorship of the Newton Recreation Department conducted its first invitational Senior Men's Tournamet at the Meadowbrook Jr. High School recently. Eighteen Judo Clubs from the New England States participated in individual man to man matched and also entered into the five man team contests.

In the white belt 154 pound class, young Frank Mariner and Mark Silin placed 2nd and 3rd respectively. Hans Hailey fought his way to a 1st place, over 13 Determined adversaries, In the 176 pound white belt division. Ken Sidman placed 2nd with the 154 pound brown belts; and then cheered his dad Mr. Sol Sidman on to a 2nd place win in the black belt open weight class. Ted Angus, placed 3rd in the 205 pound brown belt class.

The highlight of the day was the victory of the Bay State Judo Club's five man team over the best that the other, older, more experienced Judo club could throw at them. The team trophy was proudly received after A tournament record of all wins and no losses.

The Bay State Club expresses its deep appreciation to the City of Newton and its Recreation Department for the excellent cooperation received in this tournament and in all phases of its effort to introduce the sport in the area.

Zoning Change Petition Is Turned Down By 4-3 Vote

A petition for a zoning change to permit the construction of a development of 44 garden-type apartments along Route 9 near Route 128 in Newton Upper Falls was turned down by a 4-3 vote of the Aldermanic Claims and Rules Committee Monday night.

The matter is now scheduled to be voted on by the members of the full Board of Aldermen at their meeting next Monday night.

However, a two-thirds vote of the Aldermanic Board would be necessary to grant the zoning change. It cannot be approved by a simple majority vote, as is the case with most matters to come before the Board.

Krist E. Apog of the Royal Colonial Gardens Realty Trust petitioned for the right to build the development of garden type apartments in the area around Macon place and Cragmore road.

Members of CANDOR, who have vigorously opposed the proposed development, last night warmly praised the majority vote of the Claims and Rules Committee.

At the same time they launced a drive to have residents of the area, where it is suggested the development be located, contact their Aldermen and voice their objections to the petition.

Fliers listing 11 different objections to proposed development also were distributed by members of CANDOR (Committee Against Needless Downgrading of Real Estate) who contend that single and two-family homes should be erected on the Apog property.

The claim that the suggested development of garden-type apartments would lower the value of private homes in the area, would create additional traffic problems on Boylston street and would lead to moves for the erection of other apartments and commercial buildings which would alter the character of the neighborhood.

A big turnout of residents of the area in which the development is proposed is expected at next Monday night's Aldermanic session.

Varied Adult Activities At Community Center Now

Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director of the Newton Community Center, Inc., announces the opening of registrations for varied adult activities.

Adult Painting classes under the direction of Miss Fayette Hauser is a new activity added to the Center's program. The classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday evenings with registrants selecting the night of their preference. The course will run for 10 weeks beginning on Monday, January 9th and Wednesday, January 4th.

The course is designed for those who wish to learn the essentials of painting and wish to continue. Explorations into the structure of basic forms will lead to the painting of still life and portraits. A variety of mediums will be used. No experience is necessary.

Miss Hauser has studied at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, New York; Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts; and the Art Student League of New York. In addition she has also taught at the School of Creative Arts, Martha's Vineyard.

Popular Dan Meany returns to lead the Golf School. Sven classes are scheduled for successive Wednesday evenings beginning on January 18th, Friday evenings January 20th, and in addition Tuesday mornings beginning January 17th.

Each class is for a one-hour period with a maximum of six students per class. There are openings in evening classes with starting times of 6:30, 7:30, 8:30 and 9:30 and in the morning groups held at 9:30, 10:30 and 11:30 a.m.

Lessons are planned for the driver (stance, hip turn, grip, footwork, and action), fairway woods, long irons, and chipping and putting. It is suggested that students wear sneakers of a comfortable shoe. Private clubs are optional as equipment is available at the school. All classes will be held at Netwon Community Center, 429 Cherry Street in West Newton.

A class in cake decorating conducted by Ruth Lucas of Harvard Street, Newtonville will begin soon with the date to be announced. The classes are held Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Lucas formerly of Schraffts of Boston, has many years experience specializing in birthday, wedding, and Bar Mitzvah cakes and is widely known for her creative "conversation type" cakes.

In commenting on the course, Mrs. Lucas stated that a homemaker with little or no experience can easily learn to decorate beautifully and professionally starting with the simple steps of cake decorating to border work, beautiful life-like flowers, lattice work, basket weaving, scenic and special cake arrangements.

She will continue, as in previous years, the practice of giving a decorated cake to one of the individuals present in the class. Mrs. Lucas will demonstrate by decorating the prize cake at the first session.

For information on these and other activities visit the Center at 429 Cherry St., in West Newton or phone 244-2260.

Thieves Lacking Christmas Spirit Continue Crime

Crime continued unabated in Newton during the past week even though the Christmas season is in full-swing. In fact, thieves not yet imbued with the season's spirit, stooped to stealing Christmas trees and lights.

Four trees were stolen from Art's Market on River st. by an ocupant of a car with Ohio registration plates, while $17 worth of lights were taken from two homes on Lowell ave.

An undetermined amount of cash and loot was netted in four burglaries from homes and business establishments, while auto thieves took four cars and broke into another.

Mrs. Ida Silverman, of 11 Garrison st., reported a seal coat, a watch, pearls and a portable color television set were stolen from her home in a Thursday break.

On the same day, Mrs. Beulah Cunningham, of 32 Goddard st., reported $125 was taken from her home.

Science Church Reading Room Is On Willard St.

Walk through the business district of almost any city or town and sooner or later you are bound to come upon a "Reading Room." They look like any other shop at first, until you get near enough to look inside.

Beyond the window, with its display of books and literature, you'd probably see a clerk standing at a sales counter, and beyond her a larger area where people are quietly reading and studying.

You look again at the name on the sign: Christian Science Reading Room. You've seen the name before. What does it mean?

The Reading Room is one primary way in which the Christian Science Church keeps its doors "open to the world" — reaching out into the midst of everyday activities, setting aside a place for people to renew their sense of communion with God.

It's also a public information center to which anyone can go to ask questions about Christian Science, to read, buy, or borrow its literature, or just spend a few moments in study and prayer.

The Reading Room is maintained largely as a service to the public — which is why it is so often found in the business district. It is open usually during the same hours as the shops around it, and often on shopping nights.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Newton, maintains a free Christian Science Reading Room at 300 Walnut street, Newtonville. It is open weekdays 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m. On Fridays the Room is open until 9 p.m. A warm welcome is extended to all to visit this Reading Room.

Bob Salter, 30 Kirkstall rd., Newtonville, has been chosen as a member of the band at Williams and Mary College, Williamsburg,, Va. The band is a group of 71 versatile musisians.

1st Christmas Card Made 122 Yrs. Ago

In London, 122 years ago, from a plate designed and engraved by a 16-year-old apprentice, emerged the first Christmas card.

Young William Maw Eagley's quaintly cluttered card showed scenes of a formal banquet, a party dance and skaters.

Beneath the illustration appeared the greeting, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

The next famous card appeared in 1844, arousing shouts of protest from temperance crusaders.

Sir Henry Cole asked J. C. Horsely, a friend and artist at the Royal Academy in London, to design a card for him.

The card, showing a family toatsing Christmas with glasses of wine, was the cause of the furore.

Sir Henry had sent 1,000 cards that Christmas—the last he ever sent.

Though credit is generally given to Eagley, there is a possibility that his card may have been antedated by R. H. Pease, of New York.

Pease, who owned a store in Albany from 1834 to 1855, sent a card bearing Christmas scenes as an advertisement for his store. The year he used the cards is not known.

The "Father of the American Christmas Card" is Louis Prang. His first cards were made in his lithography shop in Boston in 1874.

He was prompted along this line by his friend, Charles Dickens.

The latter sent Prang a card he'd rceeived from Mrs. E. O. Whitney of England.

Prang then printed the card for his family and friends.

But it was not until Prang began creating his own exquisitely beautiful cards that his fame spread. Before long he was selling his cards all over the U.S. for several dollars each.

Prang's cards appeared in as many as 20 colors.

Very few of them used Christmas scenes but instead were illustrated with designs of spring flowers, harvest scenes and pictures of children playing.

From that small beginning in 1844 grew a demand for cards that is so great today, many large companies work year 'round to turn out billions of every description.

Christmas trees should not be located near exits in the home, says Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies, which cite reports of persons trapped in rooms by flames blocking the doorway.

Perfume Source

Roses were among the first flowers used for perfume.

"This is the sum we must raise," said Mrs. Zimble, "to complete payment of the $125,000 pledge we made to the hospital." The gift made possible the construction of a 25-bed complex on the hospital's third floorr.

Stressing the role of the hospital as a non-profit institution, Mrs. R. Sheldon Stein, Auxiliary president, urged the workers to "know your hospital before going out to sell tickets and ads.

Most important," she said, "is the fact that this hospital is chartered as a charitable corporation under the laws of this Commonwealth, and each year renders thousands of dollars of what is technically termed 'free and unreimbursed care.' "

Sessions -

The Graphic subsequently obtained a copy of the declaration by the principals in favor of the existing split session.

"We, the principals of the 24 elementary schools of Newton, wish to go on record as being unanimously opposed to any change in our schedule, either to incorporate a lunch program or to regularize the school day. As professionals who have spent a lifetime in working with children, we feel we are most qualified to make the recommendations concerning such policies in our they asserted.

The principals stressed that their primary concern is with the children and that they have never stood for the rigid "status quo."

"We know," they declared, "that for the great majority of children, the present noon schedule offers a change in environment, a much needed break from the confines of supervision.

"All of us have worked in school lunch programs and we know from personal experience how hard it is to regenerate a child's interest without this relaxing change of pace," they continued.

"We know that of great importance to the child is the quality of the teaching. Parents must realize that Newton teachers spend as much time in planning lessons as in the actual presentation. Our teachers need to have access to their classrooms during the noon hour in order to prepare, organize, and set up the materials to insure effective afternoon instruction.

"Any use of the classroom for non-educational purposes is bound to have an adverse effect on the school program. We who were once teachers truly appreciate this need," the principals stated.

"We firmly believe that the Tuesday and Thursday afternoon schedule should be protected and preserved. We know that Newton has long been the envy of other school systems because of our leadership role in providing learning time for teachers. Our teachers work harder, have been more committed to excellence, and have been more able to function creatively because of our schedule.

"How do teachers use these 'free' afternoons?" they asked.

"They help children, confer with parents, attend workshops, plan with other teachers, work with student teachers, and consult with supervisors and principals.

"Why do we feel that these activities are more appropriate under the present schedule? Because it gives the teacher two large unbroken blocks at a peak time when she is less tired and more creative. We are concerned that a change in the schedule would negate the effectiveness of these vital learning experiences for child, teacher and parent, "the principals said.

"We cannot talk with our teachers, they cannot talk with us during class hours," the principals went on. "Newton principals have long used Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and the noon hour for these very necessary dialogues.

"Paramount to the principal's job is the training of new teachers. There is no other time when this can be done. We feel strongly that we need more, rather than less, time for communication which does not infringe on the teacher's class time.

"We seriously question the availability of qualified lunch supervisors. We know how difficult it is to maintain discipline in any unstructured program.

"In addtion, we know that we would have to assume the primary responsibility for any school lunch program. From past experience we well remember that more than two hours of a principal's day were spent in non-professional details such as finding replacements for supervisor absentees, replacing lost lunches, administering first aid, and settling the myriad disciplinary problems created by unnatural confinement and inadequate supervision," they declared.

"We do not believe that Newton parents would wish us to substitute lunch program supervision for other activities which are of real educational benefit to their children," the principals stressed.

"We know that there is a real priority of need in our schools ranging from better salaries for the teachers to better equipment for the classrooms, from increasing personnel to replacing schools. We cannot believe that a $300,000 lunch program serves any real educational need, nor that it deserves a priority position in the school budget," they asserted.

The principals expressed their gratitude for the support which Newton parents have given them and noting that the independence with which school policies have been made have served the morale of both the children and the teachers to advantage.

"Therefore we make a strong recommendation that the present elementary school schedule should be continued in order that we may remain a healthy and productive school system," they concluded.

In announcing the tentative report of the schedule study group headed by Dr. Malcolm S. Knowles, Superintendent Brown said, "They are not ready to make final recommendations. But both the members of the commission and other people have requested that information be given on the work of the committee. We would like to do that next week.

By that time we will have compiled most of the data on the cost of the program, the position of the teachers, the position of the parents, the feelings of the parents and brought the information together in tentative form," Brown declared.

In answer to a query by Committeeman Edwin Hawkridge Brown estimated that about two-thirds of the parents polled had answered.

The move to present a progress report on the school session studies came after Superintendent Brown and Chairman Berman had been criticized by groups of parents who favor the single session and who had requested a meeting with the study committee and a report on its tentative findings before the questionaire was sent out.

Cub Pack 316 In Meeting At Claflin Gym

Games led by den chiefs Wayne Johnson, John MacKinnon, Brian Fitzgerald, and Ted Gallant began the meeting for Pack 316 last Thursday evening at the Claflin School Gymnasium. Flag ceremonies were led by Den 14, consisting of Scott Pohlman, Dick Thomas, Richard Raum, Mark Fallon. Gregory Fitzgerald, and Jay Brinkerhoff.

Cubmaster Carl Hershfield presented awards to the following boys: Bobcat pin, Jack Chinian; Wolf Badges, Brian Cutrone, Joseph Doyle, and William Hochberg; Bear Badges, Jeffrey Banks, Philip Singer, Scott Pohlman, Dick Thomas, and Gregory Fitzgerald; Gold Arrow, Robert Hershfield.

Harold Perry, neighborhood commissioner for Scouts, was welcomed and spoke to the boys. Also introduced was Vincent SantaMaria, cubmaster from Pack No. 375.

Skits from the various dens depicting Yuletide around the world were enjoyed. The countries that were represented were: Israel, Germany, Holland, Belgium, and Mexico.

The following den chiefs led the boys in singing carols: Ted Gallant, Brian Fitzgerald, John Mackinnon, and Wayne Johnson. Refreshments were served by the mothers: Mrs. Alvin Jerome, Mrs. Jesse Banks, Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald, Mrs. James Doyle, Mrs. Arthur Cutrone, Mrs. James Toyias, Mrs. June Pohlman, Mrs. Anne Biggs, and Mrs. Alvin Hochberg, and Mrs. Carl Hershfield.

Appreciation was expressed by the cubmaster for the books the cubs donated to the Children's Ward of Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The next meeting will be Jan. 12, at the Claflin Gym at 7 p.m.

with all the other Republican Governors - the liberals, the conservatives and the moderates alike.

Nobody was taking a back-hand slap at him. Nobody was angry with him, as some of the Governors are with fellow Governors George Romney and Nelson Rockefeller. Volpe didn't push himself out in front where he would be an inviting target to be cut down.

Volpe is in a good strategic spot as the jockeying for position starts within the Republican party. He can sit back and bide his time while Romney, Richard M. Nixon and some of the others cut each other up.

Observers at the Colorado Springs convention were surprised at the belief held by a number of Republican Governors that President Johnson will not be a candidate for re-election in 1968.

If they're right, Senator Robert F. Kennedy will loom as the probable Democratic candidate for President in the '68 campaign.

Whether LBJ will retire from office at the close of his present term is something that probably not even he has yet decided. So the conjecture at Colorado Springs must have been entirely speculative.

If President Johnson's health is good 18 months from now, the guessing is that he will run again.

But if he should decide to step out because of his health or for any other reason, there's no other Democrat in sight who could defeat Bobby Kennedy for the Presidential nomination or who would have as good a chance of winning election.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey presumably would challenge Bobby Kennedy at a convention. Humphrey, however, is so lacking in popular appeal that he would have little or no chance of gaining the nomination.

In fact, if Johnson stands for reelection to a second full four-year term and is faced with a hard fight, he might be forced to strengthen his own prospects by dropping Humphrey and replacing him with Bobby Kennedy.

War Against Poverty Cannot Be Lessened

To many persons residing in the comfortable suburbs, the term, "urban crisis," mostly connotes traffic jams, crowded streets and possibly air pollution.

Few of them actually realize the complexity and enormity of the problems confronting the major cities of the nation such as Boston.

When Boston Mayor John F. Collins spoke out recently on the urban crisis at the annual convention of the National League of Cities, he was thinking in terms of poverty, of ghettoes, of human lives.

Collins was right when he declared that the flow of rhetoric about the "Great Society" should cease if America is unable to fight both the war in Vietnam and the war against poverty.

But the fact is that the nation cannot afford to lessen the war against poverty because in its own way it is just as important as the war to prevent the spread of Communism in Southeast Asia.

Collins' speech, touching as it did upon a critical and pressing problem, drew nation-wide attention.

As he pointed out, many cities are not even holding their ground in the worsening urban crisis.

It is the cities which have the poor in great numbers, the unemployed, the ghettoes, the slum housing, the high tax rates.

The plight of the cities, of course, is worsened by the fact that many young, middle-income families understandably move to the suburbs as soon as they can afford to do so, and the percentage of the poor rises.

In his seven years as Mayor of Boston, Collins probably has made more headway in meeting the urban crisis in his city than any other municipal executive in the nation.

As Collins reviews the progress he has made and then contemplates the tremendous problems still to be faced, it is little wonder that he is unwilling to commit himself on standing for another term as Mayor.

If Collins should decide in the next few months that eight years in a difficult, demanding, taxing and trying job are enough, it will be Boston's loss for few men understand the urban crisis and what to do about it as does he.

The only way the cities can meet and solve the problems of the so-called urban crisis is with very substantial help from the federal government, as Collins emphasized in his talk.

They simply don't have the money to do the job which needs to be done.

The large municipalities such as Boston are caught in a vicious circle. If they raise real estate taxes to obtain needed money, they heighten the flight to the suburbs and worsen their own predicament.

This problem may seem remote to the people in the suburban communities and one which really doesn't concern them.

What happens to the core city, however, does affect the entire suburban area, and if the problem is not met, the effect will be felt across the entire state.

Mountain of Bills Await '67 Legislature

If you wonder why the legislative session lasts so long, you should take a look at the mountain of bills awaiting the lawmakers when they assemble for their 1967 session and then scan some of the individual measures.

There are all the hardy perennials, including proposals to legalize beano, establish a sweepstakes and grant pay raises to various State officials.

A number of unique and unusual bills also crop up in a casual scrutiny of the thousands of measures.

Senator Joseph D. Ward of Fitchburg, for example, has filed a bill to ban bullfighting in Massachusetts. As far as is known, nobody had any thought of staging bullfights in the Commonwealth, and as Ward himself indicated the place where the bull is thrown the most is in the hallowed legislative chambers. But just in case anyone gets the idea of holding a bull fight, Ward wants to nip it in the bud.

Students over 65 years of age would not be required to pay any tuition at state or community colleges under the terms of another measure. It would seem that most people who have achieved the age of 65 and decide to go to college might be better able to pay the tuition costs than 18- or 19-year-old boys and girls.

Hunters would be obliged to wear fluorescent orange colored cloth about their head, chest and back under the terms of another bill. The author of that measure says that many hunters now wear red hunting jackets but that optical experts report that six per cent of the people can't distinguish red color.

Anti-theft devices would be required on new automobiles starting in 1969 under the provisions of a bill.

A Norwood legislator wants to impose the 3 per cent sales on coffins which cost more than $500.

Immediate restraint of "barking or vicious dogs" is proposed in a bill sponsored by the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association.

A hot fight is certain to develop over a proposal by the Selectmen's Association for local control over school budgets. No such control now exists in any Bay State community except Boston.

Under the provisions of the bill a school budget could be cut by a City Council, a Board of Aldermen or a Town Meeting.

If the School Committee objected to the budget reduction, it could seek a referendum vote by the people to determine whether the cut should be restored.

A bill filed by the State Public Safety Commissioner would outlaw the sale of exploding cigars and cigarettes.

A new battle will develop on Beacon Hill over a plan for the appointment of 12 additional Superior Court judges.

The measure, however, is likely to gain approval by the House of Represenatives since it is sponsored by Speaker John F. X. Davoren. Davoren's bill calls for the appointment of six more judges in 1967 and another six in 1968.

A Quincy legislator wants a study made to determine the feasibility of having the State pay $350 a year to all persons over 65 years of age who have lived in Massachusetts for at least five years.

First Unitarian Church Students In Yule Program

Students of the Church School of the First Unitarian Society of Newton will present a Christmas program for their families and friends on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 18, at 4:30 o'clock.

Purpose of the program is to involve all the children, from Nursery to Senior High, in a demonstration of the many facets of their Church School experience and, in the spirit of the season, share this exprience with the congregation.

This year, the Junior and Senior Drama groups are combining to present "The Second Shepherd" a medieval morality play. According to drama coach Cris Simmonds, the "Second Shepherd" was the first morality play written for entertainment as well as for teaching a moral. Since it was originally performed in a church, it is appropriate to present it in this manner.

The combined Junior Youth Choirs under the direction of Gary Fuerer will sing "Candlelights of Christmas" by Charles Repper. The Cultural Study Group, which is exploring the Philippines, will offer a "Procession of the Stars."

Teacher Eric Sollee tells us it is traditional in the Philippines to make stars from bamboo and tissue paper and to parade with them through the streets on Christmas Eve. The 4th, 5th and 6th graders of the Cultural Study group have made careful reproductions of these colorful stars and will carry them through the church.

The third graders will present a puppet show enacting the Budda Birth Story.

The Nursery, Kindergarten, first and second grades will offer a manger scene, assisted by their music teacher, Mrs. Ann Buxbaum. Mrs. Arthur E. Laughland, Religious Education Director will read the narration. Original, hand made program covers are being made by the Art Class under the direction of their teacher, Parker Lord.

At the family supper following the program, there will be caroling and dedication of the mitten tree. The tree is decorated beforehand by the primary grades with gay paper mittens, which are replaced by real mittens brought to the dedication. Last year's "mitten harvest" will be taken to the Multi-Service Center in Roxbury by Director Hubert Jones.

Sacred Heart Has Win, Loss And Injuries

The weekend news about Sacred Heart High School's basketball team has been both good and bad.

It was good following the Thursday game against Newman High of Boston, which the local lads won easily by a score of 85 to 55.

It was not so good when the boys took on Sacred Heart of Weymouth Sunday night in a Catholic Suburban League opener. The game ended with the Newton team on the losing end of an 80 to 56 score, and with three of the local boys hors de combat as a result of minor injuries.

Our Lady's High Has Win and Loss

The hoopsters of Our Lady's High School won their opening game last Wednesday evening in their own gym, defeating Newman High School of Boston 68 to 34.

The victory delighted their coach, Tim Hurley, who expressed hope that the Lancers would do equally as well against St. Patrick's High of Watertown, the next night. But his lads failed to do so, losing 68 to 56.

However, the team bested St. Clement's of Somerville 67-65 on Sunday night, in a Catholic Suburban League game played at Somerville.

Red Cross In Repeat Blood Donor Appeal

The Newton Red Cross chapter is repeating its appeal for blood donors with a reminder that the demand is up everywhere, both at home and in Viet Nam.

To complicate matters, the chapter points out, the number of blood donations always decreases during the Christmas season.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at City Hall Cafeteria tomorrow (Friday) afternoon from 12:45 to 6:45 o'clock. Call 527-6000 for an appointment.

A special training seminar for registered nurses was held at Newton Chapter, American Red Cross, on Wednesday, at the Chapter House.

Training this group of nurses was Mrs. John A. Callan, assistant chief nurse of the Massachusetts Red Cross Blood Program. Among the subjects covered was the special pattern of taking medical histories of the donors who present themselves when the bloodmobile comes.

This seminar was open to nurses from the entire area. The nurses from Newton who attended were: Betty Sacks, Theresa Arsenault, Kathleen Dean, Patricia Engelhart, Betty Murphy, Beverly McGrath, Julia Lehan, Mable Callanan.

It is the hope of Mrs. Michael Caira, chairman of nurses for Newton Red Cross, that eventnually all the nurses registered in Newton will avail themselves of these seminars, whenever they are given in the future.

The Universe Including Man Is Golden Text

"God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God."

This will be the Golden Text of this week's Lesson-Sermon titled, "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" to be read in all Christian Science Churches this Sunday.

A related passage from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will be:

"Adhesion, cohesion, and attraction are properties of Mind. They belong to divine Principle, and support the equipoise of that thought-force, which launched the earth in its orbit and said to the proud wave, 'Thus far and no farther.'"

Jules Verne Film

Bowen School PTA will have a showing of Jules Verne's "From Earth to the Moon," a science-fiction film, on Saturday afternoon, December 17, from 1:30 to 3:30 o'clock.

The showing is open to the public.

Is There A Santa?

Dear Editor — I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, "If you see it in the Sun, it's so." Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?

VIRGINIA O'HANLON

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think nothing can be which is not comprehensible to their little minds.

All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or little children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy.

Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Virginias. There could be no child-like faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The external light which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus? You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, and even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign there is no Santa Claus.

The most real things in the world are those that neither worldare those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You may tear apart the baby's rattle to see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, or even the united strength of the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart.

Only faith, fancy, poetry, love or romance can push aside that curtain and view the picture of the supernatural beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus? Thank God he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay ten times ten thousand years from now he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Postal Officials Predict Record Mail at Christmas

All signs point to a record mail load this Christmas, according to postal authorities. Special handling or special delivery should be added to parcels for distant parts of the United States and greeting cards for states outside of New England should be mailed immediately, except for air mail which can be deposited as late as December 17th for delivery anywhere in the country for Christmas.

Packages for New England and local delivery are due for mailing today (Wednesday) and all greeting cards should be sent by December 15th.

Postfaster Ephraim Martin made a special appeal to everyone in the Boston Postal District to take advantage of the special mailing straps contained in the Christmas Mail Kit which was deliverd to every home by letter carriers. Separate LOCAL (as marked on the strap) MASSACHUSETTS (outside Local area) and OUT OF STATE.

The postmaster urged all homeowners to see that their name is on the letter boxes, articles are removed from dark halls where boxes are located which would injure a letter carrier, and remove mail promptly from the box when delivered.

Postmaster Martin reported that the subway postoffices at Part street and Washington street are very convenient for shoppers and commuters in which to purchase stamps or mail cards.

Next Sunday, December 18th, one postoffice in each area will be open from 1:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. On Saturday, December 17th, postoffices which normally open on Saturdays will be open all day.

With some 350 million pieces of mail due for handling this month in Greater Boston, the cooperation of the public is most important, it was said.

Simple Solution

LONDON (UPI) — British security authorities, plagued as they have been in recent years be spy escapes and "leaks," might be forgiven if they long for the good old days. The man who organized Britain's first real secret service was Sir Francis Walsingham, during the days of Queen Elizabeth I. Walsingham's idea on prisoner security was simple: he invariably had such prisoners executed.

Tues. Forum Brings Mayor, Officials Before Residents

The single session, the proposed Langley road extension and zoning on Paul street were the subjects of controversy at a forum sponsored by the Newton Centre Improvement Association at the Mason-Rice School Tuesday night.

Presenting themelves for questioning by the audience were Mayor Monte G. Basbas, School Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman, and Ward 6 Aldermen William L. Bruce and Ernest F. Dietz. Hugh Boyd, president of the Newton Centre Improvement Association, acted as moderator.

Mayor Basbas in his opening remarks addressed himself to all of the problems scheduled for discussion: the Newton Centre Triangle, the construction of a new high school, improved police protection, the Mayor's capital improvement program, appartment house zoning, the condition of buildings on Paul street and the Langley road extension.

Basbas declared that the idea of an extension of Langley road to permit residents in the southern part of Newton to have access to Newton Centre across Boylston street has been under consideration for about two years.

He pointed out that since other streets which formerly crossed the Worcester Turnpike have been closed the only way south Newtonites can get to Newton Centre is by the Parker street overpass, without going as far as Brookline. The Mayor claimed that this difficulty is causing business in Newton Centre to suffer.

He estimated that the cost of constructing a new part of Langley road between Dudley road and Boylston street, and of widening the existing Langley road, including land damages would come to about $400,000.

Mayor Basbas acknowledged that there had been a great deal of opposition to the road and that the matter was awaiting a public hearing. He added that he had asked the Wilbur Smith Associates who are making other traffic studies in Newton to include the Langley road project in their studies.

Alderman Dietz urged objectors to the proposed road to take the project into perspective, saying that it represented a real need for the south side of Newton.

Ward 8 Alderman Alan S. Barkin, who was in the audience, stressed strongly that there has to be an alternative to Parker street when crossing Boylston street since although thousands of Newton residents live to the south of the Worcester Turnpike, Newton fire and police vehicles are stationed to the north of Boylston street and could be blocked by an accident on the Parker street overpass.

The questions from the general public reflected hostility to the proposed new road, A show of hands demonstrated that about 80 per cent of those present were against the Langley road extension.

School Committee Chairman Harold J. Berman said he has completed a little over a year on the School Committee and expressed his satisfaction with the Newton school administration and teachers.

Berman also claimed that Newton spends much less per pupil than many other comparable communities.

In reply to various questions on the single session, Berman explained that parents have been given a chance to express their opinions on whether to retain the present Newton elementary school schedule under which children go home for lunch and return for afternoon classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and are let out at noon on Tuesday and Thursday, or to replace the present system by a program in which the children would eat a cold lunch in the classrooms.

Berman said he is aware that many parents are unhappy with the present system because of added traffic hazards for the children and because of the need to be home at lunch time every day, although other parents, most teachers and all principals are opposed to the single session.

The School Committee Chairman said he has been surprised by how much is involved in the school sessions and asserted that very serious and deep questions of educational philosophy are involved.

He reminded his listeners that the group which has been studying the elementary school schedules will present a progress report next Monday (Dec. 19) at the School Committee meeting and said that the site of the meeting might have to be changed from its usual room at the Stearns School to a larger room due to the amount of interest which has arisen over the single session. He suggested that the Horace Mann School might be employed.

Berman ruled out any discussion of the study group's findings either by the School Committee or by spectators.

The School Committee head disclaimed responsibility for the wording of the questionaire recently sent out to Newton parents on school schedule preference. "I was not happy about the questions," Berman said.

He stated that when the School Committee votes on school schedules he would not base his decision on public opinion. "The opinion of parents certainly has a bearing, although it is not decisive," Berman declared.

He said the elementary teachers would not be asked to supervise the school children during their lunch hour and maintained that they do not do such supervision in any large community.

Berman, who said that he has first hand acquaintance with the limitations of the Newton schools through the experience of his four children, put in a warm word of praise for the great majority of Newton teachers.

He told Mayor Basbas, "I don't care so much about the building program, although I am glad you are going to fulfill your long-term commitments and I know the building program is necessary. I am most impressed with our teachers."

One critic of the split session and of the way Dr. Malcolm Knowles' study group has conducted its poll of parents objected to the fact that teachers had been polled before parents on the school schedules and wondered if it might not be a good idea to poll parents on the proposed increase in teachers salaries.

"I don't think anybody in Newton would like to see the school system run by polls," Berman answered and said the School Committee had not taken any polls and in no way has interfered with the study group's work.

Other debated issues were Newton's burglary rate, the ratio of uniformed police officers to inspectors, the $30 million capital improvement program and piecemeal planning.

Winchester Cathedral

The New Vaudeville Band
PRICED LECHMERE'S WAY

Mono 2.40

Stereo 2.90

Geoff Stephens likes old records. He liked them so much that he spent considerable time rambling in old junk shops for out-of-date 78 rpm's from the 1920's and 1930's. And when this former school teacher gave up the books a few years ago and became involved in the music business as a song writer, producer and manager, it figured that sooner or later, he'd do something about his first love . . . the sound of old records. One day, Geoff Stephens turned out a song that, by now, virtually everyone has heard. It was "Winchester Cathedral" and Stephens knew exactly how it must sound.

So, he sang it himself—in a high-pitched tenor right out of those 1920 and 1930 recordings, he had collected. The result? Not only the fastest selling record in Fontana's history, but also a huge public demand for more of the "new" old sound. The New Vaudeville Band was born. The New Vaudeville Band soon was seen on major programs like Ed Sullivan's Show. A new musical trend was underway.

Here is a collection of that new "old" sound as put together in the inimitable fashion of the New Vaudeville Band. We think it's out of sight, just too much . . . or, er . . . uh . . . better yet, the cat's whiskers. Or how about the bees' knees?

Group Planning N-W Hospital Valentine Ball

Taking time out from wrappings and ribbons and Christmas gifts, a group of Wellesley and Newton women are solidifying plans for the annual Valentine Ball, which will be held on Friday, Feb. 10.

The dinner dance at the Statler Hilton Hotel will provide the funds for a large post-Christmas gift to the Newton - Wellesley Hospital Building Fund. Ruby Newman's orchestra will supply the music for this popular event.

Lavender flyers announcing the date were received last week to remind guests that it was time to think about reserving tables.

A trip to Antigua has been donated by the Ernest Ruegg family of Wellesley Hills as the grand prize of the evening.

Mrs. Howard E. Hansen of Wellesley Hills is the General Chairman for the event.

Winter Tips For A Healthy Heart

This winter, give your heart a break. Some of us groan when cold weather closes in and we see the snow begin to fall. Others thrill to its beauty, and look forward to skiing and other winter activities. In either instance, we would do well to pause and consider for a minute your own physical condition before tackling the snow in the driveway or the toboggan run with the youngsters.

The key to safe outdoor activity in the winter may sound old hat, but it cannot be repeated too often. Keep yourself physically fit on a year-round basis, and you will be in condition to enjoy safely most kinds of strenuous winter activity. A well-rounded all-season program might include swimming, walking or jogging, golf and gardening as well as skiing and skating.

Skiing is an invigorating sport which can be enjoyed at any age, and which can add immeasurably to your pleasure in life. Even those who get off to a late start (and many enthusiastic skiers did not get started until well into their forties or even fifties) find skiing an excellent outlet for their energy.

To get the most out of skiing, it is important to have properly fitted equipment, and to obtain proper instruction. Done correctly skiing is not a dangerous sport — it is only those who undertake more than they are capable of achieving who run into real trouble.

However, there are several points to remember for heart health while skiing. Not only is the air colder than usual at higher altitudes, but the air is thinner and your heart has to work harder to supply sufficient oxygen to meet increased needs. Skiers who leap too abruptly from sea-level swivel chairs to high altitude ski trails can run into respiratory problems unless they allow time to acclimate themselves. And every skier, young or not-so-young, should stop and rest when he begins to tire. According to the Massachusetts Heart Association, a recent survey found that the most skiing accidents occurred in late afternoon among men under 20!

A less enjoyable, but perhaps more urgent, snow-time activity is clearing the walks and drive-way after a storm. No matter how beautiful it is, somehow it must be shoveled away. The man with any history of heart trouble would certainly see to it that someone else takes on this chore . . . a son or daughter, the neighbor's boy who likes to earn a little extra spending money, or the handy-man with the snow-blower.

The man over forty, even with a healthy heart, should proceed with caution to tackle the job. Take it easy, Snow-shoveling is strenuous exercise, and cold weather intensifies the possible strain on the heart. Dress warmly but comfortably. Don't smoke while shoveling and don't begin the job right after eating. If you become breathless, rest until breathing is easy again, If you feel a tightness in your chest ,stop entirely.

Heed these suggestions from your Heart Association. You'll have a happier, healthier winter.

EDMUND PATTERSON

New Civil War Journal Has Newton Angle

Of special interest to Civil War buffs is the recently published book, Yankee Rebel, Civil War Journal of Edmund DeWitt Patterson.

Published by the University of North Carolina Press, the book has a biographical sketch by Edmund Brooks Patterson, West Newton resident and grandson of the author. A great-grandson, Edmund DeWitt Patterson, IV, is a sophomore at Newton High School.

In February, the Newton Free Library will feature a display of the original Civil War manuscript, which is being loaned by Mr. Patterson.

Yankee Rebel is the diary of a boy from Ohio who broke with his Unionist family and joined the Confederate army at the age of 19. The journal moves through his participation in the major battles of Williamsburg, Seven Pines, Seven Days, Fredericksburg, his capture at Gettysburg, and his months in a Federal prison.

The diary records the heroism and glamor of soldiering along with the evil, horror and cowardice he observed. Patterson, who later had a distinguished career as a lawyer and judge in Tennessee, was more than a soldier. He was a scholar, humorist, reporter and philosopher of surprisingly mature views.

Bell Wiley, distinguished historian, has said of this journal "I do not know of any other soldier account which gives a more realistic and vivid representation of what a Civil War battle was like . . . Its excellence is so outstanding as to set it apart from the general run of published (and unpublished) personal narrative.

A recent review by Cecil Eby, Roanoke Times, says: "There are pages of his journal which are among the best in Civil War literature. His description, for example, of being cut down at White Oak Swamp, trampled under foot by both armies, and nearly being bayoncted by a wild Irishman, suggests a battle scene out of Stephen Crane or Hemingway."

The author's grandson, who lives at 3 Davis Ave., West Newton, is a native of Savannah, Tennessee. He is a graduate of the School of Engineering, Vanderbilt Univ., in Nashville, Tenn. and is an engineer with Barry Controls Div., Barry Wright Corp., Watertown.

Mr. Patterson was born some time after the death of his grandfather, so based his biographical sketch on writings of the author, and on reminiscences of his own father.

Juggling Duties Keeps Grandma In Mainstream

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Trudy Adam is a most unusual grandmother. She's also student, tailor, technician, and interpreter.

The blonde with eight grandchildren is studying modern languages at Texas A & M University. She works fulltime as a technician in the biochemistry laboratory and goes to class parttime.

She will get her bachelor's degree sometime in 1967 — the end of a long road of study and work for her.

A native of Wiesbaden, Germany, Mrs. Adam and her husband had three children when he was killed in an American bombing raid in 1944. She survived the war, worked as a scrubwoman in a mess hall, then became a tailor.

With her English knowledge from high school days, Mrs. Adam worked as an interpreter and teacher of English to German secretaries. A second marriage, to an American sergeant, did not work out. By that time, she was in Texas and decided to stay.

Mrs. Adam got a job with a Texas A & M laboratory and by giving up any spare time and vacations, she worked steadily at her education.

She hopes to go to Germany as a celebration when she gets her degree.

Her children are grown and have earned their American citizenship. One son is an Army lieutenant. Another an Air Force man. Her daughter is married to an Air Force captain.

Newton Man Honored For His Editorial

Owen J. McNamara, who lives with his wife and five children at 12 Frederick St., Newtonville, was given a recognition dinner last Tuesday evening by residents of Allston and Brighton.

Editor of the Brighton-Allston Citizen and the Brookline Chronicle Citizen, he was also honored last July by a world-wide organization of weekly newspaper editors, who awarded him the Golden Quill for an editorial on peace that appeared in his papers last year.

Entitled "Peace in the World — Too Far Beyond Our Reach?" it was one of 100,000 submitted to the organization.

The editor is a graduate of Our Lady Help of Christians High School in Newton, and of Boston College, Class of '59. He served as a reporter in the Clinton Bureau of the Worcester Telegram, was assistant editor of the Catholic Free Press, Worcester, and was a copy editor on the Boston Herald before becoming editor of the papers that ran his prize-winning editorial.

Gerald A. Butter, 81 Woodlawn Dr., Chestnut Hill, is enrolled at Wentworth Institute, Boston, for the 1966-67 academic year.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton South High

By JAMES SHULMAN

The finale of the Newton South fall athletic season came to a close with a huge assembly attended by the sophomores and the distribution of trophies and Newton South Blue and Orange letters.

Other current activities at Newton South are: the American Field Service, planning for its exciting Dec. 16 exchange day, the student teacher Experimental Theatre, ICTUS, a student magazine, going school wide, and Newton South students in the Boston Youth Symphony.

The South football team ended a hard fought season with a 5-3 record and with only 10 seniors on the varsity team. The winning game football was handed out to the outstanding senior in the game. The footballs were given to Steve Cooper, back; Ken Giles, tackle; Gordon Megrian the quarterback; Frank Rezzuti, back, and David Sellinger, tackle.

Tom Rezzuti was presented a trophy donated by Key Club for gaining the most stars in the 110 percent club. Stars are given to a player if he accomplishes one of the following things; intercept a pass, recover a fumble, tackle the passer while he is holding the ball, make a tackle on the kick-off, block a punt, bat down a pass (for linemen only), or block two men on the same play.

Two other trophies were given out, one for the most improved lineman which Richard Kenny received and one trophy for the most improved back that Paul Cronin won. Finally Lou DiFazio was voted next year's football team captain.

The Newton South soccer team finished its best season in the history of the school and expects next year's team to be even better with all the new hot prospects. The varsity swamped the cocky South faculty 2-0, The teachers vow revenge next season blaming the loss to lack of practice, and promise triumph next year.

The Newton South cross-country also wrapped up its best season in the history of the Lions with a 5-2 record. Rick Ginsberg, the captain of the team set a new record on the 2.6 mile course at Mount Ida in 13:46. Some of the other prominent figures on the team are: Jeff Davis, Dave Whitney, Henry Finch, and Arnie Weir of the varsity. On the junior varsity are: Fred Kaye, Wally Milgroom, Bruce Young, Henry Erlich and Bruce Kopleman.

The students of the American Field Service are enthusiastically making plans for the exchange day in which 70 AFS students from neighboring cities will be at the school and go to classes for one day. There will be dinner parties and a folk dance for the exchange students and it is open to all AFS members.

Newton South's candidates for the Americans Abroad Program sponsored by the AFS are Shelly Dwort and Sue Rautenberg. The co-chairmen of the Newton South American Field Service club are Josh Alper and Judy Lazar.

After last year's successful attempt with the experimental theatre, both James Martin and Tom Barron have decided to try and repeat their success again this year. The purpose of the experimental theatre is to give both the students and teachers an opportunity to work on all phases of the theatre. The purpose also is to learn the fundamentals in theatre by practice.

There will be plays put on where people will be evaluating the actors and the performance. Students may submit their own plays, and they may direct them. Some of the plays to be put on this year are: "Miss Julie" by August Strindberg, "The Informer" by Berthold Brecht, and a full length play in the spring.

In this year's Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra Newton South is represented by Jonathan Cline, Ann Drinan, Daniel Starr and Majorie Weinart. The members of the Junior Youth Symphony Orchestra of Greater Boston from Newton South are Scott Cutler and Beverly Greenwald.

ICTUS this year is going school wide, and will no longer be restricted to the creative writing class for the writing and sales. Hannah Kaye this year's editor will accept all contributions from the entire student body. The magazine will be published twice a year and the colorful covers are done by Sue Kastner.

Record Mail Is Forecast By Postmaster

All signs point to a record mail load this Christmas, according to postal authorities.

Special handling or special delivery should be added to parcels for distant parts of the United States and greeting cards for states outside of New England should be mailed immediately, except for air mail which can be deposited as late as December 17 for delivery anywhere in the country for Christmas.

Packages for New England and local delivery were due for mailing yesterday (Wednesday) and all local greeting cards should be sent by today (Thursday).

Postmaster Ephraim Martin made a special appeal to everyone in the Boston Postal District to take advantage of the special mailing straps contained in the Christmas Mail Kit which was delivered to every home by letter carrier. Separate LOCAL (as marked on the strap) MASSACHUSETTS (outside Local area) and OUT OF STATE.

The postmaster urged all homeowners to see that their name is on the letter boxes, articles are removed from dark halls where boxes are located which would injure a letter carrier, and remove mail promptly from the box when delivered.

Next Sunday, Dec. 18, one postoffice in each area will be open from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. On Saturday, Dec. 17, postoffices which normally open on Saturdays will be open all day.

With some 350 million pieces of mail due for handling this month in Greater Boston, the cooperation of the public is most important, it was said.

Blaze of Color Marks Mexican Men's Wear

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Mexico City Olympic Games are not until 1968 but they already have made an impact on men's wear — Camisas, Serapes, Huaraches, sombrero, pantalones, ponchos and sometimes rebozos, which are long scarfs.

The colors are as Mexican as anybody could thing of, ranging from five-alarm fire type chili to brilliant yellows and oranges plus loud blues, loud greens and loud blue-greens. Printed patterns run from Maya (primitive) through Toltec (pre-aztec) to merely ancient Aztec.

The sunstruck patterns and colors have been decreed for Spring 1966 but already they are coming on the market for winter cruise and resort wear.

The biggest influence is on sports shirts or camisas as they're called below the border and guayaberas, which are tailored shirts. But they spill over into swimwear, outerwear and slacks. And some of the sports shirts are open at the side, serape style.

One of the biggest revivals is the Mexican wedding shirt which was popular some years back, a coat jacket with an embroidered panel in front. Primitive weaves are shown for the beach in both shirts and vests.

And one of the most unusual is the serape-type pullover with split sides which either tie or button, often shown with matching swim trucks or solid color knits. The pullovers are apt to be in solid colors which are a bit on the wild side, or in blazer stripes which are even wilder.

One of the prime exponents of the Mexican look is Irving L. Bezerman of the Oxford 5 company who got so carried away he called his collection the Tequila H group and got up a label that looks like it had just come off a tequila bottle.

"We feel that in the coming year men's wear will be conservative," he said obviously not referring to the collection hanging along the wall. "I believe there will be four predominant colors which will complement each other—avocado green, Tijuana Brass, Mexican blue which is very bright and Chili which everybody is using."

Sports Shirt

One sports shirts was in Fortrel and cotton, double knit, with a "Mexican collar" which on close inspection looks just like an Italian collar—very widespread collar and a deep V neckline. It came in the four solid colors he mentioned and in a jacquard weave with Aztec patterns, yellow and black on brass, for example. Swim pants matched or mixed.

Leslie Tillett designed one group of shirts in an all over silk screen design of hieroglyphics from ancient Mexican temples. In the Isa de Oro group (That is supposed to mean Island of Gold but Spanish friends never heard of an "Isa") there were Fortrel and cotton broadcloth shirts printed with geometric Aztec designs.

A group of peasant type prints based on nature embroidery work called Cantina and printed on cloth that resembled canvas. One had a bright 10-inch wire band along the waist and ended in a fringed bottom, vaguely like a poncho.

Gifts -

Some organizations in the Garden City have arranged to send gift bundles to our servicemen in Vietnam. Some school teachers are having their pupils send class greetings to the fighting men.

However, much more can and should be done. We have a trickle of gift packages on their way to Vietnam when we should have a flood.

generously digging down into his own pocket to buy a gift package from each and every Newton serviceman in Vietnam, today appealed to all clubs, organizations and PTA groups to join in the endeavor.

"I sincerely hope that the warm - hearted members of the many clubs in our city will arrange to send a gift bundle to at least one serviceman from Newton who will be in Vietnam on Christmas Day," the Mayor declared.

"We should let them know that we're proud of them, that our thoughts are with them this holiday season and that we appreciate the great sacrifice they're making for us, for our country and for the cause of freedom," Mayor Basbas asserted.

"If each organization would send packages to one or two Newton servicemen in Vietnam, it would be a wonderful thing," he added.

Officers and members of Newton organizations again are invited to telephone the Graphic — DA 6-4000 — and obtain the names and mailing addresses of whatever number of servicemen they wish.

This is requested so that there will be an equitable distribution of the gift packages and in order that they will not be send in a hit-and-miss fashion.

Some of the letters which have come to the Graphic about Newton servicemen in Vietnam have been poignant and moving.

A mother writes about the empty place there will be at the Christmas dinner table — the place where a son now in Vietnam sat during happy and festive Yuletide feasts in the past.

A soldier making a career of military service — a married man with a wife and four children — will be at a far-away outpost on Christmas morning, not at home watching his youngsters merrily open their gifts.

It is men such as these to whom Mayor Basbas is personally sending Christmas gifts, and it is for men such as these whom the Graphic and the Mayor are asking Newton organizations to remember with special gift packages.

The names and mailing addresses of the Newton servicemen in Vietnam, which have been received since the publication of last week's edition, are:

Registrations Now Open For Enrichment Program

Registration opened this week for the Enrichment Program at the Newton Community Center where children over the past ten weeks have been reinforcing school subjects through creative experiences, play situations and organized games. The new ten session program meets on Tuesdays for one hour at each grade level (1-3 inclusive) and will begin January 3.

The program was set up in order to give children the opportunity for practice in the basic skills they learn at school and to provide educational benefit for recreation hours by stimulating interest and excitement in youngsters while they learn.

Mrs. Janower, director-teacher of the program, favors an informal and varied approach to learning. In previous sessions youngsters have drawn on artistic, musical and dramatic talents while gaining practice in their basic skills. Activites have covered a wde range and have included reading, writing and dramatizing children's own stories, art and science projects, arithmetic bingo, spelling anagrams and relay races, phonic treasure hunts, and many more.

Groups are limited in number and the Center urges interested parents to register before the Dec. 23rd deadline. (An information sheet is available on request by contacting the Newton Community Center at 429 Cherry st., West Newton, 244-2260). Attention within each session is both individual and group oriented. Children work and play by themselves, in pairs and in small groups, according to needs and desires. Parents are encouraged by Mrs. Janower to seek the advice of the grade teacher in analyzing specific areas of weakness, if any, which can be worked on during the sessions.

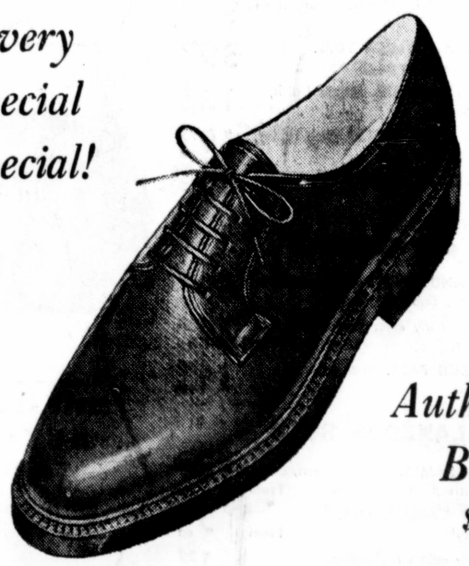

Mrs. Janower is a graduate of Barnard College and an experienced elementary teacher of Brookline. In addition to the Tuesday afternoon Enrichment program she also teaches Children's Art on Thursday afternoons (nursery through Grade 2) at the Community Center.

Over the Christmas vacation Mrs. Janower is leading a series of field trips in and around the Boston area for Nursery through Grade 6. Information for any of these programs is also available on request.

Democrats Need Candidates Who Will Stand On Own Feet

By JAMES G. COLBERT

What the Democratic party in Massachusetts obviously needs is some candidates for high public offices who will stand on their own feet run on their own records, makes their own campaigns and not look for a ride on somebody else's coattails.

There are men in the State's Democratic party who were prepared to do that in last month's election, but they were not endorsed either by the Democratic State Convention last June or by the Democratic voters in the primary, so they didn't have an opportunity to demonstrate what they could do against Republican opponents.

The continuing claims that Senator Edward M. Kennedy has not been active enough in the affairs of the Democratic party are becoming somewhat ridiculous.

To set the record straight, Ted Kennedy played a more active role in this year's election campaign in Massachusetts than his late, great brother, John F. Kennedy, ever did in any campaign in which he himself was not a candidate.

The Democratic party is not a one-man organization, and if it is going to nominate candidates who will depend on Ted Kennedy to carry them into office, the Republicans will continue to emerge as winners.

Ted Kennedy is the most popular public figure in Massachusetts. He can generate enthusiasm and excitement. He can shift a small percentage of the voters. But he can't stand in the shoes of other candidates which apparently is what some people expect him to do.

Some self-appointed political experts believe that Ted should have picked a Democratic State ticket last spring and then backed it at the Democratic State Convention, in the Democratic primary and in the final election.

That seems a little absurd on the face of it. An awkward situation certainly would have developed if candidates backed by Ted Kennedy had been rejected by the State Convention delegates as might well have happened.

If Ted had handpicked the same slate of candidates endorsed by the Democratic convention and the Democratic voters — which they probably would not have done — and then had worked for them at the convention, in the primary and in the final election, the top Democratic office-seekers would have been toppled last month, just as they were.

Had Ted Kennedy assumed the role of political boss and dictator and done what certain of the so-called political sages now insist he should have done, he would be rightfully and properly accused today of leading the Democratic party down the road to defeat and disaster.

The great cry after the September primary was for the need of Democratic unity. Ted produced so much unity that it overflowed, and he did it much more effectively than would have been possible if he had backed a losing candidate at the convention or in the primary.

Senate President Maurice A. Donahue, Boston Mayor John F. Collins and former Presidential Aid Kenneth P. O'Donnell were all out pumping for the men who had defeated them either at the convention or in the primary or in both.

But as Ted pointed out somewhat wryly, Democratic unity wasn't enough.

The political punits apparently forget that Ted Kennedy publicly endorsed Endicott Peabody in the 1961 Democratic primary. He had some reason and justification for doing so because Peabody was a sitting Governor.

But when Peabody was defeated by Francis X. Bellotti, Ted Kennedy's support of Bellotti in the election was not as effective as it might have been if he had been neutral in the primary. After opposing Bellotti in the primary, Ted tried to turn around and endorse him in the election, and his efforts failed to produce any spectacular results.

Ted Kennedy is 34 years old and has held elective office slightly less than four years. But he must realize by now that he'll be the target for some criticism, whatever he does or whatever he doesn't do.

If there is any fault to find with makeup of the Democratic State ticket in the recent election, the blame rests with the delegates to last June's Democratic State Convention who put together the ticket which was accepted by the Democratic voters in the primary.

Eggs — Jumbos and extra large offer best value.

Lettuce — Greenhouse variety volume heavy, prices attractive.

Parsnips — Plentiful, reasonably priced.

Potatoes — Supply continues heavy, prices economical, especially in 50 lb. put-away bags.

Spinach — Supply good; prices attractive.

..Today's Agri-Fact: The possibility that future heavy snows will make it almost impossible to find heavy cuttings of Christmas trees already on the ground, and thus create a shortage, makes early purchase a money-saving action. Woodsmen continue cutting during the snows, but trees on the ground waiting shipment get blanketed with snow and are usually lost. Trees purchased now and kept outdoors in the ground or in a pail of water will stay fresh through the holiday season. People who delay purchase until the last minute will, in most cases, be purchasing the same trees now on display, getting older every day.

Cards Express Yule Spirit

Chistmas cards are one of the happy expressions of America's Yuletide spirit, as more than 2,000,000 senders demonstrated last year with beautifully decorated cards that many recipients used in their homes' holiday decorations.

However, no matter how decorative the card, it does not fulfill its real meaning of friendship unless it also carries a personal message from you, says Jerlyn Madison, consumer consultant for a pen manufacturing firm.

Such a message should be in your own handwriting, says Miss Madison, and should make recipients feel that you were thinking just of them when you sent the card.

The card's message need not be long, but it should have a feeling of warmth, such as "To remind you that my thoughts are with you this Christmas."

If you are sending many cards, order them early so as to have plenty of time to write your messages, she suggests. Don't try to write them all at once.

Do them leisurely when you have time to think. Make sure that your address book is handy, have a good fountain pen and colored inks — if you like them — to emphasize the Christmas Spirit.

Cars Bottle Bond Street As Experts Seek Aid

By FANCHON M. WATKINS
United Press International

LONDON (UPI)—You can walk its entire length in a brisk seven minutes but Bond Street is one of the most famous shopping centers of the world.

And the British, who want to keep its fame and the fortune that comes with it, are wondering how to save the old thoroughfare from dying of traffic suffocation.

The trouble is that the narrow old street is bounded by two of the busiest traffic arteries anywhere—Oxford Street and Piccadilly.

And thousands of automobiles and trucks peel off to choke Bond Street which was designed by Sir Thomas Bond in 1686 for the more leisurely and elegant carriages and sedan chairs of the rich and the titled.

Tourists are shocked to find what has become of a street that is a symbol of gracious living to many who know it only by reputation.

Kings, queens, dukes and duchesses have shopped among its jewelry stores, art galleries and other luxury establishments.

But the great limousines are seen less frequently these days.

More often the shops send salesmen to the homes of the wealthiest of their clients.

Now a new campaign is underway to 'save' Bond Street. A newspaper (The Daily Mail) has suggested that it should be closed to motor traffic and returned to the pedestrian, a measure that has been successful in Denmark, Holland and Germany.

Algernon Asprey, president of the Bond Street Association and proprietor of one of its most prestigious shops, hailed the campaign.

"Bond Street deserves special consideration as the premier shopping street of London and possibly the world," he said. "Its position is such that it could be relieved of this nuisance (congestion) by traffic management and re-routing."

Bond Street is in two short sections. Old Bond Street was St. Thomas' creation. New Bond Street was added on in 1721.

At that time the "in" shopping street was Tavistock Street in the Covent Garden market area. But the Duchess of Devonshire, miffed at the type of merchants working in the area took her trade—and that of her influential friends —to Bond Street.

Bid For Jet Market Made By Holland

BY WILLIAM ANDERSON
United Press International

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Testing time is fast approaching for a new Flying Dutchman — Holland's first entry into the commercial jet plane field.

The first two Fokker F-28 twin turbofan commercial transport jets are nearing completition at the company's factory at Schipol. The first test flight is scheduled for early 1967 and delivery to customers will begin a year later.

Initial flight testing will probably take place in Spain because winter flying conditions in Holland are not suitable and delays could ensue.

Fokker have no intention of competing with the giant British and American plane makers. The company has, therefore, deliberately kept its plane, called the "Fellowship," small. In this way Fokker believes it can reach a market left open by the giants. With first class seating accommodation, the aircraft with its power plants back on the tail, will take 40 passengers sitting four abreast. In economy class this can be increased to between 60 and 65 passengers sitting five abreast.

While the plane carries the Fokker name, two German and a British aircraft company are participating in the construction and financing of the project. Rolls Royce has adapted its Spey jet engine in a Junior version for the Fellowship.

The Fellowship has a wingspan of just over 77 feet, a length of 90 feet and will have a maximum take off weight of 54,000 pounds. This will enable it to operate from smaller airfields with a range of 550 nautical miles and a speed of 440 knots.

The makers hope the Fellowship will fill the gap left when propellor - driven Convairs, Viscounts and their own Friendship are replaced. Fokker sees their customers as smaller companies and hopes the market will take to 250 aircraft with a break-even financial point of around 125 planes.

They hope purchases will follow the pattern of the highly-successful Friendship F27 turboprop of which over 400 have already been ordered. Of European - made planes only the Viscount has sold more and Fokker hope to beat the Viscount figure before phasing out their Friendship construction line.

Charmers Of Snakes Now Have A School

By R. C. PANDE
United Press International

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Snake charming isn't what it used to be but in a strange "school" at Morbund, a village about 15 miles north of New Delhi, they are doing their best to keep the cult alive.

For the last 60 years, Morbund has remained the mecca of snake charmers and some 50 families of professional charmers live there now, teaching the trade to their children.

According to Anokhe Lal, the ace charmer of them all, there are more than 50,000 snake charmers in India, but the species is definitely fading out.

"There still are plenty of cobras for us to catch and train," Anokhe Lad said. "But few tourists these days are interested enough to pay to see the snake sequence."

The snake charmers of Morbund rear all types of snakes —cobras and kind cobras (the best "dancers"), kraits, vipers, pythons. But except for the cobras, the rest are mostly keept in closed wicker baskets are showpieces.

Snakes in India are sacred. On "Naag-panchami" day (literally, the birthday of the serpent king), Hindu women feed milk to snakes and offer sumptuous tips to their charmers.

When the huge brass bell tolls in the nearby open-air school for the snake charmers children, the kids make a beeline for their baskets of snakes. Some of the youngsters quickly become adept, and Pyare Lal, the school teachers — a former snake charmer—sees a great future for them.

"They may not make much money when they grow up, but the still can do well taming snakes by luring them with their flutes," Pyare Lal said.

More than 10,000 persons die of snake bites in India each year, so the charmers still have a job to do.

Heartfelt Payment

After he carried a rheumatic heart patient safely through the birth of her baby, a CARE-MEDICO doctor in North Africa received an unexpected "payment" from the grateful husband—a chicken and a basket of vegetables.

Former Teacher Here To Present Science Paper

Robert M. Flynn, former resident and teacher in the Newton public schools, has been invited to present a paper on "The Molecular Nature of Matter" at the next annual convention of the National Science Teachers Association, to be held in Detroit, Mich.

The paper has been some two years in preparation, and was completed this past summer through a grant provided by the public schools of Needham. During the period of revision, Mr. Flynn had advice and assistance from Dr. Harris P. Goldberg, director of science in Needham and John Meade, fellow science teacher at Newman Junior High School there.

"The Molecular Nature of Matter is designed for use by junior high school students. It attempts to accomplish the following ends:

1—To introduce students to the molecule as a basis of matter.

2—To enable the student experimentally to substantiate the molecular nature of matter.

3—Ultimately to involve the student in a situation of science experience in which he is expected to apply physical and chemical principles to biological environments.

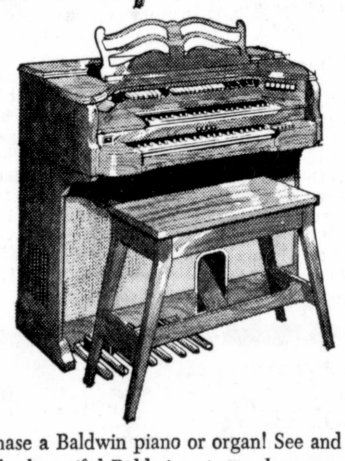

At the present time, the "Molecular Nature of Matter" is being used as a course offering to 9th grade students at Newman Junior High.

The text is scheduled to be published within the next year.

Wants to Shoot Down Tornado

MOFFETT FIELD (UPI)—One way to get rid of a tornado is to shoot it down, according to a specialist in fluid mechanics.

Vernon J. Rossow of the Ames Research Center at this naval air station thinks a 40 millimeter cannon fired into the sky can kill a tornado.

Rossow said the shot would interfere with the powerful electromagnetic forces in the spinning tornado funnel.

Rossow theorizes it may be possible to break up the tornado by firing many spools of extremely thin copper wire so they are through the top of the tornado.

The wires, he said, would pass through both positive and negative cloud masses. This would trigger an artificial lightning bolt that would neutralize the electric charge, destroying the tornado's power source.

Heart And Head Fuel 'Private' Job Corps

By RICHARD M. HARTNETT
United Press International

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI)— Housewife Maryce Freelen puts 40 to 50 needy teen-agers to work earning money every weekend in a private job corps that has no government subsidy, no staff, no paperwork and no fanfare.

There isn't even a name for the project. Mrs. Freelen, a peppy redhead, calls it her "job service." All there is is a small newspaper ad, her telephone, her car — and this amazing woman's love and understanding of the youngsters she used to teach at Crittenden Elementary School.

"The first kid in the job service," Mrs. Freelen says, "needed money for school clothes and asked me if I could find work for him. That was three years ago."

In the "handyman" want-ad listing of the Palo Alto Times a three-liner runs every day: "Reliable students. Will do yard work, housework, odd jobs and paint. $1.50 hr." It carries Mrs. Freelen's telephone number.

"All a kid has to do is tell me he wants to work," she says. "They don't have to fulfill any requirements. I don't have to check their records, I know them all .When you teach junior high in a small town for eight years — well, I know every kid in my district who has been in the eighth grade.

"I'd like you to see the range of kids. Some are saving money for college and have already planned what they're going to do. Then, at the other end of the scale, there are some kids that are going to grow up and live on welfare. This is probably the only time in their life they'll ever work."

"I get them because they feel secure with me," the young housewife explains. "when they call me on the phone, it's not like calling a state agency where you get a cold receptionist and very polite formality. You become a form in a file. The kids know it."

Referring repeatedly to the 300 youngsters she has put to work as "my kids," Mrs. Freelen does more than just find jobs for them.

"They know that if they get into trouble I'll take them to court. If they need a lawyer, I'll get them a lawyer. If they're having trouble in school they come to me and I'll help them with their homework."

With some help from her husband and several University of Stanford boys, Mrs. Freelen gets her youngsters to the Saturday jobs she lines up.

The youngsters chip in a few dollars to help pay for the newspaper ad and the gas. When she kept records on their earnings the first year, they added up to $15,000. The job service is four times as big now.

Most of her "kids" aren't eloquent in the words they use, but very eloquent in the feeling with which they talk about Mrs. Freelen.

Like Gilbert Chagoya, his voice just breaking into a man's — "She's great. She gives lots of her time for free. Her own car, her own gas. Everybody likes her."

Children Pray In Little Church

DALLAS (UPI) — Off the main portion of the Central Christian Church is a place where little hands turn the pages of Scripture and voices with the quaver of youth sing the hymns and intone the prayers.

It is the "Little Church," for children seven to around 12. The youngsters handle most every part of the service, and then let an adult give the sermon.

Frank Brimm thought up the idea at Central Christian originally. His widow has carried it on since, with the help of other church members. They work to keep the children's church spacious and quiet, a place that "does not make the children feel cramped," Mrs. Brimm said.

Once the minister had to have an operation. The children took over the service. Their experience in the "Little Church" carried them through the routine of the adults' service.

The church training they get is rewarding, she said.

Long-Fresh Biscuit

PERTH, Australia (UPI)— A biscuit found among stores left by explorer Robert Scott in the Antarctic 54 years ago still "tasted fresh" when sampled by an expedition that went to the old camp this summer. Charles Gunn, a geophysicist from Hattiesburg, Miss., said on arrival in Perth that the base camp was found "just as it was left by Scott," who died in 1912.

Red Cross Seeks Donors For Holiday Bloodmobile

A special Holiday Bloodmobile will open next week at 370 Washington street in downtown Boston.

The Greater Boston Red Cross is appealing for "gift of life" blood donations to overcome a shortage of blood supplies that frequently becomes acute during the holiday season.

Occupying the former site of Raymond's, the temporary donor center will welcome donors from Monday, December 19, through Friday, December 23. Hours will be 11:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

There is a special urgency to blood donations at this time of year, A. Stanley Pittman, chairman of the Westwood Red Cross, said "Community and industrial bloodmobiles are necessarily reduced in number and there can be no college collections."

"On the other hand, hospitals still request about 600 pints a day. Various blood types are also needed for Vietnam. So this is surely the time to give 'the gift of life'."

Passersby, as well as those employed in the area, may drop into the center at their convenience. Fringe benefits include an opportunity to rest—because the donation process takes about 45 minutes—and a hot drink. Red Cross volunteers will also provide a babysitting service on the premises.

Anyone from 18 through 59 who is in good health and weighs more than 110 pounds may give blood. Those under 21, unless married or in the armed forces, should have a parent's signature on a permission form.

The Red Cross has set a goal of 800 pints for the week's Bloodmobile.

Crowds Visit Birthplace Of Atom Bomb

By JACK K. GRAEME
United Press International

TRINITY SITE, N. M. (UPI) — Every autumn they come, the tourists, the curious, the sightseers — on pilgrimage to this isolated wind-blown site in the southeastern New Mexico desert where the atom bomb was born.

A cyclone fence and barbed wire surround the remains of the complex, a piece of history slowly deteriorating in the glaring sun.

Of the three wooden bunkers covered with concrete and earth that were built 10,000 yards north, south and west of "Ground Zero," all that is left is the floor slab of the south, or command, bunker.

In the center of the circle is a black stone monument and plaque, and the metal skeleton-like legs of the 100-foot tower that held the device.

A short distance away lies the world's biggest metal bottle, Jumbo, designed especially for the test and then never used.

The explosion, as originally planned, was to take place inside the 214-ton, 25-foot-long "bottle" so the precious little plutonium used in the test could be recovered. Before the test, however, plutonium production was increased and Jumbo became unnecessary.

It was put on a tower 800 feet from the blast to test shock.

Ten miles west of Trinity, two lonely wooden buildings sit rotting — all that remain of the Trinity Base Camp that once housed 200 scientists, soldiers and technicians.

Final Assembly

South of the site squats the old MacDonald Ranch, where the bomb was finally assembled on July 13, 1945 — a Friday the 13th.

As if to verify the ancient superstition about Friday the 13th, a final unknown quantity entered the picture after all the myriad of technical problems were solved.

On Sunday, July 15, just a few hours before the test, it began to rain. Two hours before the shot, the rain suddenly stopped, leaving the desert smelling fresh and clean. As a precaution, however, the test was set back from 4 a.m. for one and one-half hours.

And then it was 5:29:45 a.m. Mountain War Time, July 16, 1945.

The sky burst into fire, a roaring filled the desert and a pillar of dust rose awesomely upward.

The brilliant white ball of light slashed across the dark sky, visible for 250 miles, from Gallup in far northwestern New Mexico to El Paso, Tex. The thunder of its voice was heard for 50 miles and windows rattled for miles around.

The tower that held Jumbo collapsed in a heap, but the container was completely unharmed. All that was left of the tower that held the device were the stumps of its legs. A scorched crater was left in the earth 800 yards in diameter, glazed with a green, glassy substance now known as Trinitite, where the sand melted and then solidified.

A giant cloud rose to a beautiful, fearsome column world was suddenly a differ- 40,000 feet tall — And the ent place in which to live.

Backyard Frontier

Ever notice how salt corrodes things? If you boil salt water in aluminum pans, pretty soon you don't have much of a pan left. And salt water melts icy sidewalks so very quickly . . . though, strictly speaking, that's not corrosion but the odd quality salt water has of freezing at a lower temperature than fresh water. Salt water also has the odd quality of killing off grass, flowers, seeds, bulbs, shrubs, and trees. So when you put salt on your front walk to get rid of the ice, you had better watch out that you don't get rid of your plants, too. Salt also accumulates in the dirt, so that the plants that aren't killed off this year may be killed off next year when enough salt builds up to reach an excessive level.

Apparently salt has been a serious problem on highways: not only have roadside plants been killed, but enough salt has accumulated in some places to make wells beside superhighways unusable if the salt drains in just the right way . . . or I should say the wrong way. Of course, highway departments have a special problem: people simply will drive at sixty miles an hour, through rain, sleet, snow and dead of night, and you can't have people killing themselves. Perhaps some new chemical will be developed which will melt ice as well as salt does but won't kill plants and corrode bottoms of cars . . . I just hope they test it thoroughly before it goes on the market to make sure it doesn't have other surprise side effects.

In the meantime, you can at least protect your own personal trees and grass . . . by using sand instead of salt, by a good, vigorous chopping and shovelling job, or by digging drainage ditches to make the salt water run off into the street, where it will probably empty harmlessly into a storm sewer. There's another solution . . . salt resistant trees and shrubs But unless you want to populate a large chunk of your yard with Japanese Black Pines and Beach roses, I don't recommend that. Of course those are very beautiful . . . there could be worse solutions. Oh, another possiblity . . . I have a friend who simpley puts geraniums, in pots, beside her walks every summr. . . it's easy, you take them in every winter and pour as much salt as you want on your sidewalks.

System For Filling School Board Vacancies Is Target

Alderman Paul J. Burke of Ward 3 has submitted a proposal to the aldermanic legislative committee under which the system of electing school committee members and the system used for filling vacancies on both the Board of Aldermen and School Committee would be changed.

Alderman Burke has recommended that two questions be placed on the 1967 ballot. Under the new home rule referendum recently accepted by Massachusetts voters, Newtonites could amend the city charter.

Burke would allow Newton voters to decide whether the School Committee members should be elected in each case only by the members of the ward in which they live, instead of being elected at large for each ward as is now done.

Burke would also give voters the opportunity to replace the present special election by which the Aldermen or a joint session of the Aldermen and School Committee members fill vacancies that occur between elections, with a special election.

The special election would be held within 60 days if the vacancy occurred during the first six months of the term. The election would also be held only among voters in the ward where the vacancy developed.

Burke's proposal attempts to remedy a procedure of filling vacancies which has been criticized as anti-democratic. Some critics have maintained that it it much easier for a sitting Alderman to obtain reelection and that the present system to a certain degree could tend to make the Board of Aldermen a self-perpetuating body.

Defendants of the present system until the adoption of the home rule referendum had stressed the difficutly of amending the City Charter.

Newton Firemen "Married" To Dump Fire (s)

A stubborn fire in rubbish at the Rumford avenue dump that began last Saturday continued to plague Newton firemen this week. One fireman commented: "It looks like we'll be married to it for some time."

The trouble started Saturday at 9:45 a.m. and firemen returned to the station house 12:15 p.m., figuring they had it licked. However, at 8:32 a.m. Sunday, flames popped up again. Firemen spent 12 hours on that particular visit before they called it quits.

Bright and early Monday morning (at 5:02) flame and smoke again billowed forth and again firemen returned to the combat.

The dump is used by the city to take all "unburnable" rubbish from the Elliot street incinerator. Fire officials hope that when the new incinerator opposite the dump begins operation this month, the deposits at the dump will decrease.

Firemen answered three other calls for small fires over the weekend.

Five On List Of Qualifiers

Five Newton men have passed a civil service examination qualifying for appointment as Grade I civil engineer and junior engineering aid. Two of them also passed another civil service test and qualified for appointment to the post of grade II civil engineer and senior engineering aid, it was announced this week by the State Civil Service Commission.

The five are Richard J. Hennesey of 1269 Boylston St.; Richard B. Dietz of 127 Hanson Rd.; David J. Holland of 1149 Washington St.; Robert E. Maguire of 15 Coyne Rd.; and Joseph G. Cancellieri, Jr., of 24 Oxford Rd.

Holland and Dietz also passed the grade II civil engineering test.

Fradkoff Installed As Newton DeMolay Head

Steven P. Fradkoff of 37 Kappius Path, Oak Hill, was recently installed as Master Councillor of Newton DeMolay at the Newton Masonic Temple.

Also installed were Richard J. Rosen of 306 Hartman Rd., Newton Center, as Senior Councilor, and Robert H. Brown of York St., Waban, as Junior Councilor.

Preceptors: Barry Dichter, Lawrence Glickman, Christopher Henes, Bruce Olans, William Oser, Martin Shapiro, and James Spelfogel.

Students Visit Court In Action

A class of 48 Newton high school juniors observed "justice in action" this week in civil and criminal cases in Newton district court.

Judge Julian L. Yesley on Monday gave the students an opportunity to act as an impartial (and unofficial) jury in the case of a defendant who was accused of tearing down a project he had built for a Waban man.

The man was accused of malicious damage to the project when his employer had someone else finish the job because he was not satisfied with the defendant's work.

Judge Yesley found the man guilty and fined him.

Only 13 per cent of the young students dissented from the Judge's "guilty" finding but 30 of the students didn't like the sentence. They would have placed the man on probation instead of fining him.

The Judge noted that although the students felt sympathetic toward the defendant, they were able to detach themselves emotionally in their decision.

He made it clear the student vote had no effect in the decision of the court. He asked the student "jury" to mark a slip of paper for both the finding and the sentence and they were tallied after the case was completed.

The defendant disagreed with both the judge's and students' findings — he appealed the case.

Newton High Basketball Team Has Length, Depth

By JOE GORIN

After a multi-year basketball drought, it looks like Newton High will finally boast a winning team.

Depth will be the key word this season for Coach Al Fortune. Although there are only two returning lettermen, Warren Houston and Paul Ward, Coach Fortune will be harvesting a bumper crop from last year's j. v. squad.

Some of last year's jayvee standouts who figure to help the varsity this year will be Paul Colantonio, Peter Hicks, Ran Howland and Adrian Walcott. Ron Cook, a transfer student from Charlestown, has a good chance of cracking the lineup at a guard position. Clark Berry, only a sophomore, could also see some action in the backcourt.

This year rebounding will be a strength because of 5-foot-11 Walcott, 6-foot-3 Ward and 6-foot-5 Colantonio. Walcott makes up for his lack of height with great strength and jumping ability.

A winning season this year would be an outstanding accomplishment because the overall strength of the Suburban League has improved considerably. Four teams, Weymouth, Rindge Tech, Brookline and Waltham will all be vying for the top spot, but don't be surprised if at year's end the standings show Newton High as one of the top teams. As Coach Fortune put it, "On a given day, we can beat anybody."

In their first official game of the year against Andover Academy, Warren Houston's 28 points combined with a second half surge led Newton to an 88-72 decision.

Although it was a non-league game, it counted in the won-lost record for the Tech Tourney.

Four players besides Houston ended up in double figures. Paul Ward and Adrian Walcott chipped in with 15 points apiece, with Peter Hicks and Ron Howland each contributing 10 points to the cause. Ron Cook just missed double figures with an eight-point effort.

At the end of the half, Andover owned a one-point advantage, but Newton outscored them in the second half by seventeen points, to chalk up their first victory of the year.

The main points of encouragement in the game were Newton's balanced offense and the rebounding of Walcott.

The Tigers' next game will come at home against Belmont on December 20.

—o—

Newton High's hockey team could very well be facing a non-tourney season. This in large part is due to the graduation of three all-GBI performers: Kevin McLatchy, Kim Britt and Marty Clapton. Last year, even with this trio, Newton High didn't gain a Tourney berth.

However, there were only three members of last year's team to graduate. Newton's entire starting lineup, with the possible exception of the goalie, will be comprised of lettermen. Coach Sarge Kinlin has many good players, but none who are really outstanding. To have at least one really outstanding player is usually a prerequisite to success in hockey.

Newton High's first line, composed of Charlie Donovan and co-captains Dick Dezotell and Steve Toomey, will probably carry the brunt of Newton's scoring. The second line has three underclassmen and a lot of potential. It consists of Bob Cotter, Donny Gallagher and Jackie Droze. Others to be tested at forward will be Steve Bagley, Tony Bott and Jim Remley.

On defense, Mike Dezotell is the only sure starter. The other starting assignment will probably go to Bruce Huntlye. He will be pressed by Al Alessi The other defensemen who figure to see action are Peter Cully and Rich Ciampa.

The job for a first team goalie is a tossup between Dave Riley and Bob Newiss. Last year Riley was a substitute on the varsity and Newiss played with the jayvees. However, Newiss is much improved and may wrest the starting role from Riley. There is also a good possibility that the two will share the goalie position.

The team lost their first regular game of the season at Andover Academy by a 5-0 score. Andover was led by All-American John Cavanaugh from Cranston, R. I., who scored two goals.

The first period was all that Andover needed to ice the victory. They scored three goals in that period and netted two for insurance in the second period. Riley shut them out in the final stanza.

The Tigers open their league season against Brookline next week.

But Gains Only 1-1 Tie In Hockey League Opener

By RAY KWASNICK

Newton South's pucksters displayed some hard skating as they played Wayland to a 1-1 tie last Saturday at Loring Arena in Framingham. Next Saturday the Lions will face a tough Weston team which blanked Westwood in their first affair.

Neither team came on strong in the first period as bad passing and good defense stalled both attacks. South was down a man almost at the starting buzzer as defenseman Mark Holland was sent to the penalty box for tripping at 0:48. However, the Lion defense easily thwarted Wayland opportunities.

Midway through the period, Wayland sent a series of shots on goalie Dave Roberts off face-offs deep in the South end of the ice. Wayland forward Bill Manchester who was standing just outside the crease tried three times to slip the puck past Roberts, but the Lion goaltender rose to the occasion each time.

South had its opportunities, too, as at one point Wayland had only three skaters in front of goalie Dick Kane. Tim Mahoney was penalized at 7:31. Half of a minute later Howie Deacon was also sent to the box. The Lions couldn't capitalize. They did everything but put the puck in the net, as Kane was equal to the task.

The period ended in a scoreless tie. The Lions outshot Wayland 7-5.

The pace picked up in the second period. Each side had good chances. The Lions' red line of Frank Rezzuti, Tom Rezzuti, and Biff Wisner really scrambled, but it couldn't produce a goal. At 5:13, however, South's orange line of Mark Sheehan, Chet Robart, and Jim Spinks broke the ice as Sheehan tipped in the rebound of a blistering shot by Robart.

Wayland tied the game up for good as Dick Bateman took a pass from Mahoney and beat Roberts on a slap shot. Other than that one miscue, Roberts played a flawless game.

In the final period, the Lions' passing started to click. South put a lot of pressure on the Wayland goal as they outshot Wayland 8-4. The play of the game, however, was made by a defenseman. On a two on zero Wayland break away with about two minutes left in the game Lion Gil Esquivel charged down the ice and stole the puck to prevent a sure Wayland score and probably a South loss. Esquivel, Mark Holland, and the whole Lion defense turned in a superior effort as they blocked shots and cleared the puck from in front of the net well. Wayland didn't get many rebound shots.

Responses To Beautification Pleases Mayor

Mayor Monte G. Basbas expressed gratification at the cooperative response to the recently launched Urban Beautification Program. Letters received in the Mayor's office have favored this effort, and commercial interests in Newton have backed the program.

In a recent statement to the Mayor, the Atlantic Refining Company pledged its full cooperation in assisting the City's effort to achieve local improvements. Atlantic District Manager E. D. Walter in a letter to Newton Atlantic dealers urged them to cooperate, particularly with ordinances which have to do with safety, neatness and aesthetic characteristics of the service stations.

"As you know," Walter told dealers, "Atlantic Richfield Company has always attempted to carry out a program of operations which provided consideration for the safety and welfare of areas in which we have service stations. I hope that you, through your own conduct of your Atlantic station in Newton, surely cooperate with this attempt to improve the image of our fine petroleum industry."

No Opposition To Three Petitions At Hearings

No opposition was voiced Monday night at City Hall, when three petitions were given public hearings at a joint session of the Aldermanic Claims and Rules Committee and the Planning Board.

However, in the case of one of them — Newton Buick Company's request for permission to park cars on land that is zoned for residence— Claims and Rules Chairman Franklin N. Flaschner told the spokesman for the petitioner, Robert L. Dwyer, president and treasurer of Newton Buick, Inc., that he felt called upon to alert him to the fact that legal difficulties could prevent the granting of the petition.

It brought up a question, he said, that would have to be resolved by the city solicitor because the land involved could, under the terms of a city ordinance, be used only for live parking — cars, that is, which customers bring there to be serviced. So-called dead parking would not be allowed. The parcel, which would be used for car storage and customer parking, is in the rear of 371 Washington St., Newton, at 37-39 Thornton St.

Atty. Anthony J. Medaglia Jr., 88 E. Quinobequin Rd., Waban, represented Walter T. Tower Jr., who sought permission for construction of a one-family residence at 92 Prince St., West Newton, on land which has a 40-foot frontage on Prince St. The petitioner asked permission to measure the lot width along its rear lines.

Atty. Medaglia presented a list of endorsers of the petition, all of them immediate abutters.

The third petition was brought by Loch Haven Nursing Home, Inc., whose president and treasurer, Atty. Lester Ralph of Waltham, served as its spokesman. He explained that his corporation had a nine-day temporary state license to operate the 17-bed home, which is the former Voll Nursing Home at 14 Newtonville Ave., Newton. The petition seeks to obtain a transfer of the existing license and extension of permission to operate a nursing home in a single residence district.

Parents, Teachers Split On Single Session Issue

By JAMES G. COLBERT, JR.

Parents of pupils attending Newton's elementary schools favor a shift to a single school session by about a 3-2 margin.

But the teachers of the elementary classes overwhelmingly prefer the retention of the present split sessions, under which the children go home for lunch.

This was disclosed when Dr. Malcolm L. Knowles, chairman of the committee studying the elementary school schedule made public the returns of polls his group had conducted.

Of 5983 families which were polled, 2110 favored the single session, 1477 preferred the existing split session and 174 had no preference.

Even though a bitter controversy has been raging over requests for a change to a single elementary school session, 2222 parents who were sent questionnaires on the matter didn't bother to return them.

The elementary school teachers by a one-sided 12-1 margin favor the present split session.

A total of 424 elementary school teachers were polled by the study committee. Of that number, 343 favored the split session and 29 the single session, while two marked both sessions conditionally.

No responses were received by the committee from 50 teachers who apparently are indifferent on the matter.

Dr. Knowles, a Newton resident and professor of education at Boston University, expressed the hope that his committee will be able to complete its work and make its report to the School Committee by the middle of February.

A special School Committee meeting had been scheduled for Monday night to allow the study group headed by Dr. Knowles to make a progress report to the School Board and interested parents.

However, the session was cancelled when Dr. Knowles found he would be unable to attend it.

Instead the study group submitted a written progress report to the School Committee.

Included in the report were summaries of the arguments presented by those favoring a single session schedule and those who believe the present split session should be retained. Attention was also given to the position of the teachers on the proposed schedule shift.

The summary of the arguments advocating a single session lists lack of playtime on long days, safety hazards in two extra trips and beneficial lunchtime contacts with companions as some of the reasons for a change in Newton's 58-year old elementary school schedule.

Proponents of the single session add that the 1½-hour interruption in the school day is too much for children who live near schools and too little for those who live away. The first group has time to engage in a play activity which makes readjustment to the classroom difficult. The second group is over-tense and must gulp down its lunches "constantly aware of possible tardiness," it was maintained.

In addition, children are said to be exhausted after 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 days and unfit for their homework. Some parents have also found that children lack study motivation on the shor t (8:30 to 12 a.m.) days, they stated.

The child would learn to cope with his day on his own. Finally, outside activities which are now crowded into two afternoons could

$7500 Pay Hike Set For Mayor In 1968

A $7500-a-year pay raise for the Mayor of Newton was approved by a 20-1 vote under a compromise reached at Monday night's meeting of the board of Aldermen.

However, the increase from $20,000 to $27,500 will not become effective until Jan. 1, 1968, when the next Mayor assumes office.

Alderman H. James Shea, Jr., cast the lone vote against the hike in the mayoralty salary. Absent when the vote was taken were Aldermen Winslow C. Auryansen, William L. Bruce and Charles F. Hovey.

25 Of City's Servicemen In Yule List

Twenty-six Newton servicemen, who will spend Christmas in Viet Nam, will know they are not forgotten by the folks back home on the Yuletide.

They are the men whose names and mailing addresses were submitted to the Graphic by relatives and friends.

Gift packages and greeting cards by the hundreds are on their way to them.

A tragic touch was added this week to the undertaking by the Graphic to see that all Newton servicemen in Viet Nam are remembered on Christmas.

A Newton marine to whom Mayor Monte G. Basbas mailed a Yuletide gift package is now believed to be missing in action.

The members of his family are not sending him gifts because they don't know his whereabouts or whether he's even alive. Efforts to trace him through the Red Cross have been unsuccessful.

Police, Firefighter Pay Raises Planned

Pay raises ranging from from $600 to $1375 per year will be granted to members of the Newton police and fire departments under a compromise agreement reached between Mayor Monte G. Basbas and spokesmen for the police force.

An $800-a-year increase will be given to patrolmen and firefighters with three years or more of service, boosting their annual com pensation from $6900 to $7700.

Police representatives originally requested a $1200 hike which would have boosted the maximum pay for patrolmen to $8100, the amount now paid to members of the MDC police and the Capitol police at the State House.

Mayor Basbas offered the patrolmen a $600 raise which was turned down. An $800 hike

Christmas In Space Age Hasn't Changed

It's a Christmas season of the space age.

We were entranced as we thumbed through the Yuletide book even though we had first glanced at it with some dismay. Pictured in bright colors on the hard cover was the arrival of Santa Claus at the chimney top of a snow-covered roof. We've always got along well enough with the old boy. What we didn't like about the cover was he was making his call in the modern way aboard one of those space ships.

When we got inside the book, we found no mention of Donner and Blitzen, or Dancer and Prancer, or any of those beautiful reindeer that used to get Santa around in his sleigh some

Demolition Dumping Is Now Banned

A ban on the dumping of demolition material anywhere in Newton has been imposed in an attempt to correct nuisance at the Rumford avenue dump in the Auburndale-West Newton area where a fire has smouldered for almost two weeks.

The edict applies to the dumping of demolition materials both at the dump and at the municipal incinerator.

This was decided at a conference held by Mayor Monte G. Basbas in his office and attended by officials of a number of city agencies, including the fire, health, public works, street and legal departments.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Whether Author Keeps Word Is Basic Issue In Book Row

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy has been treated unfairly by many writers, commentators and newspapers during the controversy over the publication of William Manchester's book, "The Death of a President."

Some of the breast-beating editorial writers, columnists and commentators, crying out for the protection of the freedom of the press and the sanctity of history, are just indulging in so much verbal or typewritten hogwash.

The State

STATE TO APPEAL RACE IMBALANCE FRIDAY

A SUFFOLK Superior Court judge ruled Wednesday that the State Board of Education illegally and arbitrarily rejected a Boston Committee plan for ending racial imbalance in public schools.

Judge Donald M. Macauley ordered the board to reconsider its rejection of last June 28. Education Commissioner Owen B. Kiernan said Macauley's decision would be appealed to the state Supreme Court.

The state board twice has refused to accept the school committee's plans for ending defacto racial segregation in the schools as required by the state's Racial Imbalance Laws, passed in 1965.

At present, the state is withholding $8.9 million from Boston, and the figure may reach $16 million within a year.

REP. IANNELLO GIVEN FULL PARDON

REP. CHARLES IANNELLO (D.-Boston) Wednesday received a complete pardon for 15 offenses including larceny of $983 from the state.

The Executive Council approved the pardon on a 7-1 vote, with only Mrs. Margaret M. Heckler (R.-Wellesley), opposed. The pardon had been proposed earlier by Gov. John A. Volpe.

Iannello, who once won reelection from his jail at Deer Island, was convicted June 20, 1961, of larceny from the state. The $983 had been paid by the state for a sidewalk construction project that never was performed.

HUB GIRL HELD IN MEXICO "SWINDLER" SHOOTING

MARILYN JACOBSON, 22, who said she taught at a college in Boston, was held by Mexican police Wednesday in connection with the shooting of an alleged "international swindler" from Great Britain.

Miss Jacobson, who lives at 269 Harvard St. Cambridge, said the man forced her to accompany him on a rubber check cashing spree across the United States and through Mexico.

Police said Miss Jacobson shot Paul Michael Abrenovige twice in the arm with a .22-calibre pistol in a Mexico City hotel Tuesday. He suffered only flesh wounds.

9 INJURED AS BOSTON BUS UPSETS

EIGHT PASSENGERS and a bus driver were injured Wednesday when a Boston-bound bus skidded out of control and flipped over on snowswept Interstate 95 in North Attleboro. The crash happened only a few miles from the scene of a 12-car, chain collision a few hours earlier in adjoining Attleboro.

SETTLEMENT NEARER IN JFK BOOK ROW

CONFIDENTIAL MEETINGS Wednesday added to a mounting belief that Mrs. John F. Kennedy's suit to block publication of "The Death of a President" would be settled shortly out of court.

Primary interest was focused on an afternoon session between the former First Lady's attorney, former federal Judge Simon Rifkind, and David Peck, a top attorney for Cowles Communications, Inc., publishers of Look Magazine.

Although Rifkind said the session was only for "preliminary discussions" with Peck on the suit its timing was such as to add weight to reports that the dispute will never go to court.

The second meeting was attended by Richard N. Goodwin, Mrs. Kennedy's personal advisor in the suit. It was not disclosed with whom Goodwin met but the spokesman for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D.-N.Y.) said Goodwin told him to "just sit tight."

ABC MERGER WITH ITT OKAYED

IGNORING CONGRESSIONAL protests, the Federal Communications Commission voted 4 to 3 Wednesday to permit International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. to acquire the American Broadcasting Co. in the largest communications merger in history

The merger makes ITT the nation's 20th largest company, with combined assets of $2.2 billion. ABC is the second largest radio broadcasting network and the third largest television network in the country.

JOHNSON WINS AT GOVERNOR'S PARLEY

PRESIDENT JOHNSON met with nine Democratic governors Wednesday in Johnson City, Tex., to bring rebels among them into the administration fold. He at least partially succeeded.

Iowa's Gov. Harold E. Hughes, acting as spokesman, told newsmen: "We leave in complete support of the policies and precepts of the President. These were never in question."

Johnson, promising to look into complaints on a collection of problems ranging from school desegregation guidelines to patronage, said that despite differences, the Democratic Party remains "very healthy, very virile."

STOCK MARKET ADVANCES ON BROAD FRONT

STOCK MARKET trading came out of the doldrums Wednesday to post a broad advance in moderately active trading despite some persistent profit taking.

Trading volume picked up to 7,690,000 shares from 6,830,000 shares Tuesday. The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 2.84 to 797.43 and the rail component added 2.01 to 207.62

RED PLANES DOWNED DURING A-CARRIER ATTACK

U. S. NAVY JETS intercepted two Communist aircraft off the North Vietnamese coast as they headed directly for the nuclear-powered cruiser Long Beach and apparently downed both of them with air-to-air missiles, military spokesmen said Wednesday.

It was the second time in six months that American planes beat back possible Communist air attacks on the U. S. 7th Fleet in the Gulf of Tonkin.

In ground fighting, U. S. Marines beat back two Communist machinegun attacks in northern provinces threatened by a continuing North Vietnamese buildup along the Demilitarized Zone. At least 60 Communists were killed but there was no report on American casualties.

PLAN APPEAL OF YANK'S TERM IN SIBERIA

BUEL RAY WORTHAM of Arkansas was convicted in Leningrad, U.S.R.R., Wednesday of theft and currency black marketeering and sentenced to three years in a Siberian labor camp. The U. S. Embassy protested the "harsh" sentence and Wortham's Russian lawyer began preparing an appeal.

Craddock M. Gilmour, Jr., Wortham's ex-Army buddy and fellow tourist, also was convicted of giving Wortham $20 to change into black market rubles. But he was let off with a $1,111.11 fine. Wortham had faced a maximum sentence of 11 years, Gilmour eight years.

2 MORE RUSSIAN MYSTERY MOON PROBES

THE RUSSIANS announced the launching Wednesday of two more mysterious unmanned space probes — a rocket expected to go into orbit around the moon Christmas Day and a Sputnik to gather data future spacemen will need on flights to the earth's satellite and beyond. It has been more than 21 months since the last manned Soviet space flight. In that time, the United States has successfully carried out nine Gemini space flights.

Sen. Saltonstall Is Honored By Aldermen

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall was honored Monday night by the Newton Board of Aldermen for his many years of public service which began long ago with his election to that Board.

Edward C. Uehlein offered a resolution that was approved unanimously by the Board. It read:

"Whereas: As Newton's distinguished son, the Honorable Leverett Saltonstall, is on the eve of retirement from public office after more than 47 years of devoted service—first as Alderman in our city, then as Assistant District Attorney, Representative from this district to the Great and General Court, Speaker of the House, Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and more recently as our United States Senator.

"Therefore, be it resolved: That this Board give recognition to this remarkable examplar of public service, to this man whose standards of conduct in fulfilling his duties while in office are an inspiration to all others who would serve in the common good. We of his home City of Newton are extremely proud of Senator Leverett Saltonstall and of his accomplishments since he first served as an Alderman on this Board. We are deeply grateful for the service he rendered our community. His work has been crowned with honor and distinction and we have been the beneficiaries of his labors.

"As he retires from elected office we extend to Senator Leverett Saltonstall and his wife Alice, the felicitations of a grateful community and vouchsafe for them peace and contentment in the years ahead.

"Be it further resolved: That this expression of esteem be spread upon the records of this body and given appropriate notice."

Passage From Corinthians Is Lesson-Sermon

"God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

This passage from 11 Corinthians will be the Golden Text for the Lesson-Sermon titled, "Christian Science," to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday, Christmas Day.

Scriptural passages include the story of the birth of Jesus and the adoration of the Magi as well as many references to Jesus' healing ministry.

One of the related selections from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will be this:

"Christ's Christianity is the chain of scientific being reappearing in all ages, maintaining its obvious correspondence with the Scriptures and uniting all periods in the design of God."

December Worst Month Of Year On Highways

The American Automobile Association today warned motorists and pedestrians that more people are killed in highway accidents during December than at any other time of the year.

In December of 1965, 103 people were killed in traffic accidents in Massachusetts. In 1964, 84 people were killed.

Early darkness ,decreased visibility, winter driving hazards, the excitement of the holiday season, and drinking — all make this month the most dangerous of the year for the person behind the wheel and the person on foot.

Richard W. Hoover, Safety Director for AAA's Massachusetts Division said, "This is a particularly hazardous time for children."

"Youngsters must be reminded that in bad weather their vision is restricted, it takes them longer to get across wet and slippery streets, and cars require more stopping distance under these conditions," he said.

Hard Worker Given Right To Be Santa

An insurance salesman will play Santa Claus to someone in need in his home town because he worked harder in a special "share happiness" campaign.

Edward N. Pearlman, of 87 Clark St., Newton, was one of several hundred salesmen of accident and health insurance for the Combined Group Companies to win the privilege of presenting a Christmas basket to a family selected by a local welfare agency.

Pearlman sells for the Hearthstone Insurance Company of Massachusetts, a subsidiary of the Combined Insurance Company of America. The parent company conducts many incentive sales programs during the year in which valuable prizes, in addition to regular commissions, go to men who meet or surpass special goals.

At Christmastime, the incentive is different, however. The joy of giving is a man's extra reward for a job well done.

The company is buying the baskets and toys, food, clothing and other items with which to fill them. Then it will send the holiday cheer to needy families in the names of the salesmen who met or surpassed the goals set for the annual Founder's Week program, which this year was held in the first week of November.

Pearlman was one of a number of salesmen who became so enthusiastic about the "share happiness" campaign that they sold enough policies to win the right to designate the recipients of two baskets.

Garber's Auto School Opens Branch Office

Garber's Auto School, New England's largest and most experienced auto school, announces the opening of a new branch office in Newton Centre. The new ultra modern facility will be located at 759 Beacon Street and officially opened Monday, December 19.

Garber's new branch office will be completely staffed by Registry-licensed instructors. Non-drivers of all ages will be invited to participate in the many varied courses that will be offered, such as Driver Education, Brush-Up Lessons, Private Lessons, and Learner Permit Instruction. A special "early bird" Free Pick-Up Service for housewives will also be offered.

It was also announced that a special Accelerated Driver Education Course will be offered to all eligible High School students, commencing with the Christmas and New Year's Holiday.

Annual Vesper Concert Given In Highlands

Newton Highlands Congregational Church held its annual Christmas Vesper Concert Sunday evening, Dec. 18, with the three choirs under the direction of Edward H. Hastings, organist and choirmaster, presenting Christmas anthems together with solos by Miss Martha Vleck, soprano, and C. Ray Bryan, tenor.

Following the recessional carol "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," the benediction was given by the Rev. Paul G. Pitman. The organ postlude by Mr. Hastings was Bach's "In Thee is Gladness."

The offering was applied to the fund for the eventual rebuilding of the pipe organ.

Patricia M. Meehan, 164 Highland Ave., Newtonville; Stephen F. Gordon, 174 Auburn St., Auburndale; Joel M. Hartstone, 6 Docar Rd., Newton; Howard R. Sydney, 20 Acacia Ave., Chestnut Hill, and Richard D. Wimberly, 47 Stuart Rd., Newton Centre, all University of Massachusetts seniors, have been named this year to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Druker Again Will Head Newton Taxpayers Group

Bertram A. Druker was re-elected president of the Newton Taxpayers' Association at the group's annual meeting last week. He called for strong support of the Association's 1967 program in view of the soaring present and foreseeable costs being laid on to Newton's taxpayers.

The Association's 1967 program includes the following policies:

1. To become more vocal about the incidence of new governmental services which various special elements in the community ask the whole community to pay for.

2. To exert an influence toward either denying or further postponing several desirable, but not immediately necessary, capital improvements.

3. To analyze carefully and hope to retard the rising cost of personal services in government, even though they somewhat reflect the rising rates in several sectors of the service industries.

4. To extend more ample and accurate budgeting procedures to the school department.

5. To promote tighter controls in the use of both municipal labor and equipment to the foreman level.

6. To improve the tax base more rapidly through selected, more intensive, development of land.

7. To support increased charges for special governmental services.

Other officers elected are: William C. Bodge and Bernard Roberts, vice-presidents; Donald P. Frail, treasurer; Stewart G. Orr, clerk.

Vandals Damage Bigelow School

Damage ranging into the hundreds of dollars was caused at the Bigelow junior high school over the past weekend by vandals who left a trail of destruction behind them.

Books were destroyed, telephone lines ripped from the walls, obscene phrases dotted the walls and blackboards, fire extinguishers were discharged, and a gallon of red paint was splattered over the interior.

Louis Tabaldi, custodian, discovered the problem Sunday night. There was no sign of forced entry.

Mail -

plained that there was an extraordinary Sunday delivery of packages, which has helped to avoid any backlog.

Superintendent O'Neil reported that 18 trucks have been hired to supplement regular parcel delivery. The Newtonville post office handles all deliveries to Newton homes and business places.

All other mail is sorted at the Newtonville branch for the rest of the Newtons. Superintendent O'Neil reported that he was pleased with the response by the public to appeals for the use of the bands that have been given out to pre-sort cards going to the same area.

O'Neil explained that this has permitted the Newton post office to retain Newton mail that is usually sent to the South Postal Annex in Boston, where it is sorted and sent to its destination, even when the destination is located in the community of origin.

O'Neil estimated that public response to the banding system had improved about 300 per cent over 1965 when the system was first attempted.

Supt. O'Neil commented that few Christmas temporary workers have been hired, and that regular employees have worked overtime. He asserted that this has speeded up incoming mail particularly, since it takes several months to train a new postal worker adequately.

The Newtonville post office was open Sunday, Dec. 11 and Dec. 18 for lobby window service, and Superintendent O'Neil termed the volume of activity those days "tremendous."

He said that the peak for outgoing mail was reached Monday as a result of weekend card-addressing and that the peak for incoming mail came yesterday.

By Saturday afternoon, the bags that have been stretched to a breaking point by Christmas and New Year's greetings will hang limp in rooms that are now teeming with activity.

Postal workers will enjoy a well-earned Christmas rest with their families after an outstanding Yule performance which has drawn praise from many residents of the city.

Leaking Gas Holds Firemen At Accident

Leaking gasoline kept firemen at the scene of a truck accident for five hours last Monday after a cement mixer overturned at the Gamewell Co. on Oak st. in Newton Upper Falls.

Engine 7 and Ladder 2 stood ready with foam guns while a crane raised the cement truck that had slid down an embankment and overturned.

The driver, Philip Sheehan, of Sudbury, jumped clear when the truck began its slow descent.

Firefighters were called to the scene due to leaking gas as the barrel of the truck had to be cut away with torches before the truck could be hoisted out.

Earlier attempts by a crane resulted in a broken cable and the barrel had to be emptied and cut away.

Edison and Telephone Co. workers moved back the overhead wires while the truck was being removed. The barrel was left overnight and removed Tuesday.

Teens -

cerned with the successful functioning of the city's temporary Youth Center at Warren Junior High School. But he recognizes the fact that the election of the teenage representatives is necessary for the complete success of the Warren center and the proposed permament Youth Center.

Newton Mayor Monte Basbas has given his full support to the aims of the project. The mayor is continually kept informed of the Youth Center's activities and has expressed the hope that today's elections will result in the formation of a truly representative committee which will eventually establish a successful Youth Center for Newton's teenagers.

Teenagers all over the city will cast their ballots to elect 65 representatives to work in the permanent Youth Center organization. The 65 teenagers would be elected on an annual basis.

Five teenagers of high school age will be elected from each of Newton's 13 villages. Teens will only be able to vote for those people living in their villages. Comprehensive voting lists indicating those teenagers residing in each village have been posted throughout the city prior to the elections.

The voting will be done by means of write-in ballots. Each teenager will write the names of five people from his village on his ballot. The top five vote-getters from each village will then serve on the Youth Center Committee.

It is further anticipated that these 65 representatives will in turn elect 15 members from their number to serve on the organization's Executive Committee.

The bulk of the voting will be done in Newton High School and Newton South High School. However, all students absent from school on the day of the voting and all those Newton teenagers of high school age who do not attend either of Newton's public high schools will receive absentee ballots by mail which must be returned to the temporary Youth Center Committee before Friday, January 6, 1967.

A system of nominations has been in effect in each high school whereby any student wishing to indicate a willingness to serve on the permanent Youth Center Committee or wishing to nominate a fellow student may do so by submitting the name of the nominee to the temporary committee.

A list of these nominees will be distributed with the election ballots, though it will be made clear that teenagers are not required to vote for the nominees and may fill in any five names of their choosing.

Announcements of the winners in the election will be relased around January 19th of the New Year.

Veterans Must Sign Report To Get Pension

Veterans and dependents of deceased veterans throughout Massachusetts who receive monthly nonservice-connected pension payments, and are now reporting their annual income to the Veterans Administration, are urged to remember to sign the report.

The Veterans Administration at Boston said that every year hundreds of income reports have to be returned to the pension recipients for a signature.

The law requires that pensions be paid only to persons whose annual income is less than stipulated amounts. Thus each year, an income report must be made to determine eligibility.

But a signature is necessary on the report, the VA said.

Registration Opens For Art Classes At Community Center

Registration opened this week for Children's Art Classes and Children's Enrichment Program at the Newton Community Center, 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

The Art Classes, serving youngsters in Nursery and Kindergarten and Grades 1 through 4 will meet on Thursday afternoons. Ten one-hour sessions will begin on Jan. 5, and parents who wish their children to participate are urged to register before the Dec. 23 deadline.

These classes will relate art to other fields of expression including music (through rhythms, songs and listening activities), science (through simple experiments and discussion), and literature (through dramatizing and recreating children's stories and poems). A balance between individual experiences and group activity will be maintained.

Youngsters will participate in such varied experiences as straw and sponge painting, potato and cork printing, collage and cut paper work, interpretation of children's poetry, papier mache puppetry, sand painting, casting and the like. The emphasis of the instructor is on originality of expression and on experimentation with new forms of art media. Informal study of contemporary trends in modern art will also be included. Instruction is designed to stimulate the natural creativity all children possess.

The Enrichment Program, serving youngsters in Grades 1, 2, and 3 will meet for 10 one-hour sessions beginning Jan. 3. Deadline for registration for these activities is also Dec. 23. This program was established in order to give children the opportunity for practice in the basic skills they learn at school, it is designed to provide educational benefit for recreation hours by stimulating interest and excitement in youngsters while they learn.

Activities in these groups will cover a wide range including reading, writing and dramatizing children's own stories, art and science projects, arithmetic bingo, spelling anagrams and relay races, phonic treasure hunts and many more. Groups are limited in number and attention within each session is both individual and group oriented. Children work by themselves, in pairs and in small groups according to needs and desires.

Mrs. Murray Janower, teacher of both groups is enthusiastic about both programs. In both afternoons she hopes to give children opportunities to tap their imaginative resources and talents as well as to reinforce school subjects through creative experiences, play situations and organized games. Mrs. Janower is an experienced Elementary School teacher of Brookline and has taught Art and Enrichment at the Center since September. She will also lead a special Holiday Enrichment program of field trips in Boston for children over the Vacation period.

Parents interested in registering their children for either of the programs above should contact the Community Center for additional information and registration blank at 244-2260, immediately.

Listing Of Citizens To Begin Jan. 1

The Police Department on Jan. 1, will begin the annual listing of residents 20 or more years old who live here or claim Newton as their legal residence, the Election Commission has announced.

The following points should be considered in providing the police with information:

1. - The police will want to know the resident's occupation and place and date of birth.

2. - Residents who are away at school, in the service or in the Peace Corps, will be listed if they have attained the age of 20.

3. - If a resident has been married during the year and is a woman, the new name and address should be given, provided she is living in Newton.

4. - If a resident is in a nursing home permanently or temporarily, it will be so indicateed in the listing, and he should state what he wants to be known as his legal residence so that his name can appear in the proper place in the voting list.

5. - If a resident has died during the year, the exact date of death must be listed.

If an officer finds a person is not at home when he calls, he will leave a pink form, which should be filled out promptly and be returned to the Election Commission at City Hall. This is most important, as the 1967 voting list for the municipal election in November will be compiled at this time.

Nursing School Accreditation Is Continued

Accreditation of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing has been continued by the National League for Nursing, Inc., it was announced today by William S. Brines, director of the 250-bed teaching hospital.

Notification of the favorable action was conveyed to him by letter during the past week.

The National League for Nursing periodically visits schools of nursing and passes upon the quality of educational experience provided.

"Accreditation is a voluntary matter," Mr. Brines said, "a mean for measuring the effectiveness of a nursing school's objectives and achievements. We are delighted that our program has been judged sound and that approval has been continued."

The hospital school was established in 1888 and was among the first in the nation. Present enrollment averages 150 students. In nearly 80 years, more than 2000 nurses have been graduated by the school.

Interim Appointments

Editor of the Graphic:

During a recent discussion of the virtues and failures of government in the city of Newton, the subject of the selection of "interim" members of both the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee arose once again.

I stated that I considered the current method of selection inadequate and that, in view of the fact that an incumbent has never (to the best of my knowledge) been defeated in open election for either office, the present method of "in group" selection is clearly undemocratic.

Naturally, the usual bevy of arguments in defense of the system were brought forth. These included statements such as:

"Newton is well run under this system, so why complain?"

"Look at what happened to Brighton when they changed to special elections to fill offices."

"The people as a whole are not capable of choosing well-qualified persons to serve.

As an American, these arguments sicken me. Our republican form of government provides for election of public officials by all registered voters.

Over the years, there have been many voices raised against our present method of filling vacancies to both the Board of Alderman and the School Committee. These voices usually come forth every time there is an interim appointment made and then are quiet again until the next incident.

Is it not time that the many voices raised against this undemocratic and immoral pratcice organize a strong group for the purpose of correcting this wrong and remain actively involved until this insult to the intelligence of the citizens of our community is remedied?

Thanks To Briggs

Editor of The Graphic:

Mr. Russell F. Briggs deserves a special vote of thanks from the taxpayers of Newton for asking pertinent questions publicly which the School Committee of Newton has never answered and apparently has no intention of answering.

I have attended every School Committee meeting for the past two years out of sheer fascination because it isn't often that one gets to listen to a private segregated club in action.

The notion that most school committee members represent the citizens who elect them is false. The almost complete lack of representation or concern for the wishes of parents is apparent and shocking to those of us who attend Scohol Committee meetings. The main purpose of the School Committee is to promote the public relations of our school system and, as Mr. Briggs so aptly put it, "approve of every proposal the administration makes with little evaluation."

The questions Mr. Briggs asked will never be answered unless the answers are demanded by the taxpayers who are paying the bills for frosted cake when their children need bread. One wonders just who benefits the most from our national reputation. Is it really our children?

The conditions which exist and which make it possible for questions asked by Mr. Briggs to go unanswered are caused by a complete lack of communications fostered by the the school administration and School Committee. Their motto is "divide and conquer" and it works. They are also aided by apathy and disinterest on the part of the people who are footing the bills.

The few people who dare to ask questions finally give up in despair and frustration, hire tutors or put their children in private school. Many even leave this educational utopia for other cities where their children can get a good basic education without costly frills.

While the tax rate climbs and climbs, we should not blame anyone but ourselves. We ask for it and deserve it. It would be nice if just once, someone told us where all that money for school budget is going and why.

Thank you for asking questions, Mr. Briggs. They will never be answered but it's nice to know that some people resist the apathy that afflicts so many Newton citizens.

MRS. HAROLD ASNES

Political Highlights

This observer would be among the first to join loudly in the outcries against censorship and the suppression of history if that were the issue in this dispute as some writers either imply or boldly claim.

However, the basic question at stake is whether author Manchester should honor the agreement he made with Mrs. Kennedy and Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

This writer is not qualified to express an opinion as to the legal force and standing of Manchester's so-called memorandum of understanding with Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

But a careful examination of the agreement leads to the inescapable conclusion that Manchester is morally wrong, whatever the legal technicalities involved may be.

This is no ordinary case of an enterprising reporter or writer digging up facts on his own initiative for a news article or a book. Under such circumstances his only responsibility is to remain within the limits of truth and accuracy.

Manchester is in a completely different category. He was selected by the Kennedy family to prepare a historical account of the late President's death, covering a six-day period from just before JFK's assassination until just after it.

He was given access to information and documents not available to any other writer. In fact, the members of the Kennedy family promised they would not cooperate with any other author who wished to deal with the same subject.

In turn, Manchester made certain commitments in the memorandum of understanding. But it would appear that the members of the Kennedy family kept their end of the bargain and that Manchester did not keep his.

Manchester himself has declared that he has ten hours of taped conversation with Mrs. Kennedy while she only appeared for two hours before the Warren Commission.

That in itself reflects the kind of cooperation he received from the widow of the late President.

Mrs. Kennedy apparently bared to Manchester her innermost feelings and emotions on the fateful day her husband was suddenly killed by an assassin's bullet. She obviously did so in the belief that she would have an opportunity to review and edit what he wrote.

Considerable stress has been placed by some writers on the fact that Manchester's interview with Mrs. Kennedy occured some time after the assassination, and not immediately following it. That's nonsense and the kind of illogical reasoning which has been unfair to the late President's widow.

Does anybody reasonably contend that Jackie Kennedy should be able to sit down even today - - three years after the assassination - - and talk calmly, objectively, dispassionately and unemotionally about her feelings, reactions and emotions when her husband was killed as he sat beside her in an automobile?

One paragraph in the Kennedy - Manchester agreement says, "The completed manuscript shall be reviewed by Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy, and the final text shall not be published unless and until approved by them."

Manchester's rather glib declaration that the late President Kennedy as a historian "would have wanted his countrymen to know the truth of those terrible days," does not wash out the fact that Manchester agreed that his manuscript would not be published unless and until it had been approved by both Mrs. Jackie Kennedy and Bobby Kennedy.

Whatever JFK might have wanted as an historian, it's doubtful that he would have wanted his wife's emotional state after his death exploited by any author, as Mrs. Kennedy claims Manchester has done with his use of her personal recollections obtained in 10 hours of taped conversation.

One section of the agreement specifies: "No motion picture or TV adaptation shall ever be made based on the book. Other rights may be disposed of by William Manchester, with the approval of Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy, though it is not the intention to prevent the sale of serial rights to a responsible publisher."

Whether that means the serial rights of the book could be sold only with the approval of Jackie and Bobby Kennedy is something a court presumably would decide. To us it does mean that.

Members of the Kennedy family suddenly woke up to the fact that the serial rights had been sold to Look Magazine for $665,000 for publication next month.

What also apparently disturbed them was that the magazine is to publish only portions of the book, using about 80,000 words from a book which runs more than 300,000 words.

The Manchester - Kennedy agreement, which incidentally, was signed by Manchester, also states: "The book may not be published before Nov. 22, 1968, unless Mrs. Kennedy designates a prior date and shall be published at such date thereafter as shall be mutually agreeable to all the contracting parties. It is understood that publication will take place promptly after Nov. 22, 1968, unless there is some serious reason for either party to withhold his agreement thereto."

If we understand English, that paragraph means that Manchester agreed he would not publish his book before Nov. 22, 1968, unless Jackie Kennedy agreed to an earlier date.

The provision that the book not be published until after the 1968 Presidential election presumably was motivated by political considerations. But that is beside the point. The point is that Manchester made an agreement with Mrs. Kennedy and isn't keeping it.

Manchester protested with indignation that the integrity of his book and his honesty as a writer and a person have been attacked.

He's certainly right that his honesty and integrity as a person are being challenged.

Mr. Manchester seems to talk all around the basic issues. He discussed the integrity and honesty of his book in much detail, but he makes little reference to his own agreement with Mrs. Kennedy and Senator Kennedy.

He argues that neither Mrs. Kennedy nor any member of the Kennedy family nor anyone else is in any way responsible for his research or the content of his book.

His reasoning is a little difficult to follow since members of the Kennedy family arranged for him to write the book and gave him access to information which otherwise would not have been available to him.

Other noted authors sought permission to write a book on the same subject but were turned down because members of the Kennedy family had picked Manchester to do the work.

A paragraph in the agreement says: "It is understood that William Manchester may need introductions to certain public officials and access to certain pertinent documents. In this matter, Robert F. Kennedy will provide any assistance he deems wise, and William Manchester undertakes to treat such material with discretion."

How Manchester can maintain under these circumstances that no member of the Kennedy family is in any way responsible for his research or the content of his book is something of a mystery but seems to be in line with his general thinking on the entire matter.

Manchester declares that Mrs. Kennedy never asked to see his manuscript and that if she had he would have given it to her.

The agreement specifically provides that both Mrs. Kennedy and Senator Robert Kennedy were to review the completed manuscript.

Mrs. Jackie Kennedy certainly had a right to assume Manchester would send her a copy of his manuscript when he had completed it. How else could she possibly review it?

Manchester denies emphatically that his book is being published prematurely. But the agreement specifies that the book cannot be published before Nov. 22, 1968, unless Mrs. Kennedy designates a prior date.

For some reason Mr. Manchester emphasizes that "in the final analysis this is my book."

No one questions that it's his book, but that certainly doesn't give him the right to break his word or violate a written agreement with the persons who made it possible for him to write his work.

There are many tragic aspects to this entire controversy over Manchester's book.

Mrs. Kennedy and the other members of the Kennedy party were in a state of shock when they returned to the Presidential plane after John F. Kennedy had been assassinated in Dallas.

Things were said on that plane in Dallas and on the ride back to Washington by persons torn and stricken by grief, stunned and numbed by a tragedy so enormous they could hardly contemplate it.

Later it was decided that some author should write an authoritative book about the late President's death. William Manchester was chosen because he had been a friend of John F. Kennedy.

In ten hours of conversation Jackie Kennedy obviously bared her emotions to Manchester with the understanding that she had the right to review and approve what he wrote before is was published.

Now Manchester offers himself as some kind of literary martyr because he is being asked to live up to the agreement he signed. He may be a fine writer, but he doesn't shape up as much of a man.

Most politicians attach much more importance to keeping their word.

It was turned over to Mayor Basbas and other clubs and groups asking for the names and addresses of servicemen to whom they could send bundles. The Mayor, incidentally, sent personal gifts to each of the 26 servicemen in Viet Nam.

Whether his packages will reach him by Christmas is uncertain, but even if he gets it after the Yuletide the spirit will be the same.

To Mayor Basbas, the officers and members of the clubs and organizations who joined in the endeavor to let the Newton servicemen in Vietnam know they are remembered by grateful folks back home, the Graphic expresses its deep gratitude.

And a very merry Christmas also to the school teachers who had their pupils send classroom greetings to the Newton GIs in Viet Nam and to all the youngsters who bowed over their pencils and papers to scribble their Yuletide thoughts for a lonely serviceman.

St. Sebastian Bows 64 To 51 To Providence

St. Sebastian's of Newton was on the losing end of a 64 to 51 in a basketball game played recently with Providence.

The game got off to a slow start, with Providence capitalizing on several traveling calls. The contest's high scorer was David Horner of Providence, who accounted for 34 points, 27 more than acquired by the next nearest teammate, John Powers, who had seven. Horner's outside shooting made the difference in the game.

A second half press by St. Sebastian's cut the Providence lead to 10 points, but the Newton hoopsters could not wipe out the total deficit.

High scorers for St. Sebastian's were Jack Murphy, 16 points; and David Foley, Mark Whittemore and Thomas Quinn, each with 10 points.

Yule Creche Again Draws Praise Here

The Church of the Good Shepherd in Waban Square is nothing if not animated for this Christmas season, and is drawing much praise.

Outdoors, there are live sheep in a creche on the church lawn.

Inside, live children are to play at being live animals in the Christmas Pageant.

The church's rector, the Rev. William E. Foley ,comments on the creche as follows:

"This bucolic, antiquated scene may seem to some to be an anachronism, but it belongs here in the midst of sophisticated suburbia. We desperately need to see that it isn't the new things and new achievements we so cherish that count. These, too, pass away.

"What counts," the rector concludes, "is seen in this creche, a new birth of the spirit within us. This is what makes a person larger than life; and only people larger than life find the peace that the angels offered us about 2000 years ago."

In the pageant, the children of the church will bring to life a medieval French story that is pure fantasy—a legend that says that on Christmas Eve, by special permission of the angels, all animals are allowed to sepak with one another. And, of course, what they talk about on this special night is the birth of the Holy Child.

Gathered around the manger are a lion, a mouse and a donkey. There are sheep, too, and oxen, three camels of the Wise Men, and a ram and a dove.

In gay and modern song, the animals boast a wee bit of their different contributions to the Christmas story, and praise the newborn Christ Child.

This Christmas pageant, which so gaily combines the old and the new, has been modernized by Manuel Komroff, and set to music by Ernst Bacon. Direction is by Susan Shao, organist-choirmaster.

The pageant will be performed Saturday afternoon, Dec. 24, at 4:30 o'clock.

"I still do love to travel," the Academy Award-winning actress says, "but it is getting harder and harder all the time to leave my home."

"Home" for the British-born Miss Andrews is now the house she owns in Los Angeles.

"I can't really call England home any more," she says. With her busy film-making schedule, Miss Andrews says she "very seldom" gets back there, "My family has to come this way to visit me now."

One reason she prefers to stay home is her four-year-old daughter, Emma Kate, who recently started nursery school. Miss Andrews is married to British set designer Tony Walton.

Miss Andrews tries to take Emma with her whenever she has to travel, but now that the little girl is in school, she says it has become more difficult. So she tries to make her trips away from home "as short as I possibly can."

Miss Andrews says Emma has inherited her love of singing . . . except that Emma's favorite song at the moment is "Batman."

Miss Andrews, who became famous on Broadway in "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot," would like to return to Broadway "if I had enough time free . . . a Broadway show takes a whole year out of your life."

Prefers Films

Although she loves acting on stage, Miss Andrews says she really prefers motion pictures. "Movies seem fresher and newer. They hold my attention and are so exciting. It's like piecing together a complicated jigsaw puzzle."

Miss Andrews has made six movies in the past three years. She made her screen debut in "Mary Poppins," for which she won the 1964 "best actress" Academy Award. Subsequently she appeared in "The Americanization of Emily," "The Sound of Music," "Hawaii" and the yet-to-be-released "Torn Curtain" and "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

Because so many of her roles were "sweet young lady" parts, Miss Andrews said she had worried she might become typecast. To combat this she looked for straight dramatic roles.

Has she gotten away from the "Mary Poppins image?" "I certainly hope so," she says. "But only time will tell."

Most Dangerous

CHICAGO (UPI)—Coal mining is the most hazardous industry in the country, the National Safety Council reports.

In 1965 the industry recorded 36 disabling injuries for every million man hours. The average for all industries is 6½.

Playing Down Cigarette Ads

BONN (UPI)—Men of distinction will no longer figure in German cigarette advertising.

The decision was the most important of the advertising guidelines agreed on by West Germany's 17 leading cigarette manufacturers. They acted at the the suggestion of the Federal Ministry for Health, and to avoid parliamentary moves to legally restrict their advertising.

The cigarette makers agreed not to advertise in magazines for minors, not to use athletes in word or picture advertising and not to show anyone under 25 years of age smoking.

HOSTS AT NASSAU PARTY—Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Hayes of Auburndale who will observe their 50th wedding anniversary by taking all their in-laws to Nassau for a week.

Week-Long Party Will Mark Golden Jubilee

A Newton couple today disclosed some unusual plans for an unusual celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Hayes, 291 Woodland Rd., Auburndale, will observe their 50th wedding anniversary on December 31st.

But instead of a party, they've invited their three daughters and families, 17 in all, ranging from two-and-a-half years old to Grandfather Hayes at 72, to spend this week in Nassau for the occasion.

All three daughters will be celebrating anniversaries, too, and the total for the four couples adds up to 100 years of marriage.

The three daughters are Mrs. Wilburt M. Draisin, 21 Pierrepont Road, Newton Lower Falls, who celebrates her 25th year of marriage; Mrs. Gerald A. Rogovin, 51 Shornecliffe Road, Newton, who celebrates 15 years; and Mrs. Theodore E. Lewis, 51 Hollow Oak Road, Stamford, Conn., 10 years.

Mrs. Draisin's daughter, Mrs. Matthew T. Orvik, 280 River Road, Piscataway, N.J., and her husband, will celebrate six months of marriage.

The Hayeses and their children and grandchildren will spend their holiday doing, as Mr. Hayes put it, "all the things that families do together. It will be better than throwing a huge party because the most important people in our lives are our kids. We'll all be together for what ought to be a marvelous week. Then the Mrs. and I will take more time — after the kids go home — to recover."

Fire Chief Lists Rules For Safe Yule Season

Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr., of the Newton Fire Department wishes to take this opportunity to wish all a very Merry Christmas and to present these very important points to help prevent fire in your home during this time.

1. Christmas tree to be kept in a pail of water or wet sand while in the house, water to be checked by an adult member each day to help prevent the tree from drying out.

2. Do not locate the tree in such a way it will block any exits from the room.

3. Do not place the tree near radiators or other source of heat.

4. Make sure that electric lights on the tree are in good condition. Always shut off the lights when leaving the house.

5. Under no conditions should electric trains be placed around the base of the tree, as this could cause a very severe life hazard, especially to small children, in case of a short circuit.

6. Check the needles of the tree, and if they are turning brown, re-locate the lights.

7. Make sure that with all the additional electric current being used at this time of the year you do not overload a circuit, if the fuses should blow call an electrician immediately.

8. When unwrapping Christmas gifts, have a large container handy in which to place all the paper and flammable wrappings and, remove it immediately after use.

Church of the Messiah Scene of Evans-Harvey Bridal

The Rev. Robert W. Golledge officiated at the 7 o'clock evening double-ring service.

Daughter of Mr. Thomas D. Harvey of Dallas, Texas, the bride was attired in an A-line sheath gown over a beige silk. She chose a Dior bow of matching crepe and her flowers were white orchids.

Mrs. Donald Seely of Pittsfield was matron of honor.

Michael Widmayer of Boston served as best man.

After an automobile trip along the New England coast, Mr. and Mrs. Evans are now making their home in Boston.

Mr. Evans is a teacher.

Newton Teenage Girl Airs Religion Views In Magazine

"God did not create man; man created God."

So says a 16-year-old Massachusetts girl, writing in the current issue of a national publication.

Amy Saldinger, of 98 Sumner St., Newton Centre, is one of four young people who discuss "Do Teens Believe in God?" in the December issue of Ingenue Magazine. Amy does not believe in God and feels that man will only be free "when his mind is unlocked from the chains of religion . . .

"It woulde be nice to say, 'Let's outlaw religion. It breeds prejudice and ignorance.' But that woulld be hypocritical," Amy writes.

She feels that religion's hypocritical man-made attitudes tend to discredit any of its virtues and, "When kids realize . . . the many hypocrises, their faith in religion will be shattered, and they will turn a deaf ear on any valuable precepts." Amy does, however, see value in the cultural aspects of religion (music, art and literature), but not in its philosophical teachings.

Amy believes strongly in personal religious freedom, as guaranteed by the Constitution, but interprets freedom of religion also to mean "the feedom of no religion; or the freedom to hear the scientific facts at school, the religious beliefs at home, and the right then to decide for oneself which one is right."

The Newton High School junior is a member of the debating society, American Field Service, and the Russian club. Many of her interests center around music: she plays the piano, recorder and glockenspiel, belongs to the school's music club and marching band, and likes to spend her spare time either listening to or composing music.

Mayor -

During the debate on the raise Alderman Shea predicted that Newton's tax rate may climb to $100 in the 1970's.

Shea pointed out that a tax rate of close to $90 has been forecast for 1971 and said he agreed with the Newton Taxpayers' Association that this is a conservative estimate.

The $7500-a-year salary boost agreed upon by a majority of the Aldermen at a private session represented a compromise between a proposal by Alderman William M. Glovsky and a recommendation by the Aldermanic Finance Committee.

Glovsky originally submitted an order calling for a $10,000 pay raise for the Mayor, which would have hiked the annual salary for the office from $20,000 to $30,000.

The Aldermanic Finance Committee, after deliberating on Glovsky's order, urged that a $5000-a-year raise be granted.

The full Aldermanic Board Monday night settled on a compromise figure half way between Glovsky's proposal and the Finance Committee's recommendation.

Alderman Shea offered the only objection to the hike in the Mayor's pay. However, when Shea was speaking out against any raise in the mayoralty salary, the matter before the board was the Finance Committee recommendation for a $5000 increase.

When Shea concluded his remarks, the Aldermen retired to a star-chamber conference in an ante-room and subsequently emerged with the $7500 compromise.

Shea, who had raised a charter objection to the $5000 increase at the Dec. 5 meeting of the Board of Aldermen, pointed out that the Mayor of Boston receives $20,000 a year and expressed doubt that Newton taxpayers would want to pay their Mayor $25,000.

He also commented that in 1963 municipal election a majority of the voters who recorded themselves on the matter opposed a suggested increase in the Mayor's salary from $15,000 to $20,000 per year.

Under the provisions of the order approved at Monday night's session, the hike in the mayoralty pay would not become effective during the present term of Mayor Monte G. Basbas.

The raise will become effective when the next Mayor takes office on New Year's Day in 1968, whether he be Basbas or someone else.

Alderman Shea declared Monday night that he had opportunity to consider the proposed increase on its merits.

"First," he said, "I would like to emphasize that I believe we are establishing compensation for the office of mayor, and not for the person who happens—at any one time — to be the mayor. Indeed I believe we should not change the pay of the mayor's office during any one mayor's two-year term. For if we grant a raise, we are favoring the personality rather than the office. If we vote not to grant a raise, we are accused of being against the mayor.

"When we disregard personalities and consider the office of mayor itself in an attempt to weigh the issues involved in this proposal, the following observations seem worthy of our attentions," Shea declared.

The Planning Department's projection of the Capital Improvements Program's effect upon our tax rate indicates a rate of nearly $90 in 1971. I agree with the Newton Taxpayers' Association that this is a conservative estimate. I believe that when other increasing costs are combined with the Capital Improvement Program's effect, Newton's tax rate for the early 70's may well soar to $100 per $1,000," Shea stated.

"While the proposed raise represents a minimal direct effect upon our tax rate, it is a precedent whose multiplier effect we should avoid. His Honor, the Mayor, tells us that all groups of Newton municipal employees are seeking pay raises for next year. We are in the middle of collective bargaining with our municipal employees. Our school budget, over which the Board of Aldermen has no control, is demanding more for both salary and non-salary items", Shea continued.

"I believe our municipal employees merit a better, and in some instances a more competitive, pay schedule. But we should act comprehensively to make our municipal pay schedules more equitable at all levels.

"In addition, I would like to point out that according to the 1967 Information Please Almanac, of the 50 largest cities in the United States, only 21 compensate their Mayor more than $20,000. per year. Newton, incidentally, is the 143rd largest city in the United States.

"I suggest that anyone who has doubts about this matter examine, in the most recent edition of The Municipal Year Book published by The International City Managers' Association, the salary schedule for mayors of cities with populations comparable to Newton's.

"I would also like to remind you that the Mayor of Boston, a city with a population of nearly 700,000 rather than Newton's 92,000, and a city with 1965 revenues and expenditures of more than $450 million, compared with Newton's 1965 revenues and expenditures which reached approximately one-tenth that amount, presently compensates its office of mayor at a rate of $20,000. per year.

"I wonder whether the taxpayers of Newton would countenance our raising the salary of the Mayor $5,000. per year above the salary of the Mayor of Boston", Shea said.

"With talk of a possible increase in federal income taxes, a probable increase in the cost of Massachusetts compulsory automobile insurance, some question as to whether the Massachusetts sales tax will fulfill the expanding fiscal demands of state government, and the prospect of a future $100 Newton tax rate, Newton taxpayers deserve every possible consideration.

"I therefore urge you to vote against the proposed $5,000. increase in salary for the office of mayor", Shea concluded.

Subsequently, the Aldermen substituted a $7500 figure for the $5000 raise Shea had opposed, and Shea cast the lone vote against the $7500 hike.

Jerry Vale, Lucky Bronx Kid, Has Climbed To Top

By ROBERT SULLIVAN
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Genaro Vitaliano sat in Lindy's bar on Broadway with his manager, a press agent, and a reporter and said this is where he wanted to be at this point in his life.

He stared at a cup of dark coffee and told of how he got there.

The ruggedly handsome young singer, who performs under the name of Jerry Vale, recalled kneeling on the floor of a Bronx barber shop shining shoes to the rhythm of his versions of popular tunes.

He remembered running from P.S. 68 to singing lessons at a place called "Rose's."

He told of four years at Evander Childs High School in the Bronx, outstanding only in the accomplishment of absolutely nothing.

The years after high school, he said, were taken up with a $25 a week job making transformers for fluorescent lights and a series of nighttime talent contests, and appearances in local bars, movie houses, and small Bronx clubs.

It's when he was working as a steam shovel oiler that he got his biggest break.

The young apprentice was coming home from the movies one night, wearing his working jacket — a mackinaw — when a friend convinced him to watch a talent contest at the Club Del Rio in the Bronx. "My friend literally shoved me into the contest," he said. "I wasn't prepared, and I looked awful in that mackinaw."

He won with a straight "Far Away Places."

The first prize was a three-week engagement which the management repeated for more than a year, for $10 a night.

Several years at the Bronx circuit brought "Jerry" to the Enchanted Room in Yonkers, N.Y., where he worked a year.

A Miami vacation was cut short by an acute lack of funds one day in 1950 and Jerry shot back to the Enchanted Room early and coaxed the owner into letting him sing for the weekend to pay off a few outstanding tabs.

Current popular singer Guy Mitchell was there for a performance and liked the lad's singing enough to get him an audition with Columbia Records talent head Mitch Miller.

After that it was all icing for Jerry Vale.

He spent several years in New England where they appreciated his simple "no gimmick" treatment of popular tunes.

"I pulled overflow crowds wherever I went there," Vale said, "but if I stepped out of New England, nobody heard of me."

Best-selling singles and some successful albums changed that and in 1963 he received such audience acclamation at a one-night all-star show at Madison Square Garden that he was signed for a one-man concert at Carnegie Hall.

"I was very hesitant," he said, "I didn't want to sing to an empty house."

More than 1,000 of his fans were turned away.

Vale boasts also of a second one-man show at Carnegie Hall, appearances at the Americana in Miami Beach, the Sands in Las Vegas, Blinstrub's in Boston, the Shamrock Hilton in Houston, Casino Royal in Washington, D.C., and a record-breaking series of three engagements in one year at New York's Copacabana.

His best-selling albums include: "It's Magic," "Have You Looked Into Your Heart?" "Great Moments on Broadway," "Tears Keep on Falling," "The Language of Love" and "Standing Ovation at Carnegie Hall."

"I've fulfilled my dreams," he said. "I really don't want more than this."

He just wants to continue singing songs "as they were written, without gimmicks tunes that will be popular 10 years from now."

"I've been very lucky," he said, 'for an Italian kid from da Bronx."

High Fidelity Stereo Receiver Is Popular

By PRESTON McGRAW
Untied Press International

Hardly anyone argues anymore with the growing trend toward the high fidelity stereo receiver — the integrated tuner, amplifier and preamplifier on one frame.

The receiver is compact, compared with two or three components it replaces; with transistors solving heat problems it is as long-lived as separate components, and it is a little cheaper than buying separate components.

One of the reasons high fidelity receivers are so big in the market now is receivers like Harman - Kardon's SP - 900B, which tunes the frequency modulation band only.

Unless a person lives in a rural area, there is not much point in having AM on a tuner anyway. Only FM has high fidelity quality.

The SR-900B is sensitive enough that if a listener lives within 35 miles of the FM stations in his city, an 18-inch piece of single-strand wire tied to one antenna terminal is enough antenna.

The sensitivity is enough, a protracted home listening test showed, that an outside antenna of much gain will overload it.

For the test, the SR-900B was substituted for two high-powered tubed monophonic amplifiers and a tubed preamplifier that had developed a hum. The tubed components are the best available.

Big Job

Furthermore, the job the receiver had to do was to drive two Bozak B-4000 speakers, superlative performers but most demanding speakers.

Though the SR-900B's per channel output is listed as "50 watts music power," which is not exactly the same as 50 watts period by old-fashioned measurement, it drove the speakers with the volume up less than a quarter.

Of course, the hum was gone with the SR-900B's. Like most top transistorized components, the hum level is exceptionally low.

When tubed amplifiers are compared by ear with transistorized amplifiers, almost invariably the transistorized amplifiers suffer in the comparison on the low end of the scale.

Not so with the SR-900B. If there was any bass loss, it was not noticeable.

About the only complaint with the receiver was the fact that with tape deck and turntable both going, switching back and forth was not clean. There was a leak between the channels.

A meter tells when the tuner is properly tuned to a station. There is a headphone jack for low impedance phones on the front panel. Switching from FM to FM stereo is automatic, though there is a separate control position for FM mono only, when extra sensitivity is desireable .

16 To 5 Vote Upholds Denial Of Zone Change

By a vote of 16 to 5, with three members absent, the Board of Aldermen Monday night upheld the Claim's and Riules committee's recommendation for denial of the petition of Royal Colonial Gardens Realty Trust for a zone change that would allow construction of a development of 44 garden-type apartments off Route 9 near Route 128 in Newton Upper Falls, in the vicinity of Macon place and Cragmore road.

The committee vote to deny the petition of Kris Apog had been 4 to 3. Monday night, Chairman Franklin N. Flaschner of Claims and Rules identified the members of the committee who voted for denial and those who voted against it.

Voting for denial, he said, were Ernest F. Dietz, William E. Hopkins, William P. Matthews, and himself. Those who voted against denial were Wendell R. Bauckman, president of the Board; Adelaide B. Ball and Melvin J. Dangel. Not voting, because of absence, was Winslow C. Auryansen.

In giving the committee report, Flaschner remarked that at the Oct. 10 public hearing given the petition at a joint session of Claims and Rules and the Planning Board, there had been "irresponsible" statements by many of those who came to City Hall to express opposition to the Apog request. Many of those opposed, he added were not abutters, but persons who lived far from the area.

Flaschner said that the majority of his committee was not satisfied with the quality of the proposed apartment complex, "which was intended for a good residential district of one and two-family homes."

The Ward 5 Aldermen (Edward C. Uehlein) had made a survey of the area on his own, Flaschner said, and found that 11 of the 25 abutters he interviewed were opposed to the project, and that only eight or nine were in favor.

Later, during debate, Uehlein said that as a result of the survey he carried out, he was convinced that the proposed project would not be good for the city as a whole. He, too, referred to "irresponsible" statements made by members of a committee of opponents, and expressed regret that the gorup had staged a demonstration in front of the home of Mayor Basbas. "I do not question the integrity of Mr. Apog," Uehlein added.

The Apog petition was the subject of a separate vote. Action on the remainder of the items on which Claims and Rules had made recommendations was as follows:

Approval was given the petition of Loch Haven Nursing Homes, Inc., new owners of the former Voll Nursing Home at 14 Newtonville avenue, Newton, for renewal of the home's existing license and its transfer to the new owner.

Also approved was the request of a one-family residence at 92 Prince street.

Newton Buick Company's request for construction of customer car parking facilities at 37-39 Thornton street, Newton, was approved with conditions calling for erection of a cedar fence five feet high in addition to the five-foot chain link fence the company had proposed to erect on the lot.

Another request approved was that of Charter House of Massachusetts, Inc., for permission to construct a parking facility off Boylston street, Chestnut Hill, for customer cars at the Newton Charter House.

Approved also were petitions of the Atlantic Refining Company for substitute steel, aluminum and plexi-glass signs at three service station locations: 1238 Washington street, West Newton,, 1365 Centre street, Newton Centre, and 414 Watertown street, Newton. The usual restrictions against signs with flashing lights or moveable parts were imposed.

James Martin was granted permission to hold periodic auction sales of secondhand household articles at 301 Elliot street, Newton Upper Falls.

A petition of Leona Fontecchio et als for a change of zone from Private Residence District to Residence D. District on land in the rear of 392 and 400 Langley road, Newton Centre, was denied. This petition was given a public hearing Nov. 14, and considerable opposition developed.

Also denied was the petition of Jack P. Ricciardi et al for a change of zone to allow construction of a 12-unit apartment building at 268 Watertown street, Newton. There were two dissenting votes on this action, those of Melvin J. Dangel and Andrew J. Magni.

The petition of V. George Badoian for a complex of recreational facilities in the vicinity of Vine and LaGrange streets, Chestnut Hill, was also denied. The Oak Hill Improvement Association provided vigorous opposition to this proposal at the time of its public hearing.

Simplicity and Wonder Mark Ageless Story of Christmas

BY JAMES G. COLBERT

An ageless story that never grows old will be told and retold this week of the Babe who was born in Bethlehem and of conquerors and rulers who tried to silence His simple truths.

It is a story which has a rightful place in a political column in Christmas week, for in a cold and drafty stable in a little town among the hills was born One who came to speak to the multitudes about justice and freedom and fundamental rights.

The kings and captains marched up and down the land in full panapoly, and the heavens opened up with song that was for Him — not for them.

His words came down through the centuries, revered and honored; theirs are forgotten.

Not the least of the wonders we commemmorate this week with prayers and hymns, with twinkling lights and gladness in our hearts, is the simplicity that surrounded the coming of the Saviour.

A carpenter named Joseph went with his young wife, Mary, up from Nazareth to Bethlehem, the town of his fathers, to enroll for taxation as the Roman rulers had decreed should be done.

Bethlehem was a small hill town of no particular consequence 1966 years ago.

Joseph and Mary arrived in the village late and tired to find there was no room for them in its only inn.

With other humble travelers they took shelter in the stable, and there in the manegr the Christ Child was born.

That was the simple beginning. Add the shepherds on the night hills, the appearance of the angel, their journey to the stble, and it still remains one of the least adorned of all the great stories we cherish.

It is a story as simple as was Christ Himself and His teachings, as simple as His Sermon on the Mount, a masterpiece of simplicity, which remains as the ultimate basis of Christian belief and of the beliefs of free men of goodwill everywhere.

He spoke in a single tongue, in terms of the beasts of the forest, the birds of the air and the lilies of the fields, of man's responsibility to man.

His simple words, which the kings and the conquerors seemed momentarily to silence, still live on; theirs have perished and are forgotten.

The event we commemorate 1966 years later is the Birth in the humble stable, not the gathering in the crowded inn where Mary and Joseph could find no room.

Many Past Yuletides Were Marred by War

The soft strains of the ancient hymns of the Yuletide and the warm glow of the colored lights bring back memories of other Christmases, when there was little meaning to the words, "On earth peace to men of goodwill."

There was the Yuletide of 1941 — a quarter of a century ago — just 18 days after the attack on Pearl Harbor, and the dispatches from Manilla told of Japanese bombs raining down upon an open city, as MacArthur's men retreated toward Bataan. A sizeable segment of our navy lay crippled or mortally wounded at Pearl Harbor, and workmen labored around the clock on Christmas Day to repair the damage that had been done.

There was the Christmas 22 years ago when Americans waited anxiously for news of the outcome of the Battle of the Bulge as United States troops fought and died in the snow-covered hills and narrow valleys of the Ardennes in their struggle to turn back a Nazi drive for the Meuse.

The skies were darkened that Christmas Day by vast U. S. air armadas, but the German divisions grimly took the punishment they meted out and pushed forward.

There was Christmas Day in 1942 in North Africa. And on Christmas Day in 1943, American boys offered prayers to the Prince of Peace, as they fought their way up through the boot of Italy.

Those Christmases of the early 1940's now seem far away; yet the memories they left will never be forgotten either by the men who spent them in the fox holes or to those who waited tensely at home for the reports from the battlefronts.

Hundreds of thousands of American youths in battle dress will spend this Christmas in a strange land named Vietnam on the other side of the world — a country most of them never knew existed a few years ago — where they're fighting a strange war for the cause of freedom.

But at least there will be a cessation in hostilities for the Birthday of the Prince of Peace before the fighting is resumed in the jungles and the rice paddies.

Those at home, whose thoughts are with loved ones in that war-torn country, will hope fervently that next Christmas there will be greater meaning in Vietnam to the words, "On earth peace to men of goodwill."

Improvement Loans Come Easier Than Buying Loans

By JOHN PIERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you can't get a mortgage to buy a new house, you may want to consider a home improvement loan to fix up your old place.

There's some evidence that tight money is forcing more and more people to do just that.

Applications for home purchase loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) are down 30 percent so far this year. But FHA home improvement loans are off only about 2 percent from 1965.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board reports loans for home repair and modernization—both FHA and conventional — increased about $12 million a month this past summer, 30 percent faster than a year ago.

FHA officials say they've noticed a tendency for banks and other lenders to try to channel more of the housing demand away from home purchase and into home improvement loans.

In doing so, lenders have only been doing what comes naturally in a period of tight money and rising interest rates. Like borrowers, lenders are having to pay more for their money, too.

But the squeeze on a bank becomes more bearable if the bank can turn around and make a home improvement loan, which earns it a higher rate of return than a home purchase loan.

Interest Rates

The interest rate on an FHA home purchase mortgage is limited to 6 percent. Conventional mortgages for buying a home run up to about 7 percent. But a lender can get 9.5 percent on an FHA-backed home improvement loan. Rates on conventional loans for home improvement run between 12 and 14 percent in the East and 18 percent or above on the West Coast.

The higher rate you pay for home improvement financing is a good reason to buy a house instead, if you can get a home purchase mortgage while money's tight. Thrown back on fixing up your old house, you'd do better to use an FHA home improvement loan rather than conventional financing because of the lower interest charge — 9.5 percent instead of 12 to 18 percent.

Here are the major pros and cons of the two types of home improvement loans — FHA and conventional:

—Avalability: not all lenders make FHA loans. And with the cost of money going up, others have stopped making them.

—Amount: FHA home improvement loans are limited to $3,500—enough to build a bedroom and bath, if you're careful. If the job is bigger, you'll have to finance it conventionally and pay the higher rate.

—Maturity: FHA loans have to be repaid within five years. Some conventional loans are for a longer period.

—Down payment: None is needed on an FHA home improvement loan. A conventional loan may require it.

—Hidden costs, closing costs, service charges or other extras: None are allowed on FHA loans. Conventional loans may include them.

Actor Traveled To Prominence Via Vaudeville And Shakespeare

NEW YORK (UPI) — From vaudeville comedy to the Shakespeare Theatre at Stratford-On-Avon is the unlikely route Anthony Quayle traveled in his rise to prominence as one of Britain's most eminent actors.

As a youngster, Quayle had studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts but ran away from school after only a year to join Bob Flanagan, a famed British comedian, in the early 1930s.

"I was his straight man, and it was a wonderful experience," Quayle recalled during rehearsal for one of his infrequent U.S. television appearances. He is one of the stars — along with Peter Ustinov and Geraldine Page — of the Hallmark Hall of Fame production of Maxwell Anderson's "Barefoot In Athens", that was shown on NBC-TV on Nov. 11.

"After a few years in vaudeville I had read the classics, particularly Shakespeare, and perhaps I became ambitious. I told Bob that I wished to leave his act and concentrate on serious theater. He said to me:

" 'I'd like to give you some advice. You are free to leave my act but my counsel is for you to forget the classics. Find yourself another good comedian and stick with him'."

Quayle didn't follow Flanagan's advice, and the theater is richer because of it.

During the late 1930's Quayle did manage to distinguish himself in a few minor Shakespearean productions and in several minor movie roles.

For six years, during World War II, Quayle served as a cloak-and-dagger SOE agent (Special Operations Executive) for the British Army at Gibraltar and as an underground operator in Albania.

Following his discharge as a major, he returned to the theater and his real love — Shakespeare.

He became director of Stratford-On-Avon in 1947 and remained there until 1955. About 10 years ago he directed Katharine Cornell in her television debut in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." He directed Producer's Showcase production of "Caesar and Cleopatra" starring Cedric Hardwick and Judith Anderson, which was one of the first major color television productions.

Film Part

Quayle has appeared in more than 20 British and American films in the last decade, playing character parts ranging from a villain in a Tarzan picture to a German spy in his personal favorite — "Ice Cold in Alex."

His Broadway appearances include "The Country Wife," "Tamburlaine The Great" and "The Firstborn," which he also directed.

"It seems that usually I am type-cast as a character actor who is either typically solid, decent British Army officer or an old, fat, be-whiskered villain," he said.

Quayle's home is in London.

"We grow roses and our three children," he said.

He is married to the former Dorothy Hyson, a native of Chicago whose mother appeared in the Ziegfeld Follies.

Newton South Lions Split Two Non-League Hoop Tilts

By RAY KWASNICK

Newton South's basketball team split its first two non-league contests taking the Belmont affair, 66-55, while dropping a close one to Boston Latin, 61-58. The Lions face a powerful Newton High team at home as the two squads open the Suburban League season on Friday, December 23 at 1 p.m.

In the first game, South started slowly as Belmont grabbed a 16-10 lead by the end of the first quarter. The Lions roared back to tie the game at 27 all at the end of the half, however. Four personal fouls on the part of Captain Steve Cooper almost put him out of action by the time the opening two periods had come to a close.

Despite this hindrance, South jumped all over the visitors, as they ran up a final score of 66-55 on the hot hands of Rick Ginsburg with 21 points and Lee Casty with 19 points. Even in foul trouble Cooper managed to pull down 9 rebounds and contribute 10 points.

The high scorer for Belmont was Tony Forsythe who netted 27. A true indication of the roughness of the game lies in the fact that four Belmont men left the game on fouls along with two South cagers including Cooper and Gordon.

In the following game, cold hands plagued the South shooters. At one point in the first period the Lions quintet was down 14-2. In fact, the team could put in only 2 out of 15 shots in that quarter.

The Lions got back into the contest as their shooting picked up. Sparked by juniors Bob Levine and Lee Casty, South gained the lead, and by the time the buzzer sounded to end the third stanza, the scoreboard read: Newton South 50, Boston Latin 41.

The fourth but not final period was a duplicate of the first, as "Jack Frost" struck again. This time South could only hit one of 10 shots from the floor and got a measly 4 points in those eight long minutes. Still the Lions held the lead until right at the end when Latin's Vince Costello tied it with 4 quick points.

In the overtime, South was never to regain the lead. Two layups, one by Bob Whitley who was the high scorer with 20 points and one by Costello, wrapped up the game for Latin as the Lions couldn't get hot again.

The South attack was evenly balanced when it got going. Four men were in double figures. Casty and Levine were high with 15 while Cooper and senior Bob Whittlesey scored 11 each.

Although the Lions only divided their first two affairs, they are a definitely improved team compared to last year's squad. Streakiness in shooting will hurt, but the team's overall strength will pull it through to a good season.

Meanwhile, the school hockey team picked up a 2-0 win over Weston high school in Saturday's second round of Dual County League action at Loring Arena in Framingham.

Mark Sheehan and Ron Nelson provided the winning goals while goalie Dave Roberts turned in several creditable saves and came up with a shutout.

The Lions got on the scoreboard at 7:41 of the opening session when Sheehan slapped in the rebound of a shot by Nelson. The second Lion goal came at 3:29 of the second period. Nelson tipped in a rebound shot from five feet in front of the net. The assist went to Capt. Jack Dunnigan.

The Lions featured puck control throughout the game but Roberts made a good stop on a hard rush by Weston's Frank Fowe late in the last stanza and turned in several other saves.

Weston's net minder Dan Aquilino also showed great form in the goal. He turned back 26 shots, while Roberts had 14 saves.

MALCOLM "MICKEY" BEARD

Star Quarterback, A Newton Lad Ends Dartmouth Football Career

A Newton High School graduate who, while a senior there, won honorable mention as a Greater Boston All-Scholastic quarterback, has just completed a very successful varsity football career at Dartmouth College.

This past fall, Malcolm "Mickey" Beard, whose home is at 347 Central street, Auburndale, saw the Big Green, under his able direction, post an over-all 7-2 record for the season, meantime successfully defending the Ivy title.

Mickey's precise passing and poise under fire kept Indian hopes alive throughout the season, and were high-lighted in the come-from-behind victory over Cornell, which he engineered for the Green. Finding his ground works stoppered up effectively by the big Cornell line, Mickey took to the airways with a wide variety of flight patterns, which left Cornell defense men far behind.

In all, Beard completed 16 for 19, for 274 yards and three TD's, caught a pass from his halfback for 33 yards, setting up another Green score, and snuck over from the two for his own score, and booted a quick kick good for 56 yards in the 32-23 Dartmouth win.

His overall season statistics read like record books, and many of them broke long-standing Indian records. A good scrambling QB, Mickey picked up 226 yards on 70 keepers, and completed 75 out of 137 passes attempted for 1079 yards and 13 touchdowns. He personally snuck over with four TD's as well. He set records for career total offense, career passing yardage, season passing yardage, and season touchdown completions.

His career passing alone of 2665 overtook Bill King's total of 2569. Beard's 599 rushing yards gives him a career grand total offense of 3264. He missed Bill Geagle's career completions of 190 by ten. His 13 TD passes is a new record. Over three seasons he figured into 41 TD's, while his teammates compiled a 22-5-0 record. He passed for 24 and scored 17 himself.

Mickey is also a star varsity baseball player, leading the team with a .318 batting average last Spring at shortstop.

At Newton High, Beard was also a key man on his baseball and basketball squads.

At Dartmouth, he is majoring in economics, and is spending his senior year of undergraduate work in the Amos Tuck School of Graduate Business Administration.

Our Lady's, Sacred Heart Drop Suburban Games

Both Newton Catholic high schools lost Catholic Suburban League basketball games last week. Our Lady's high school dropped a 58 - 51 verdict to Xaverian high school of Westwood and Sacred Heart high school lost to St. Columkille's school of Brighton, 92-86, in double overtime.

Sacred Heart lost despite a 33-point effort from Ralph Farnham and a 32-point performance by junior Merrill Badger. Farnham forced the game into overtime with a shot frof the top of the key with two seconds remaining.

Joe Dillon swished all six of St. Columbkille's points in the first overtime while Farnham tallied four and Badger scored two for Sacred Heart.

The Maroon's shooting went cold in the second extra period as John Egan tallied his team's last two points. Co-Capt Russ Kelley sank four and Dillon and Burke netted two apiece to provide the win. John Douglas swished 25 and Kelley tallied 23 for the winners.

Our Lady's got off to a slow start in the first period of its game and never recovered. The quintet managed only 19 points in the first frame.

Foul line accuracy aided the visitors to victory. The winners tossed in 22 of 35 foul attempts while Our Lady's hit on 11 of 25 free throws.

Capt. Pat Connaughton scored 17 points to pace Our Lady's. Jay Feeley and Tim Sullivan registered 10 points apiece.

Our Lady's is now 1-1 in league play. Sacred Heart is 0-2 in the league and 1-2 overall.

Giant's Rookie Don Mason Hopes To Cement 2nd Base

Hard work and determination made it possible for a Newton youth to make the big jump from the Newton Little League to the San Francisco Giants of the National League.

The youth is Don Mason, a rookie with the Giant's last summer, who recently returned from a two-month stretch at the Cactus Instructional League in Arizona.

Drafted from the Washington Senators during the winter baseball meetings last year, Mason stuck with the Giants throughout the 1966 National League season because of a rule stipulating that first-year players must be kept on the major league roster or face the open draft.

Although mainly confined to the bench, Mason learned how to play hitters and had a chance to judge the pitchers and their services.

"I've been fortunate to have good coaches that have always stressed fundamentals," Mason said. "But you have to keep practicing and try to improve yourself. I'd like to have a nickel for every ground ball I fielded this year. It was hard work."

Mason will report to the Giants' Casa Grande, Ariz., training camp around March 1 with an eye on the second base job. Some experts give the 5-10, 155-pound youth a chance for the job, but Hal Lnaier has the edge. Mason, a 1962 graduate of Newton High School, could snare the position with a hot spring training.

If he is not kept by the Giants, he will report to the Phoenix Triple A affiliate in the Pacific Coast League.

During the past season, Mason got six hits and scored eight runs for the Giants. However, his biggest thrill was when he hit his first major league homerun.

He came up in the ninth inning of a Giants-Reds game in Cincinnati after being put in in the eighth. The Giants were trailing, 12-0. That didn't dishearten Mason. He hit a Sammy Ellis fast ball into the stands.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Mason, of 63 Aspen Ave., Auburndale, Mason was an outstanding hockey goalie and shortstop for Newton High School.

Stephen T. Sonis, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Richard Sonis, 19 Evelyn Rd., Waban, a Norwich University senior, has been named for inclusion in the 1967 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." He was selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership and participation in extra-curricular activities at the nation's oldest private military college. A cadet captain, he is a Dean's List student, and a 1963 graduate of Newton High School.

Even a clumsy new father can change baby safely by placing the infant on a special plastic mat made with inflatable bumper sides. Deflate the bumpers and the mat too can be washed.

Clues Lacking To Rampage Pair

Clues to the identity of two men who went on a rampage in Newton last Saturday night were still being sought this week by police who weren't having much luck.

The pair escaped in a hail of bullets after a stolen taxi they were driving crashed into a parked car on Webster st. Prior to stealing the car, the men had assaulted two residents and looted a parked car.

One of the assaulted victims said he was walking his dog on Furbush ave., West Newton, when two men attacked him with a screwdriver and a knife. He was able to wrest away the screwdriver before the pair ran off.

While searching the area, Patrolmen Albert Flanagan and Frank Gorgone found the looted car. The owner said the screwdriver was taken from the car.

Minutes later, two men assaulted a Webster st., West Newton, man as he was entering his home. He was pushed through a glass stormdoor before his attackers left.

Both assault victims were uninjured but their clothing was ripped.

Shortly before midnight, police fired on two men as they fled from the stolen cab.

Police had seen the cab coming out of Crescent st. into Webster st. in an erratic way and moved to halt it. The driver backed the cab, struck a parked car and both men ran from the scene. One of them jumped a fence and ran across the Toll Road extension.

One of the men was wearing a western-style jacket and Army boots, and the other had a black ski jacket.

Christmas -

time between bed-time and Christmas dawn. Not even that poor Rudolph of the Red Nose got into the print.

We looked around to see if anyone was watching our anguish as we moved from page to page. On page three there was a Christmas tree, but it was made out of some kind of stuff which once was glass. We didn't see any stockings hung with care by the fireplace. In fact there was no fireplace. The room looked as if it were temperature-controlled by something called radiant heat.

Those bricks on the roof, which Santa gripped in the cover picture, must have been invented by the people who supply the transatlantic liners with phony smoke stacks.

It was a beautiful book, but it made us a little sad.

Christmas has changed, we told ourselves ,as we moved out into the street.

The sidewalks were crowded. Everyone's arms were wrapped around king-sized bundles. But in the crush everyone was smiling. And out of nowhere, by some trick of modern electronics, bells were chiming softly as faint background music to the crystal clear words of "Silent Night."

On the sidewalk, a huckster was selling little Santa Claus figures dressed in astronaut suits. One he was using for demonstration purposes was circling his head at the end of a string that was hardly visible. He had one eye on the watch for any untimely arrival of a minion of the law. He was using the other to count change.

"It won't work when I get home," a lady purchaser was telling another shopper, "but it wouldn't be Christmas if I didn't get stuck at least once by one of these street pedlars."

We bought one, too.

Then we went back to the book counter and bought that sacrilegious modern book about a modern Santa Claus making a modern visit to a modern home.

We re-assured ourself that at least two of those outlandish objects—the book and the flying Santa—would not land in some innocent youngster's hands.

The flying Santa DID WORK when we got home, and after slower and more careful study of the book we decided we knew a little girl who would get a great kick out of a 1966 Santa landing on the roof in his reindeer-less space contraption.

It was the little things about Christmas which earned a bad name for old Jake Marley and his former partner and heir, Ebenezer Scrooge. They loved no one and were by none beloved.

It's over a hundred years since Charles Dickens recorded the transformation of Brother Scrooge from a miserable old skinflint into a smiling, benevolent believer that Christmas is the greatest day of the year.

Yet, if Dickens accurately measured the reactions of Marley and Scrooge — and Charles himself was a pretty good newspaper editor for a period—they must have long shared one idea.

That's the conviction that Christmas had changed since that day in Bethlehem when He was born.

They were wrong. We were wrong, too, when we first picked up that book with the Space-Flying Santa on the cover.

Christmas hasn't really changed.

Maybe, to get the smell of balsam you have to spray that artificial tree with a special kind of stuff. It's likely, too, you'd get a quick visit from the boys at the nearest fire station if you put a real old-fashioned lighted candle in the window of your home.

In a span of nearly 2,000 years a lot of changes have come on this old planet. Before some of us pass on they may be booking cut-rate Christmas trips to Mars or the Moon.

Hopefully, the peace He sought for all men may arrive one day to bless every nation and every people.

The age-old traditions may have been changed a bit by man and time, but basically they remain the same.

Whether you go to midnight services or wait until the excitement in the youngsters' eyes has abated a bit as Christmas Day moves toward noon—you will see joy in the faces of all about you.

We don't suppose many store hereabouts bother about any heavy orders to their wholesalers for frankincense and myrhh these days. Folks who've been to Bethlehem tell us they never saw any Maine pine trees growing in that part of the world. They saw no reindeer on the loose, either.

Nicholas, the patron Saint of the children at this season of the year, who is believed to have started this Santa Claus business, didn't come along until the Fourth Century, A. D.

The only place you'll find real harness with bells on them nowadays is probably some out-of-the way antique shop.

But in our community of homes and kids and plain every-day life Christmas hasn't changed. It never will change any more than will the words and the strains of the age-old hymns of the Yuletide.

And the inward feeling of rejoicing will be the same as worshippers kneel in prayer in churches of their choice or file to the altar rail to receive the Sacrament of Holy Communion on the Birthday of the Babe Who was born in Bethlehem.

The ancient carols which never grow old become newer and more appealing as Christmas nears.

Shops remain crowded as the big day approaches. Students attending colleges and universities far and near are at home, on their way home or preparing to come home for the holidays.

Their trips were preceded by letters. "I'm coming home, Ma, get the biggest turkey you can find."

Letter-carriers and postal clerks are near the end of their yearly back-breaking job of seeing that all the Christmas greeting cards and the gift packages are delivered to their destinations by the Eve of the Yuletide.

All the indications are that the task they are now completing is the biggest and most monumental in history.

For many families there'll be a vacant place at the Christmas dinner table — a place which belongs to Bill or Joe or Tom who'll be spending Christmas in a strange land called Vietnam or at one of our far-flung military installations across the world.

Yet, their thoughts will be at home with mom and dad and the rest of the family. They'll be studying the time difference tables. They'll be telling themselves, "Back home I bet ma's busy in the kitchen right now. I wonder if Jimmy got the tractor he wanted!"

Yes, they'll be thousands of miles away, but their names will be repeated again and again through the whole holiday season.

On Christmas Day, 1966, while an uneasy truce brings a bit of respite to our fighting forces in Vietnam, men and women all over the world will join in hailing His Birth in an old and drafty stable behind an inn in the little town of Bethlehem.

For the Day itself our churches of all denominations will be crowded, and the music from the choir loft will be the finest ever as far as the worshippers are concerned.

Even in this space age Christmas, 1966, will be celebrated with all the revered traditions and customs which have come down through the sweep of the years, with song and prayer, with joyous gift-giving, with festive feasts and family reunions. No, Christmas hasn't really changed.

And little boys and girls around here won't be caring too much how Santa got to their house—just as long as he makes it.

Come as you are, Santa—whether you're wearing astronauts' cover-alls or the working clothes of your toy shop up there near the North Pole. Come by space ship, jet plane, sleigh or whatever.

We'll all be waiting for you

Meanwhile, a last-minute shopping rush is underway, especially by the men folk, to buy their Yuletide gifts which will bring exclamations on Christmas morning.

There is the happy bustle of plans and preparations for the greatest day of the year.

Stores, shops and markets of the community are well stocked to handle the closing surge of shoppers in the last days before Christmas.

An unusually wide variety of merchandise is available to those who still have gifts to buy. All kinds of delicacies await the choice of the discerning housewife.

Underlying the glad gaiety of the Christmas preparations, behind the colored lights, the brilliant wreaths and the glittering tinsel is the deep religious theme of all that Christmas means in the Christian world.

As the strains of the hallowed hymns of the Yuletide echo on Christmas night, those who have heard them hundreds of times will experience the thrill that never fades.

To all a Merry, Joyous and Gladsome Christmas.

Dumping -

Heavy demolition materials trucked to the Rumford avenue dump are believed to have been primarily responsible for the fires which have smouldered underground for days.

Under the new rules, all demolition material from wrecked buildings must be trucked outside of Newton to be dumped.

Officials also suspect that some demolition materials from outside of Newton may have been hauled into the city and deposited at the Rumford avenue dump, further complicating the already troublesome problem.

Firefighters thought they had extinguished the dump fire last Sunday night only to have it flare up again when some earth was overturned.

When a smouldering fire breaks out underground at the dump, the burning material must be dug up by big derricks so the blaze can be extinguished.

Such fires frequently spread out underground, making it difficult for the firefighters to control them.

All future demolition permits granted by the city building department will contain a provision that the materials from the structures torn down cannot be dumped within Newton's city limits.

The city itself is setting an example. The contract for the razing of the five buildings in Newton Corner, which are to be demolished to make way for the construction of the new Bigelow Junior High School, contains a provision that the materials from the building must be taken outside of Newton to be dumped.

Because the dump area is filling up so rapidly, Mayor Basbas has instructed the Street Commission not to issue any new dumping permits for next month.

Meanwhile, members of the Board of Aldermen have requested that the existing dumping permits be extended to Jan. 31 to give them time to work out a new and higher schedule of dumping fees.

It is expected that the increased fees will be based on weight and that they may discourage some of the present dumping.

A proposal by Alderman William P. Matthews for the establishment of a new scale of fees for the use of the municipal incinerator was referred to the Aldermanic Claims and Rules Committee Monday Night for action "as expeditiously as possible."

A plan submitted by Matthews calls for a $50 yearly permit for commercial vehicles using the incinerator. The charge for temporary permits for a period of not more than six consecutive days would be $10. The fee for private permits would be $3.

Commercial vehicles also would be charged $7.50 for each visit to the incinerator, with an additional assessment of 40 cents for each 100 pounds of refuse received. Persons with non-commercial permits would be charged at the same rate of 40 cents for each 100 pounds of rubbish.

Employees At Sandy's Share Holiday Bonus

"Sandy's and its parent corporation, King's Department Stores, have distributed $367,000 in Christmas gifts, and local Sandy's employees shared in this distribution," Albert Feldman, manager of the West Roxbury store said today.

Feldman said, "The success of our store in West Roxbury is attributable to our employees." "I should like to take this opportunity to thank them for their efforts, loyalty and cooperation."

Sandy's numbers among its employees many who have been with the store since its opening.

The bonus at Christmastime is only one facet of the parent King's organization's personnel plan. Through this year. every employee in its 54 stores from coast to coast has received a birthday cake on the appropriate date. Starting in 1967, the firm plans to replace the cake with a birthday gift certificate.

Other benefits enjoyed by all members of the King's organization include discounts on all purchases, an extremely fine hospitalization plan and weekly sickness indemnity.

Raises -

in the maximum pay for patrolmen finally was agreed upon. It was also agreed that patrolmen will reach their maximum salary in three years instead of five years as at present.

While the raise negotiations were conducted between the Mayor and representatives of the police force, members of the fire department will receive comparable raises to those granted the police.

The agreement between the Mayor and the police, in effect, is subject to ratification by the Board of Aldermen which must appropriate the money to cover the raises before they can become effective.

Mayor Basbas, in commenting on the compromise agreement, declared that many neighboring communities have raised the pay of their police, some of them to higher levels than he now proposes for Newton police.

The Mayor also referred to the $8100 a year paid to MDC patrolmen and to members of the Capitol Police and observed that Cambridge has raised the maximum pay for its patrolmen to more than $8000 a year.

Under the agreement reached between the Mayor and the police spokesmen, the annual starting pay for patrolmen in Newton will be increased from $6000 to $6600.

Step rates for officers in the police and fire departments holding ranks higher than patrolmen and firefighters will be eliminated under the new plan.

Members of the two departments will achieve the maximum pay of their new positions immediately upon their promotion.

This was done after it was discovered that a sergeant in the police department took a cut in pay when he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant because the maximum pay for sergeants was higher than the starting salary for lieutenants.

Only the new patrolmen and firefighters will be on a step-rate plan, and they will reach their maximum in three years.

The pay for sergeants in the police department and lieutenants in the fire department will be raised from $7600 to $8700.

Lieutenants in the police department and captains in the fire department will go from $8325 to $9700.

Captains in the police department and assistants chiefs in the fire department will be hiked from $9700 to $10,800.

The chiefs of the police and fire departments will be raised from $12,700 to $13,700.

Police representatives had sought an additional $300 in pay above grade and a clothing allowance for plain clothes detectives.

Basbas agreed to an extra $100 a year for the detectives to cover both requests. The Mayor denied a request for an additional $300 above grade for police clerks.

Also turned down by the Mayor were proposals that the police be paid time and a half for overtime, that the city assume the entire costs of their Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage and that they get four-week vacations after 10 or 15 years of service. They now get four weeks of vacation after 20 years of service.

Session

be spread over the entire week, it was argued.

Defenders of the present split session, with free Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, maintain that a change of surroundings and the exercise in walking home are good for the children. They contend that during bad weather children would be unable to go outside for recreation and work is not all fit into gyms, so that recess after lunch would have to be conducted in the classrooms.

Some parents say they enjoy seeing and talking to their children at noon and would like to keep on doing so.

This group of parents tends to sympathize with the teachers' position that the expense involved in setting up a lunch program is one that could very well be avoided

The summary of the teachers' attitudes also declares that the teachers need free lunch periods to prepare afternoon materials and particularly to check the children's morning work to find errors to be examined in afternoon review.

The teachers feel that lunch period is the best time to confer with other faculty members and with some parents unable to see them at other times.

Teachers stress the difficulty of finding trained personnel who could adequately supervise classes and point out the difficulties in having rotating supervisors arrive every day on time. They also question the effectiveness of meetings they would be obliged to hold after 3 p.m. or of conferences with parents after a long day.

The progress report contains an outline of work done by subcommittees of the study group on various aspects of the school schedule.

The most important change brought about by the adoption of the single session would be that children would eat their lunch in school.

The provisional conclusion of the sub-committee studying school lunches was that the present facilities of Newton elementary schools permit only a bag lunch in the class rooms.

The report suggested that some provision would have to be made for refrigeration of milk and lunches. It also concluded that teachers should not be employed in lunchroom supervision and accordingly that adult supervisors would have to be obtained for each classroom for the lunch and recreation period.

Rough estimates indicate that such a program would cost approximately $300,000. a year. Most of this sum would be spent on supervisors.

Another repercussion of a change in school schedules would be the interruption of the work that community agencies such as the YMCA, girl scouts, the recreation department and church and temple groups carry on with elementary school children. The agencies did not show strong preferences except for a 2 p.m. release instead of a 2:15 release and rejection of the replacement of free Tuesday and Thursday afternoons by a free Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. Knowles indicated that his commission wished to avoid public debate on solutions for the school schedule at present. "Our committee feels strongly that the appropriate time for public discussion is after our facts have been gathered and our findings made to the School Committee."

Chairman Knowles also emphasized that his group was not making a recommendation at present and that in any case it was a fact-finding rather than a decision-making or arbitrating body.

The next meeting of the elementary school schedule study group will be held Jan. 11. The implications of the school schedule for educational philosophy and long-range policy will be discussed, as will ways of evaluating data so as to make a recommendation to the School Committee. Ways of testing alternative solutions will also be examined.

The members of the elementary school schedule study group include Dr. Malcolm S. Knowles, chairman, School Committeewoman Norma W. Mintz, Principals Mrs. Mary B. Everett of the Cabot School and Miss Helen R. Punch of the Spaulding School.

Miss Joan C. Keenan, a teacher at the Memorial School, Bernard I. Kaplan of the PTA Council, Mrs. Thomas A. Morris of the PTA Council, Mrs. Martin J. Saklad, Mrs. Joseph F. Antonellis, Mrs. Harvey Seletsky, Richard S. Fallows, Mrs. William I. Heine, Dr. Kathleen M. Mogul.

Charles E. Feeley of the Newton police department traffic division, Mrs. William J. Lanciloti, Newton Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney, Newton Director of Public Health Dr. Hale H. Cook, Dr. Charles Hersch, Mrs. William Haney of the PTA Council.

Stanley Cohen of Temple Emanuel, a religious school representative; Rev. John Lilly of the Newtonville Methodist Church, a religious school representative; Alex R. Miller of the Newton Y M C A; Miss Laura Jean Rood, executive director of the Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council; Director of the All-Newton Music School Mrs. Otto J. Gombosi; Director of the Newton Mental Health Center Dr. William E. Stone; President of the League of Women Voters Mrs. Proctor Houghton.

Assistant superintendent of schools for personnel Dr. James Laurits; assistant superintendent for public personnel Dr. Edward Landy; assistant superintendent for instruction Dr. J. Bernard Everett; director of business services John E. Gilleland; Superintendent of Schools Charles E. Brown; Assistant to the Superintendent of Schools Stanley Russell; and Miss Mary Ann Sullivan, a teacher at the Franklin School.

The following is the summary made by the elementary school schedule study group of the arguments in favor of a single session:

This statement is a composite of the opinions of Newton parents who feel that a Single Session is the only time schedule that will truly benefit their child. The parent can best see the child in his totality — in his relationship to his school, his home, his siblings, his peers and his community; therefore, the parent can best judge the wholesome effect of the proper time schedule on his child.

Under the present schedule the child's school day is interrupted by 1½ hours for lunch. This amount of time is too short for those who live a great distance. The tense child hurries home to gulp a quick lunch constantly aware of possible tardiness. The child that lives close to school gets overstimulated in a frenzied play activity because of the excess time away from the educational situation. This lengthy interruption makes it unnecessarily difficult for him to readjust to the classroom atmosphere. However, a uniform day (5 hours as prescribed by the Board of Education) allows the child to remain in his constant educational environment with benefit of an informal school lunch and recess. It also teaches the child to cope with the day rather than use mother as an emotional crutch. This 1½ hours of wasted time in the middle of the day could be used to much better advantage at the end of the day.

A uniform weekly schedule would be a great improvement over the present one where the long days (about 8 hours) leave the child with no free play time. The child in the upper elementary grades arrives home mentally exhausted only to eat dinner and tackle his homework. The younger child is physically exhausted on the long days, and parents have noticed that he lacks motivation on the short "4-hours" days. No child can possibly work up to his potential under the present schedule. With a Single Session, a better distribution of time is available so that all appointments and cultural pursuits need not be crammed into two afternoons, and playtime is available every day.

A most important consideration is safety. During bad weather, excess school traffic combined with poor visibility make the situation completely undesirable. During snowy weather many of the sidewalks are left unplowed; the children out of necessity must walk in the slippery streets to reach the main thoroughfare only to sit through afternoon classes in damp clothes — a health hazard. Even in nice weather, parents question the advisability of having the child walk the four trips especially in busy business areas. Parents contend there is a far greater potential danger to the child than ever before as proven by increased car insurance — irresponsible motorists invalidate the safety rules the child has learned. A Single Session cuts this risk in half.

The child who eats lunch in school can best relate to his peers; to learn from them and share with them while eating. Here he learns the beginning of self-sufficiency and is prepared for a more formal lunch program in Junior High. His exposure to different eating habits without maternal influence teaches him to make his own value judgments. This friendly atmosphere is far more beneficial to the working mother's child who might otherwise be left unsupervised or to the child whose 'parental" supervision is left to domestics. Recess after lunch provides his physical activity in a far more wholesome manner than hurrying along busy streets at noon.

Newton parents believe it is time for a change in Newton's 58-year old elementary school hours. They believe a Single Session will channel the child's productive energy in the proper direction so that he may best meet the challenge of our complex society.

The following is the summary made by the elementary school schedule study group of the arguments in favor of a split session:

We feel strongly that a lunch program that requires children to bring a lunch and eat in their classroom creates many serious problems.

1. Children should not have to eat in the same place where they have been working all morning. A change of locale is necessary, and a break before lunch is desirable as is the exercise they get during their walk home.

2. We object to the regimentation necessary to carry on such a lunch and recess period. During bad weather children could not go to gyms because of the numbers involved. Recess would have to be conducted in the classroom which at best is an impossible situation.

3. We want to state strongly that we enjoy seeing our children at noon and having the chance to talk with them. We think they enjoy and benefit from seeing us.

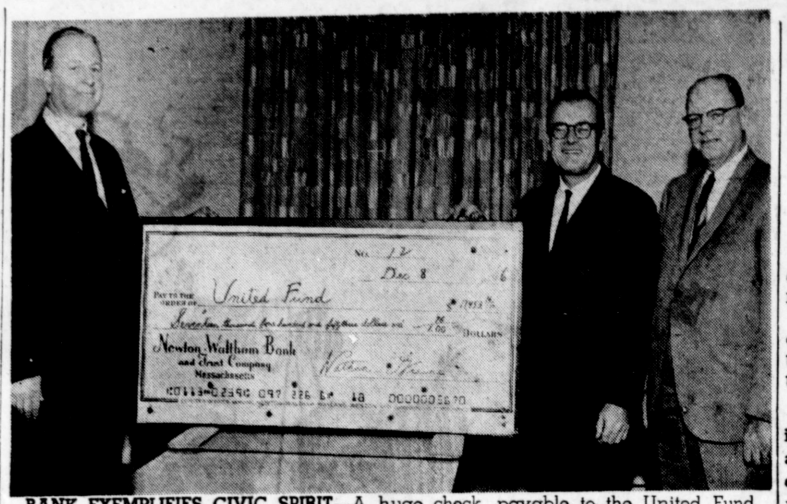

We recognize the problem in finding qualified supervisors for this lunch period. We would rather have the opportunity to deal with any of the accumulated tensions of the morning of such young children ourselves .

We feel the cost of any such lunch program adds only another reason for not embarking upon such a single session. Anyone familiar with our school system is aware of the many other financial priorities in this city. We cannot justify the expenditure of approximately $300,000 for a lunch program when we need the real essentials of an educational system such as more teachers and personnel, higher salaries and new buildings. Every year Newton citizens are faced with the ever-growing conflict between the growing tax rate and increasing educational needs of our school department. We have an obligation to cut expenses where possible. Well-paid teachers are essential to a good school system. A lunch program is not.

We feel that our teachers are entitled to and benefit from a lunch period such as they now have, and as a result our children will return to refreshed teachers who have had the opportunity to prepare for the afternoon. We are impressed that the teachers and principals overwhelmingly favor our present split session and we feel we should be guided by their experience in this matter.

Many working mothers scorn the suggestion that the school system now discriminates against them. They say they have always been able to arrange for their children's lunches and feel we should be guided by what educators believe is best for the children and teachers.

We recognize that there are some parents who want a lunch program. If this is a serious problem, perhaps there should be some community planning toward the establishment of a facility outside the school system.

Some 474 Correspondents Covering War In Viet Nam

Exclusive Report from Vietnam

By JOHN VALUE

DA NANG—They are journalism's problem children, nature's playthings—the war correspondents. A floating opera. The Lost Circus.

The last time I looked, there were 474 correspondents attending this puzzlement of a war: seventy of them were Vietnamese and 404 were from other countries. There were 180 Americans.

They come in all complexions of temperment and in all manners of dress. The television network men who wear tailored correspondent suits and custom hair-do's; the combat reporters and photographers with beards and flopping, be-ribboned hats and worn and muddy boots.

The more conservative field men in service fatigues, who might be taken for soldiers or Marines except that none of their clothing seems to fit. The Saigon commandos, those political reporters who rarely leave the capital city and whose garb might be called Tropical Ivy League. Oh, my! There are some dudes.

And mostly good fellows. The best, in fact. Meet some:

—Jerry Forkin of Stars and Stripes, a reedy playwright from Galway who joined the Army in order to be able to cover Vietnam. One night at Marble Mountain a fire fight broke out. The sights of three rifles suddenly trained on a wierd form skittering down the hamlet's muddy street. It was Forkin, yelling in Gaelic, his pants in one hand, his shillelagh waving in the other.

—Bill Langly, a 6'4" giant from the Portland, Me. Press-Herald, returned from a night patrol with his hand painfully nettled by a cactus. He spent the rest of the night fretting, afraid he wouldn't be able to type the next day.

—Tim Page, a somewhat supercilious British freelance, walked into the Press Center after four bloody days with the Korean Tiger Division. "Yes," he said, "we counted 87 VC dead. I imagine there were 200. The Koreans had 10 killed, 16 hurt. Some of the VC had no visible wounds. Just broken necks. Karate, don't you know." He looked up at the television and then at the bartender. "Oh, God. Not Ed Sullivan. Lam, bring me a gin and tonic, would you? And turn that damned thing off."

—Jim Lucas, who has won the Pulitzer and whose first war to cover was World War II. He has been here for three years and could go home whenever he wanted. But he stays on. He is not a war lover.

—Charles Durden, a slight young Georgia boy with none of the patience in the world and little of the fear. Held up for clearance for a mission by a rather vain reporter he poked him in the chest, saying: "Listen, jerk. I have 80 papers in 10 states and 20 million readers. I have one minute, bum. Get out of my way." He got out of the way, astonished and Durden, the pocket pulverizer, walked toward his jeep with a grin. "Well," he told a friend, "it sounded good."

—Dave Reed, a roving editor from the Readers Digest, who spent five days with a sick correspondent—five important days for Reed—taking him hundreds of miles to get him on a plane.

—And the anonymous correspondent who, during a fire fight, rushed across an exposed bridge to pick up a wounded little girl. He probably saved her life. He wouldn't write about it and made anyone who knows about it promise the same thing.

Big names stay here, and big names come and go. Max Frankel of the New York Times is friendly and puts up at the Press Center. Stuart Alsop is remote and dwells in generals' halls.

Like the military, the correspondents work seven days a week and experience profound fear and discomfort. But they know that, after this one final operation is finished, they can return to clean sheets and they don't have to go back unless they want to. And they have the thing most important to them: freedom of choice and movement.

The military likes the correspondents for the most part —the troopers in the field do. It is an every day question: "Why the hell are you here when you don't have to be?"

It is a good question they ask day after day. I have met no one among this odd company of men — these correspondents — who has come here because he was ordered to come.

LOUIS J. GEIGER

Electronics Lab Names Former G.E. Engineer

Henry W. Harding, president of Laboratory for Electronics, Inc., Waltham, announces the election of Louis J. Geiger of Wellesley Hills as the corporation's Vice President of Operations.

In this new position, Mrs. Geiger, a former General Electric Company executive, will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of the company, and will assist each division president in the areas of marketing, organization and program supervision.

He joined LFE in April of this year as assistant to the president, after serving the General Electric Company for more than 26 years. For the past months he has assisted Mr. Harding in areas of technical evaluation, management development, corporate planning and in the expansion of LFE's international marketig and manufacturing interests in Belgium and Italy.

Mr. Geiger joined General Electric as a test engineer in 1940. During World War II he served as Radar and Radio Countermeasures Officer on board the U.S.S. Texas. Following his release from the Navy in 1946, he returned to GE where he held successive positions in various engineering and sales capacities, largely in the industrial process control field. In 1961 he was named manager of marketing for General Electric's Process Section in Phoenix, Arizona, which produces digital computers used in the control of industrial processes, particularly in the electric utility, metals, chemical, petroleum, cement and paper industries.

A native of Albany, N.Y., he has a Bachelor's Degree in Electrical Engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Nashoba Valley Ski Area Opens For 1967 Season

Nashoba Valley Ski area has reopened for the 1967 season with many new improvements and innovations added for the convenience of local skiers. The popular ski area, one of the finest in Eastern Massachusetts, is located in Westford, between Rtes. 2A and 110 on Power road and less than 40 minutes away by automobile.

Nashoba Valley boasts one of the longest and steepest slopes in addition to good intermediate and beginner runs. The five slopes include three novice, one intermediate and one expert and six rope tows. A double tow has been added since last season. A snack bar is available and a snow maker stands by for use whenever necessary. The slopes challenge the expert and compliment the beginner.

Twenty-two experienced instructors teaching the American Technique are available and a special area is set aside for instruction. It is a certified member school of the Professional Ski Instructors of America. Any phase of skiing is taught, from novice to expert, and private lessons are offered in addition to the regular group lessons. Ski equipment may be rented or purchased at the Ski Rental Shop which is under the direction of Peter and Nancy Whitcomb.

Alan Fletcher is owner of the popular ski area with Mr. Whitcomb as manager. At present the area is open from Wednesday through Sunday and on Wednesday and Friday nights. The area telephone is 692-7025.

Ball Bearings Will Support Office Building

CHICAGO (UPI) — An office bulding that rests on 12 "ball bearings" is due to become part of the suburban Chicago scene next spring.

The cast steel bearings — each about the size of a basketball — can roll slightly in their sockets whenever there is any bending or horizontal expansion, due to thermal conditions or load changes in the main cross beams they support.

This unusual structural feature is integral to The Sperry and Hutchinson Company's (S&H Green Stamps) midwest regional headquarters now under construction in Hillside.

The bearings sit atop 12 tapered columns which support the four-story S&H building 15 feet above ground level. Each is installed in a specially designed casting resembling a truncated pyramid.

The top portion of each steel ball, which makes contact with a cross beam, is flattened to permit it to slide back and forth. When necessary, the bottom rounded portion of the steel ball can rotate ever so slightly in the concave casting, or "knuckle," on top of the support column.

Each of the cast steel bearings measures 11½ inches in diameter, weighs 260 pounds and can support a load of 1.2 million pounds or 42,000 pounds per square inch.

Because the steel balls must fit their knuckles with precision, each is custom fitted to its base and is not interchangeable with the others. The bottom bearing assembly, fitting over the supporting column, is held in place only by the downward force of the structure.

The ball-bearing suspension system has been used in bridge construction. It was first introduced in building construction in the Repertoire Theater in the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in New York.

Rough textured concrete columns, 81 feet high, will be supported by the steel balls. Sixty-six per cent of the building's exterior is glass.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television's Soupy Sales, who went movie with "Birds Do It" almost a year ago, is now headed toward Broadway as the star of " Come Live with Me." Oddly enough, this play was tried out on the stock circuit last summer with another video personality, Jack Carter, as the leading man.

CBS is canceling Garry Moore's Sunday night variety hour as of Jan. 8. It is another victim of the powerful pull of NBC's 9 p.m. "Bonanza" and ABC's "sunday Night Movie." Early in Feb., CBS will fill the 9-10 spot with a one-hour variety series headed by the Smothers Brothers, whose half-hour situation comedy skein barely lasted through the 1965-66 season on this network.

A. NEWELL GARDEN

PR Man Gives Lecture On Image Building

The manager of media services in Raytheon's public relations office, A. Newell Garden of 20 Hunter St., West Newton, taught the ninth Marketing Sequence course, sponsored by the Advertising Club of Boston.

He served in the U.S. Coast Guard for 11 years before entering industry. From 1950-53 he was a public information officer in New York City.

Garden received his naval engineering degree from the U.S. Coast Guard Academy in 1946 and continued his education in public relations at Boston University. He is a member of the Public Relations Society of America, the Publicity Club of Boston and the U.S. Coast Guard. Commandant's Advisory Panel on Public Information.

Joseph A. Guzzi, son of Joseph A. Guzzi Sr., 60 Stratford Rd., West Newton, a senior majoring in mechanical engineering at Lowell Technological Institute, was recommended for inclusion in this year's Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. A Commonwealth Scholar, he has also earned a scholarship under auspices of the American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers. He is repeating the honor of selection for "Who's Who," having been named last year.

Priest Without Church Must Moonlight

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—The Rev. William F. Nerin is a Catholic priest without a church.

His parish has no boundary lines. He receives a small payment from the diocese, but has to supplement his income with a part-time job.

His churchless parish, called the Community of John XXIII, was organized as an experiment with the approval of Bishop Victor J. Reed.

It was formed at the suggestion of northwest Oklahoma City residents who wanted a substitute for what they called the large size and anonymity of existing parishes.

The new parish will own no property. Father Nerin conducts business from a rented office.

A priest without a church or parish is not unusual. Clergymen of many faiths are frequently assigned to poor neighborhoods where church facilities are non-existent or meager.

Coal Burner In A Museum

YORK, Pa. (UPI) — A symbol of American transportation, the only replica of the nation's first coal-burning locomotive, has come back to the birthplace of the original 135 years ago.

The museum version of Phineas Davis' prize-winning locomotive, popularly known as "The York," now occupies the spotlight in the Historical Society of York County transportation display here. It is on loan from the Chicago Museum of Science and industry.

Records show Davis won a $4,000 design competition by building the pacesetting engine that could speed at 20 to 30 miles an hour, said G. V. Patrick, York Corporation executive, whose citizens' group arranged for "The York" to be displayed here during the next year.

France Has 2 Words For Debt To Us — "Forget It"

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International

PARIS (UPI) — There's something that booming Gaullist France, owner of the world's second largest gold stockpile, prefers to forget these days.

That is France's World War I debt to the United States, which by this summer had reached the sizeable total of $6.6 billion in unpaid principal and interest.

The United States has done nothing about collecting it for the past 25 years, although the U.S. Treasury each year rather nostalgically publishes the latest cumulative total.

But French officials consider it a dead issue — as dead as the U.S. War of Independence debt to France.

"Why dig up the past?" they ask.

They also point out that Great Britain's unpaid World War I debt to the United States is substantially higher — something in the neighborhood of $10 billion.

Back in 1929, when the United States first set about collecting her World War I debts, France's total indebtedness was set at a little less than $4.1 billion.

By June, 1931, France had repaid $226 million of principal and $260 million interest.

Then came the world economic crisis and the Hoover moratorium of one year on repayment of all debts to the United States, including German war reparations payments.

When the moratorium ran out, the French Chamber of Deputies voted to continue refusing to pay. France should not have to do so, the Chamber argued, because Germany had ceased paying reparation.

And that was the end of debt repayment. In fact, Finland was the only country that did not balk on its debts repayment and thus won a permanent place of esteem with the United States.

Until 1940 or 1941 the United States each year sent a debt reminder to the embassies in Washington of France and the other debtors. But with World War II even this practice was stopped.

Ask French officials how they can reconcile France's present booming prosperity with failure to pay back her debts and they look surprised and pained.

They argue that since Germany long ago ceased paying reparations for World War I, there is no reason why France, Britain or any of the other former allies should continue repaying their debts for what was a common effort.

In any event, they say this is something long relegated to the limbo of the past and why, they ask, should it be resurrected now?

The fact that Gaullist France's monetary policy is damaging to the dollar is no reason for doing so, French officials assert.

French officials also do some chest-thumping about the fact that France not only is paying her World War II debts to the United States, but also has made a number of payments ahead of schedule in the past three years.

These debts, including lend-lease and Marshall Plan aid after the war totalled about $1.7 billion when they were totted up 10 years or so ago.

Since 1960, when France's prosperity started after years of rocky finances, this country has repaid regularly both principal and interest.

The total now outstanding is only about $369 million and all of this, together with any interest, is scheduled to be paid off by 1980 at latest. The interest rates on all these debts are low — only two to three per cent per annum.

U.S. Spending Huge Sums On Scientific Research

By ALFRED KRUSENSTIERN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States government today spends more money on scientific research and development (R & D) than most other major countries of the world spend in their entire national budgets.

In the fiscal year 1964-65 the government poured $16.5 billion into research and development of a total $27 billion that went into R & D in this country, including industry's share.

So accepted has this form of government activity and expenditure become in recent times it is surprising to think that as recently as 10 years ago only about $3 billion annually was being spent by the government in this area. And before that much less.

Washington's plunge into R & D began in World War II, when the country needed weapons and other equipment in a hurry, and in the late 1950s it burgeoned with a vengeance.

The result is that today the U.S. Government spends around 60 per cent of the billions lavished on research and development in the nation.

The first government agency to begin spending in a big way on science was the Department of Defense.

In the late 1950s, huge sums were required to develop missiles, new planes, nuclear submarines and intricate electronic gear. In the 10 years between 1954 and 1964, its R&D expenditures quadrupled from $2 billion to almost $8 billion a year.

Since 1964, military R&D spending has tapered off, an indication that the last rearmament phase is completed and that no radically new weapons are about to be introduced, at least for the next few years.

But while Defense Department spending for research and development was still rising, the government entered another area of research which required more and more money year after year —space.

In 1964-'65, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration financed research and development to the cost of $5.7 billion.

Third among the big government spenders was the Atomic Energy Commission with $1.7 billion.

Fourth was the Department of Health, Education and Welfare with just over $1 billion.

Other agencies which spent more than $100 million a year apiece included the National Science Foundation, the Department of Agriculture, and the Department of the Interior.

At the peak of World War II, funds for research and development never exceeded 2 percent of all federal expenditures.

By 1960, they had grown to 10 percent of the federal total, until today R&D claims 15 percent of the budget. Indications are that the present level will be maintained for the next few years.

While the Defense Department in recent years was and still is the biggest R&D spender, actually less than half of the $16.5 billion devoted to science in the last fiscal year was spent on weapons.

More than $2 billion of the total was used for basic research in such fields as medicine, biology, agriculture, psychology, physics, astronomy, atmospheric sciences, chemistry and oceanography.

Only a small part—about 14 percent—of the total research and development work is conducted by the government itself. The remainder is financed by the government, but farmed out to industry, institutions of higher learning and non-profit corporations, such as the Rand Corporation, created to do nothing but research.

Industry in 1964-65 performed the lion's share, or 73 percent, of the work. The remaining 13 percent of the federal research and development funds went to colleges, universities and other non-profit institutions.

Approximately 1 percent of federal obligations for research and development is spent by foreign "performers" for the U. S. government. In this category, countries in all continents are represented. Europe in 1964-65 received the largest share of $33 million. Asia was next with $14 million, the Near East third wtih $9 million, and Latin America fourth with about $5 million.

Within Latin America, Peru carried out research and development worth $1.2 million for the United States government. Brazil was second with $921,000.

Foreign nations which undertake R&D work for the United States government include two communist countries, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Among the most interesting performers of research and development work for the U. S. government are the nonprofit corporations which were set up for this specific purpose. The most widely known of these is the Rand Corporation.

Rand was set up in 1946 to preserve part of the scientific corps that during the war had developed the atom bomb, the proximity fuse, radar and other sophisticated devices for the government. To provide a favorable "environment" for the scientists, it was decided to create an independent organization rather than a military establishment or civilian governmental organization.

Rand's charter, which was signed in May, 1946, established the new corporation as a virtually autonomous department of the Douglas Aircraft Company. The Air Force provided Rand with an operating capital of $10 million and promised to keep the new unit busy with R&D contracts.

Today, the Air Force is still the principal sponsor, but Rand also performs work for the Atomic Energy Commission, the Space Administration and the National Institutes of Health, as well as private, non-governmental sponsors.

The government seems happy with this relationship. In 1963, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara stated that "the larger non-profit corporations, of which Rand is the most notable, contribute immensely to the success of the Defense Department."

Yule Revelry Thing Of Past In Belgium

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Christmas in Belgium is gradually reverting to its pre-World War Two significance as a purely religious festival and family feast.

Under the influence of GI's and other Allied troops during World War Two the Belgian capital developed the habit of organized all-night drinking and eating revels over the Christmas period. But the idea is dying out now if for no other reason than the plain economic fact that most families just cannot afford two expensive outings in a week.

Last year many restaurants and cafes lost money on all-night feasts prepared at heavy expense when the customers failed to show up in sufficient numbers.

This year most restaurants have dropped the idea altogether.

Belgian children receive their Christmas presents Dec. 6, the day of St. Nicholas, and parents prefer to celebrate New Year's Eve.

Preparations in the stores for Christmas start only after the spree of buying for the youngsters has ended Dec. 6. Street decorations and illuminations go up then to underline the festive atmosphere of the year's end and stay there until early January.

Most families have a Christmas tree and a reproduction of the manger.

In many towns, giant decorated and lighted Christmas trees are put up in the main squares. Nativity plays are organized and choirs sing carols and Christmas hymns in churches or in the open.

Can You Get It Together?

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—If you plan to buy a lawnmower or barbecue grill, it might pay to ask the merchant whether it will be delivered ready to use.

This is the advice of the Oklahoma City Better Business Bureau which recently investigated the practice of selling disassembled items.

Usually the job of assembling a simple household item is a simple task. But sometimes it requires tools and time that the average homeowner might not have.

The Better Business Bureau says some stores assemble minor items at no charge. Others charge a small fee.

None of the merchants queried by the Bureau would assemble a complicated item like a storage shed or tool house without an extra charge.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Holiday Season Can Be Hazardous on Highways

During the holiday season people are exposed to many more dangers on our streets and highways. Bigger crowds are everywhere. People are distracted in the rush to complete their shopping lists. There are more parties, more drunks, more people too much in a hurry to be cautious. You must watch out for them and their dangerous acts.

In addition, the weather and increased hours of darkness lead to more hazardous driving conditions. Last December there were almost 5,000 deaths due to motor vehicle accidents in the United States. To help you avoid a holiday tragedy, here are some safeguards recommended by the Traffic Accident Prevention Service at Liberty Mutual Insurance Company.

EQUIPMENT

Brakes—Test brakes for simultaneous gripping; any side pull should be fixed promptly. Check brakes at low speeds on every change of road surface to "get the feel" of their effectiveness.

Chains—When the going gets slippery, why take chances? Put on your chairs—they help traction, but don't depend upon them to prevent skids.

Windshield — Keep windshield and side and rear windows clear. Have prompt repairs made of defective wipers and defrosters.

Load—Distribute load evenly for easier control on slippery surfaces.

STARTING

Warm up the engine to prevent its stalling at a critical time. Accelerate cautiously and steadily to avoid wheel spin on any slippery surface.

STARTING

Be 10 times as careful on ice as on dry pavement because the gripping force of tires is only one-tenth as great. Do everything gradually on slippery roads, whether applying brakes, feeding gas or turning. Keep speed down and watch the other fellow.

FOLLOWING DISTANCES

On slippery pavement keep a clear distance of two vehicle lengths in front for every 10 m.p.h.

HILLS

Change your route, if possible, to avoid slippery hills and steep grades. Before starting up or down any hill, be sure the way is clear of stalled or sliding vehicles. Use chains and reduce speed until over the hill.

TRACKS AND RUTS

Try to keep out of car tracks and ruts. To cross them decrease speed and cut across sharply. If caught in deep ruts when a car is approaching, slow down, staying in the ruts if clearance permits. Don't cut to the right as this may whip the rear end into the other vehicle.

ICE TRAPS

Watch out for icy patches on bridges and overpasses where cold air underneath freezes the surface. Also be ready for ice shaded portions of hills, around curves and turns. Be wary when driving over new fallen snow for ice beneath.

SKIDDING

If you do begin to skid, turn in the direction in which the rear end swings. Do not slam on brakes and do not touch accelerator. De-clutch if you're driving a gear shift car. As soon as skidding stops, brakes can be applied in a series of quick hard thrusts, or "stab" braking.

RURAL HIGHWAYS

When the condition of the shoulder along a slippery road is known, it is sometimes possible to get greater control by driving with the right wheels on the rough shoulder.

NARROW ROADS

If there is approaching traffic, come to a complete stop. Wave oncoming traffic to pass you before proceeding.

PEDESTRIANS

Watch out for children on sleds and skis. Remember pedestrians can't get out of the way quickly because their traction is no better than yours.

RUSH HOUR TRAFFIC

Be particularly careful when driving in heavy traffic between the hours of 4:00 and 7:00 p.m. when everybody is in a hurry and visibility is poor.

STOPPING

Pump brakes to keep the wheels from locking and starting a skid. Slow down gradually, not suddenly.

CARBON MONOXIDE

Be sure to guard against this very common hazard—

Floor Boards—To protect yourself from deadly exhaust fumes, have any loose floor boards repaired immediately.

Exhaust System—Have your car regularly checked for any leaks in the exhaust system.

Resting—Never leave the engine running when resting or sleeping in the car.

Exercise—Stop your car, get out and walk around in the fresh air whenever you feel sleepy.

SOCIAL DRINKING

Social drinkers greatly outnumber the obviously intoxicated drivers, and they account for many holiday traffic accidents. Just two cocktails can impair judgment and vision.

Coffee does not help. Only time—as much as three hours—can eliminate alcohol from the blood system. So watch out for all the party-goers who think they can handle the stuff and still drive. And don't make the same mistake—if you drink, don't drive.

Remodelers Are Advised To Plan With Care

By Dorothea M. Brooks
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Good merchandising by some large-scale home builders, abetted by local codes in some areas, is helping to do away with "look-alike" housing, where each of a hundred dwellings present an identical facade.

But what to do if yours is a look-alike home?

Once the first thrill of home ownership has worn off, most such families get the remodeling yen and often they strive first to do over the outside. Many yearn for a front of fieldstone or brick.

Without careful thought, however, their best and most expensive efforts may yield nothing more than a revamped development house.

"What many of them fail to realize is that one hundred brick or fieldstone facades, side by side, would do little to change the picture," says Morris C. Hoven, vice president for building material products of Certain-teed Products Corp.

Don't Imitate

To achieve true individuality, Hoven believes, a homeowner must first take stock of the facades his neighbors' homes present. To imitate theirs, no matter how attractive, is to defeat the purpose of remodeling. If the house next door got their first with fieldstone, it may mean having to make another choice for the most attractive effects.

A second important step, Hoven suggests, is to consider the compatibility of various sidings. For example, clapboard goes with brick or fieldstone, but fieldstone looks drab with natural, unpainted shingles. In fact, fieldstone will clash with hand-hewn shakes because both are rough textured.

A good combination, Hoven feels, is one which blends a rough texture with a smooth one; for example, clapboard with fieldstone, rough-hewn shakes with white brick, vertical redwood siding with fieldstone and the like. Mixing more than two materials is risky except in the hands of a highly artistic architect. Always remember, windows are a third texture, anyway.

Color is important, too. Hoven says materials should be used either in their natural state or painted with decorator colors, but not in combination. This means that clapboard or shingles should be painted only if the bricks have been whitewashed. Natural brick calls for unpainted shingles, or, at the most, a neutral grey stain. Redwood, he feels, because it is naturally red should not be combined with painted sidings.

To be considered also, Hoven points out, is the character of window and door treatment. Since a homeowner rarely replaces windows, generally he must plan remodeling to conform to the style they convey.

Six-over-six farmhouse windows mix more readily with rural exteriors, such as shingles, brick or clapboard. Large picture-type windows on the other hand, are more conducive to contemporary exteriors, such as combinations of vertical redwood or ponderosa pine siding with an accent of fieldstone, Hoven said.

Agency Finds Most Oldsters Have Own Home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More persons than ever are living alone whether they like it or not.

There was a time when an elderly person automatically moved in with a relative rather than stay by himself. But there are signs the trend has changed.

Census bureau figures for August showed there were about 9.5 million persons last year who lived alone in either a house or an apartment. Two-thirds of them were 55 years or older.

The total was twice the number in the same category in 1950. According to the Census Bureau, the big rise over the last 16 years reflects two things: The growing proportion of older persons in the total population and the growing tendency of older persons to maintain a home of their own rather than moving in with relatives.

Whether or not people want to live alone is up to them, but one government agency is trying to get not only the elderly, but the rest of the population, to work together in a good cause — preserving historic sites for future generations.

The agency is the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which has issued a handbook telling groups how the government can help save bits and pieces of the American heritage ranging from 19th century row houses to Revolutionary era taverns.

Most of the historic sites are centered in the older parts of cities — the same ones that are victims today of decay, or are undergoing a renewal that can mean clearing away buildings with historical value.

But many of the same techniques used to renew slum areas can be used to rescue historic buildings, the housing agency points out. There are no federal urban renewal funds available for the single purpose of restoring buildings to authentic historic condition. But there are ways the programs sponsored by HUD can be used to help communities prevent landmarks from falling under the bulldozer.

For example, the agency said funds can be provided for:

— An open-space land program which improves the site around an historical building.

— Relocating historic structures in the path of various public improvements.

Buying restorable buildings in jeopardy and selling them for restoration.

So far, more than 100 communities have used the programs to halt destruction of historic sites, the agency said.

Newt. High Hockey, Track Teams Win League Open'rs

By Joe Gorin

A crucial game looms this Saturday for the Newton high school hockey team as they take on defending champions Arlington in a GBI hockey league contest at the Boston Arena.

In its first GBI league tilt last Saturday, Newton defeated Brookline, 4-2, on the strength of two final period goals by Don Gallagher, who had three over-all.

Arlington promises to be another cup of tea. The Spy Ponders are led by last year's league scoring champion, Bob Havern. They are generally considered the GBI's best team and their 9 - 3 romp over Waltham underlined this fact. Arlington had been considered the team to give them the most trouble.

Last Saturday, Gallagher's three-goal performance highlighted the day for Newton, although Bob Newiss' standout exhibition in the goal and Bob Cotter's three assists cannot be overlooked.

Newton jumped out to a 2-0 first period lead on the strength of goals by Gallagher and sophmore Jackie Droze.

But Brookline roared back in the second period to even the score at 2-2.

This remained the score for almost the entire third period and it looked like the Newtonites might have to settle for a tie. But with a little less than two minutes left in the game, Gallagher picked up a pass from Cotter at the blue line, drove around the defensemen and put the puck into the nets for the winning goal. Thirty five seconds later, Cotter intercepted a pass and fed Gallagher who beat the goalie for his third tally of the day.

Newton played with only three defenseman throughout the game due to an injury to Bruce Huntley. Mike Dezotell was a defensive standout and played most of the game. Peter Cully and Al Alessi also saw a lot of action on defense.

The high school basketball team was idle last week, and Coach Alvin Fortune and Asst. Coach Michael Buzzi utilized the time for much nedded practice.

The track team extended its victory skein to eight as the Metropolitan Track League opened its 19th season at Commonwealth Armory. Newton defeated Malden, 66-20, in a runaway.

Newton opened its defense of the Division One title by winning all 10 events including sweeps in the shot and hurdles.

Assorted Agenda Gets Aldermanic Attention

Appointment of Hugh M. Tomb, former Ward 7 School Committee member and at one time the committee's chairman, as a member of the Chaffin Educational Fund for an indefinite term, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of David Tibbot, was confirmed Monday night by vote of the Board of Aldermen.

Other matters covered in Monday's lengthy but action-packed meeting of the Board were as follows:

An appropriation of $8600 was approved for repairs to a city power shovel that had been damaged by fire.

An additional appropriation of $1823 was approved for rental of the Newton Corner parking area for 1967.

The following requests of the street commissioner for transmitting costs of work under betterment assessments were approved: for Hazelwood avenue, West Newton, $6801; for Fairlee terrace, Waban, $8033; for Nardell road, Newton Centre, $21,430.

Settlements of damage claims against the city were approved as follows: to George Vallee, who was injured when his car was in collision with a city-owned truck operated by William H. Toomey of the Street Department, $750; to Ralph H. Coates, whose car was in collision with a city vehicle operated by Emidio Tramontozzi of the Street Department, $4500; to James P. Lord, a former firefighter, whose back was injured in the line of duty prior to his retirement, $1469.

Docket items that had been referred to the committee on Street Traffic were acted on as follows:

Finally approved was Alderman Joseph M. McDonnell's petition in behalf of residents of the area near the intersection of Harvard street and Newtonville avenue for a traffic light or signal at that spot which has been the scene of a great many accidents. It is also a crossing used by many of the area's school children.

Also approved was a request transmitted by Mayor Basbas for a traffic light at Jackson road and Pearl street, Newton.

Approved for ordnance was a petition of Eleanor Coen for a stop sign at Arlington and Pembroke streets, Newton. This request was transmitted for consideration by Alderman H. James Shea, Jr.

Clear Homes From School Bldg. Site

Paving the way for an April 1 construction start of the new Bigelow Junior High School, demolition of five homes at the site is expected to be completed this week.

The Mahr and Falls Construction Co. of Dorchester, which holds the demolition contract, was issued a permit for the demolition job last Thursday.

The five homes, which surround the present Bigelow School, were purchased by the city for between $130,000 and $135,000.

The new school is expected to cost $300,000. The state will pay 40 per cent of the cost, or $1,120,000.

The board of Aldermen must first approve a $3 million bond to cover costs. Without approval, no money will be forthcoming from the state.

No Deliveries On 2 Mondays

Whereas Christmas and New Year's Day fall on Sundays this year, and the following Mondays, Dec. 26 and Jan. 2, are national holidays, there will be no mail deliveries except for special delivery and perishable articles in the Boston district, which includes Newton.

Postmaster Ephraim Martin says that his personnel has worked tirelessly for the past two months in handling the unprecedented mailings and have made extra efforts to guarantee that our armed forces in Viet Nam and all over the world get their Christmas mail on time.

Pesky Dump Fire Still Smoldering

The pesky smoldering fire at the Rumford ave. dump in Newton continued to plague firefighters this week although Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins reported it "pretty well knocked down."

Three companies of firemen have been at the scene for the past 10 days digging out and flooding the deeply rooted blaze.

A spokesman for the department said Tuesday that snow forecast by the weather bureau, was not expected to aid firemen.

"On the contrary." he said. "The snow and water filtering into the earth will carry oxygen with it and serve to rekindle the flames we've been able to suffocate."

The spokesman did say that most of the acrid smoke was gone from the blaze which should relieve neighbors who have been more than a little concerned about the situation.

Worried neighbors were assured earlier by Newton Health Commr. Dr. Hale Cook that although "the smoke and odor are unpleasant, they are less harmful than cigaret inhalation."

"No New Jobs," Aldermen Agree

Mayor Monte G. Basbas' edict that no new positions be created in the 1967 budget was approved unanimously Monday night by the Newton Board of Aldermen.

The Mayor had made a similar request to the School Committee.

Newton Girl Going To Be Near Christ's Birthplace Christmas

A Newton Centre lass will celebrate Christmas only a few miles from the place of Christ's birth 2000 years ago.

She is Deborah Anne Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Stone, 180 Elgin St., and has been chosen to participate in the International Honors Program.

Through the Christmas season, the International Honors Program, Corwin Hall, Princeton, N.J., will be centered in Beruit, Lebanon, a stop-over between India and Poland, the second and third countries of the I.H.P.

Deborah and other students will be free to travel on their own during the holidays. Some are planning to see the Middle East, including the Holy Land.

She is one of 21 students chosen by universities in the United States and Canada for the highly selective International Honors Program. Traveling with the students are three professors, who are leading them in intensive cross-cultural studies of politics, history, and literature in Japan, India, Poland and France. They are Dr. Louis Nemzer of Ohio State University, Dr. Grant Goodman of the University of Kansas, and Dr. Michael Wood of Columbia.

Research and study is only part of Deborah's learning experience during the year. She also has an opportunity to observe the distinctive cultures in the countries visited. A chance to see Christmas in the Middle East is only one of the year's many field trips, which include a visit to the Diet and a Buddhist wedding in Japan, and a look at state farms and factories in Poland. Probably most beneficial is living with native families and mixing informally with Japanese, Indian, Polish, and French students.

$20,000 Bail Holds Trio

Three men were held in $20,000 bail and bound over for the grand jury by Judge Julian Yesley in Newton district court Monday after he found probable cause on charges of breaking and entering and car theft.

Capt. John N. McMullen, who prosecuted the case against Milton E. Powers, 43, of Dorchester; Richard G. Petrie, 29, of East Weymouth, and John E. Mills, of Cambridge, requested that the $20,000 bail be maintained until the case comes before the grand jury sometime in January.

The trio was arrested two weeks ago near th Oak Park Pharmacy in Oak Hill while police were investigating a house break in the area.

Police "staked out" a car loaded with merchandise nearby which was parked in the area.

A witness in court placed two of the men at the scene of the housebreak and Det. Leonard C. Farrell said a set of finger-prints lifted from th car were Power's.

Tax Rate Jump To $80 Even Higher Seen In 1967

Present indications are that Newton's tax rate may jump to $80 and possibly even higher in 1967.

An increase of as much as $10 over the 1966 rate of $72.20 is not impossible.

This was the conclusion drawn last night from an analysis of the financial problems confronting Mayor Monte B. Basbas and the Board of Aldermen.

Mayor Basbas would make no estimate as to what next year's tax rate is likely to be, pointing out that a number of factors which will play a part in determining the rate are not yet known.

However, the Mayor made it plain that a substantial increase in the tax rate is inevitable in the coming year.

He also expressed deep concern that the city's bleak financial picture may make it necessary for him to slow down and spread out the proposed capital improvement program.

The Mayor several weeks ago submitted a six-year, $30.7 million capital improvement program to the Board of Aldermen. More than $20 million of that amount was earmarked for the construction of new schools.

Now it appears that a big boost in the tax rate may cause him to curtail that program.

A number of different factors have combined to present an enormous fiscal headache for the Mayor.

The amount of State Funds received by the city has been far below expectations.

So far this year Newton has received $1.8 million less from the State than was promised in the State's Cherry Sheet on which the 1966 tax rate was based and about $1 million less than it got last year.

While Mayor Basbas has been told by State Tax Department officials that the city will receive another allocation of funds by next Tuesday, it is improbable that it will be as much as $1.8 million.

Whatever the difference is between $1.8 million and the amount the city actually gets will have to be made up from the 1967 real estate tax levy.

The school budget, it is anticipated, will be at least $1,250,000 higher next year than this year. That would be equivalent to almost $4 on the tax rate.

ALA RAPS 6 PER CENT AUTO RATE HIKE

The Automobile Legal Assoc. has expressed "deep disappointment" at state Insurance Commisioner C. Eugene Farnam's granting of a 6 per cent boost in 1967 Massachusetts compulsory automobile liability rates.

Alphonse W. Query Jr., ALA legislative counsel, said the ALA "had hoped the commissioner would freeze the rates at the 1966 level until the legislature had a chance to consider the various proposals concerning changes in the state's insurance system.

"If nothing else, the higher rate and the anticipation of even higher rates in the future, should make everyone aware that something has to be done about the automobile insurance situation, and soon," Query said.

TRAIN CRASH PROBE CONTINUES

AN INVESTIGATION by state and railroad officials continued today into the fiery collision of a one-car B&M passenger train carrying hockey fans and a stalled oil truck that killed 12 and injured 2 0in Everett Tuesday night.

In the meantime, the House and Senate unanimously adopted an order for an investigating team, consisting of three senators and four representatives, to study the adequacy of safety devices used by the Boston and Maine railroad at crossings and railroad provisions for proper maintenance of safety equipment on Buddliner cars.

The committee, which is authorized to hold hearings, issue subpoenas and take testimony under oath, will be required to file a report plus any recommended legislation by May 3, 1967.

PROF. BURNS' WIFE HOSPITALIZED

THE WIFE of James MacGregor Burns, professor at Williams College and biographer of the late President John F. Kennedy, is hospitalized in North Adams in critical condition.

CONGRESS COOL TO BOMBING PROBE

IN THE FUROR developing over the deaths of North Vietnamese civilians in the U.S. air strikes near Hanoi, little sentiment has been developing in Congress for an investigation of U. S. bombing, although members expressed regret at reported civilian casualties.

Congressmen appear to be going along with President Johnson in his assertion that U.S. policy is tc hit only military targets. Johnson, an aide says, "doesn't feel his instructions have been violated at all." In a UPI sampling of Congressional opinion, only four of 18 members of Congress questioned said they would support an inquiry.

NO SIGN OF RALLY IN STOCK MARKET

INVESTORS APPARENTLY forgot to read the glowing expectations of the analysts for a year-end rally and stock prices retreated along a broad front in moderate trading yesterday. The list moved selectively higher in the morning but the modest upswing lacked enthusiasm and selling gradually reversed the trend.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average lost 3.62 to 788.58.

NATION'S AIRLINES HAVE BIG YEAR

Scheduled airlines of the nation soared to new records in 1966, ranging from more profits and passengers to fewer accidents and lower fares.

A year-end report by the Air Transport Assoc., the industry's trade group, showed the airlnes carried 110 million pasengers in 1966, up 16 per cent from 1965. Net earnings for the first nine months of the year were $325 million, a jump of 11 per cent over last year.

POWELL'S WIFE BALKS HEARINGS

HOUSE INVESTIGATORS may have to call off scheduled hearings today on Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, (D.-N.Y.) unless their star witness—Powell's estranged wife—can be brought in to testify.

Mrs. Yvette Powell, who is under subpoena, telegraphed the House Administration Subcommittee Wednesday from her home in Puerto Rico that she had received no official notification to appear.

TOLL ROADS FATALITY RECORD GOOD

THE INTERNATIONAL Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Assn. says only 14 of the more than 560 traffic deaths in the nation during the Christmas weekend occurred on toll roads.

The 14 toll road fatalities occurred as a result of six accidents, the IBTTA said. Of the 34 turnpikes and toll roads reporting to the association, 29 reported no fatalities.

BOB HOPE ENDS VIETNAM TOUR

COMEDIAN BOB HOPE and other American entertainers are on their way home today after completing their Christmas tour of Vietnam in a monsoon rain yesterday at Da Nang.

As 12,000 wildly cheering U.S. troops looked on at yesterday's show an exuberant young Air Force lieutenant, Tom Campbell of Wichita, Kan., vaulted to the stage, ripped open his shirt and asked shapely singer-dancer Joey Heatherton to autograph his chest. She obliged, writing "Love and Kisses, Joey Heaterton" across Campbell's chest with a ball point pen.

ALLIES SWEEP INTO DELTA SWAMPS

A vanguard of 10,000 Vietnamese troops and their U.S. advisers were sweeping southward through the everglades-like U Minh Forest today to secure a Mekong Delta landing area for Americans expected soon to arrive in force for the first time.

The operation, biggest airborne assault of the war and the first in nearly two years, killed 89 Viet Cong in its first few hours. Allied casualties were reported extremely light.

JOE KENNEDY'S WAR ROLE LAUDED

FORMER U.S. AMBASSADOR Joseph P. Kennedy did his utmost for Britain in the darkest days of World War II, a British author and former newsman said.

British press charges that Kennedy was pro-Nazi and defeatist amounted to a "campaign of calumnies," he asserted.

Historian George Bilainkin, 63, writing a book about the years 1938-40, said "Kennedy was a mighty man. I have not the slightest doubt he did everything he could to enlist American help for Britain."

Public Hearing To Air Single Session

By JAMES G. COLBERT JR.

Members of the Newton School Committee, reacting vigorously to suggestions that the Elementary School Schedule Study Committee had conducted its investigation in star chamber fashion, voted Tuesday night to hold a public hearing before any final decision is made on whether to retain the present split session or to change to a single session for elementary school pupils.

In a subsequent discussion on non-salaried items for the 1967 school budget, the School Board tentatively approved a $100,000 appropriation for the employment of lunch period supervisors for the last four months of next year in the event that a shift is made to the single sesssion next September.

Both Chairman Harold J. Berman and School Committeeman Way Dong Woo emphasized that the approval of the appropriation was not final and is contingent on the decision yet to be made by the School Board in the single session controversy. That decision must be made before next March.

Earlier, School Committeeman Manuel Beckwith reported that he had received numerous telephone calls expressing doubt whether there will be an open discussion of the single session issue and of the report of the elementary school schedule study group headed by B. U. Professor Malcolm Knowles which is at present investigating the various aspects of the elementary school schedule.

Beckwith deplored the "air of confusion" which has arisen about the study group's work and said that "without a doubt there will be an open session before a final decision is reached."

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Volpe Hoping For Harmony With Democratic Law-Makers

As Governor John A. Volpe prepares to begin the first four-year term in the Massachusetts Governorship and the State's law-makers start a new session, the big unresolved question is whether any kind of harmonious working relationship can be forged between the Republican Governor and the Democratic-controlled State Legislature.

So far there's no indication that there will be any moratorium on partisan politics on Beacon Hill during the next two years.

Governor Volpe, who has one eye on either the Republican Presidential or Vice Presidential nomination in 1968, would like to work in some degree of harmony with the Democratic legislators.

It would give him greater freedom in travelling around the country to promote his unofficial candidacy for a place on the GOP national ticket in 1968, would enable him to point out on such trips that he can get along with Democrats and would enhance his prospects of obtaining passage of much of his program.

Democratic leaders in the Legislature, who understandably are unenthusiastic over the possibility that Volpe might be his party's nominee for President or Vice President in the next election, are not likely to accomodate him.

However, there will be an element of risk for the Democratic chieftains in battling Volpe, especially on measures which he can show to be for the public good

If Volpe is stymied and frustrated by the Legislature during the next two years and if he does not gain a spot on the next Republican national at a private and informal session to make the offer to representatives of the teachers.

The pay boost would go into effect next September. Over a 12-month period the increase would raise Newton's school budget by about $560,000.

Whether the teachers, who are now on their Christmas vacation, would agree to the smaller offer was uncertain last night.

Spokesmen for the teachers pointed out privately that the raise offered to them is less than the raise given to police and firemen.

Four Injured On Slippery Roads Caused By Storm

Four persons were injured in Newton over the past weekend in accidents attributed to slippery road conditions caused by the storm. Two of the injured were motorists and two were pedestrians.

Most seriously injured was Mary E .Fee, 68, of 247 Chestnut Hill ave., Brighton, who suffered a fractured pelvis when struck by an auto while she was crossing Lake st. at Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill. She was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital for treatment.

According to Newton police, the driver of the vehicle, James Tompkins, of Somerville, said he tried to avoid the woman as he turned from Commonwealth ave., into Lake st. and she didn't see him in the snow.

That same night, two persons were injured when two autos collided on Commonwealth ave. at Temple st., West Newton. Both were taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital where they were treated for facial cuts and released.

William Daley, of Brookline, and Richard Arsenault, of 117 Elm st., West Newton, were injured when their car skidded and collided with a vehicle riven by Henry G. Freda Jr., of Medford, who was traveling in the opposite direction.

Sunday night, Reginald C. Garner, of 160 Parker st., Newton Centre, collided with a car while walking in front of his home. He was taken to Netwon-Wellesley Hospital for examination. Doctors said he was only shaken up and he was released.

Pension Bill For Police Widow To Beacon Hill

Mayor Monte G. Basbas has signed and approved for filing in the Legislature by the Board of Aldermen an order to adjust the pension of a Newton policeman's widow, whose husband lost his life in the line of duty. Mrs. Rachel G. Murphy will not be eligible for a pension until she reaches the age of 65 under the present pension system.

Under the bill, she would get $6900 a year until she becomes 65 before getting the regular pension.

Alderman Paul J. Burke filed the resolution calling for the bill, which was unanimously approved by the Board.

The husband of the widow, Lawrence Murphy, died from gunshot wounds in a battle in August, 1937.

Reps. Theodore D. Mann and Joseph G. Bradley will introduce the bill at the start of the coming legislative session.

Coverings Banned For 1967 Plates

A reminder to Newton automobile owners that the 1967 reflectorized number plates which will be used for the next five years cannot be covered by any protective covering, was issued this week by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin.

This rule is necessary because the use of such covering would adversely effect the reflective quality of the number plate, McLaughlin explained.

"These plates are guaranteed for five years of service, backed up by a $3 million performance bond posted by the manufacturer. These plates do not need protective coverings and, moreover, we need the safety factor of reflective quality which would be severely impaired by any such coverings," the Registrar asserted.

Newton Expert On Real Estate Looks Ahead To The New Year

The following forecast for the new year was made by Melvin Gross, 73 Wendell Rd., Newton Centre, president of the Rental Housing Association of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board:

"To make any prognostication of the new year we should review the past and from this, extend the present to the future possible trends.

"We have seen the City of Boston and its metropolitan area awakened to the need of modern multi-family living units at luxury, middle and low income levels. More than seven thousand rental units have been added to the housing inventory in each of the past four years. The year 1966 has been no exception to this.

"The stimulation of the urban renewal program in the city has created many new buildings. With the enactment and affirmation by the voting public of a sales tax and the increased awareness of overall fiscal responsibility in local government we are setting the stage for greater investor interest in the metropolitan area.

"This then should indicate a further expansion and growth in the rental housing segment of the real estate industry. This is not the case, however. Two factors change that picture; first the availability of mortgage funds are only a fraction of what they have been right up to the first quarter of 1966, and second, the construction costs have been spiraling with no indication of defalcationary tendencies.

"A swing in loosening of the mortageg picture or of construction costs will tell the tale of new construction in the year 1967.

"Existing properties should continue to be the mainstay of our industry. With the lack of new construction less moving will take place and while the vacancy inventory of rental units may well decrease in 1967 there is by no means a shortage of apartments nor is there any indication that such will develop.

"Modernization will continue in the older properties but to a lesser degree because of the mortgage and cost picture. Availability of financing renovations will be the entire control on this all important segment.

"Indications are that efforts are being made at the governmental level which are aimed towards the relief of the fiscal problem. Should these efforts be successful there could well be a relaxation of the mortgage situation in mid 1967. If this change should occur with any reasonable strength, the high cost of construction notwithstanding, we will embark upon a course which will conceivably bring us to a better real estate climate than we have ever experienced.

Project

Tentative plans for an air rights development over the toll road at Newton Corner which, if carried through to completion, would produce between $13.5 and $15.5 million worth of new taxable property, were outlined last July by the Urban Development Corp., headed by Mark J. Waltch of 20 Orient Ave., Newton Centre. Thomas J. White is treasurer of the company.

The Urban Development Corp. at that time was given an option to determine whether the contemplated project is feasible.

Little, however, has happened in the five months since then, and the project is still in the talking stage.

One of the first steps would be for the Newton Redevelopment Authority to apply to the Federal government for a survey and planning grant of funds so that the project could be properly planned.

The Turnpike Authority also would submit a petition to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen for air rights over the toll road in Newton Corner, and the developer would present a site plan seeking permission to erect the things he desires to build.

When any of these things will happen is uncertain. But the conference called by Basbas was intended to have the efforts of different agencies coordinated if and when they do happen.

Under the tentative plans, an 11-story motor hotel with restaurants and related facilities, a six-story office building and a five-story garage would be built in the initial stage of the development. This portion of the development would cost between $6 and $8 million, according to estimates, and would cover 3½ acres.

The second phase of the project calls for the construction of retail stores, offices and possibly a theatre in a four-story building at a cost of about $2.5 million.

In the third and final phase of the development an 11-story office building and retail stores in a four-story building would be erected at a cost of $5 million.

Mayor Basbas pointed out last night that the cooperation of a number of agencies would be needed to make the development a success.

For example, he said, the MDC would be interested in traffic patterns, the MBTA would be requested to provide mass transportation to the section, and the Metropolitan Area Planning Council would seek the cooperation of neighboring communities where it was needed.

Letters To Editor

In Appreciation

Editor of The Graphic:

I wish to express to you and to the readers of your paper the appreciation of the Post Office Department and of the employees of the Boston Postal District for the wonderful success of our 1966 Christmas mail.

Although we handled the largest mail load in our history the public responded to our request to separate and band their local mail and the deposits of Christmas cards arrived a day or two earlier than heretofore which permitted better utilization of equipment and employment of our personnel.

Without the full cooperation of the press, radio and television it would not have been possible to keep the public informed and to solicit their assistance.

I also wish to commend all of our postal employees who worked so hard and diligently to make this Christmas season the best we have had.

All of us in the postal service consider this as one of the smoothest Christmas operations, though we handled more than 350,000,000 pieces of mail in the Boston Postal District during December.

Our thanks to everyone who made it possible.

Sincerely yours,
EPHRAIM MARTIN
Postmaster

Viet War Query

Editor of The Graphic:

Did you ever read a government or press dispatch on the Vietnamese war which stated that the Viet Cong did this or that or the North Vietnamese did this or that? Never. They are always referred to by the government and by the press as "The Communists."

Now I ask you this question: Are we supposed to identify ourselves in everything we do as "the capitalists"?

How much longer will the government and the press agree together to befuddle and keep in a state of ignorance the minds of our citizens? When will we begin to admit the truth 'a la Fulbright" that communism, like capitalism, is just another economic system which has a right to exist? And isn't the fundamental point the following: We want to call them "Communists' because it's simple and confuses the issue. If we were to call them what they are—Viet Cong and North Vietnamese—then we would make clearer in the minds of our people that this is still largely a civil war.

And what the h--- are Americans, with a basically capitalistic economic system, doing interfering militarily in a civil war in the little country of Vietnam which has never done any harm to anybody but only suffered the ravages of world war and colonial occupation under first the French, then the Japanese, and now us Americans?

Favors Single Session

With mushroomed figures mailed to an alleged 5983 parents (a sampling discloses families who never received the letter, others received them after the printed deadline) in the questionnaire of the study group and presumably approved by the School Committee in "executive session," the parents still voted in favor of Single Session.

"Had the $300,000 figure been reduced to the true $246,000 estimate reported by the study group; had the $246,000 been reduced by the $6,000 refrigeration cost which was nothing more than an air conditioner and almost certainly would never be used for plain practical reasons; had the $240,000 been reduced by $40,000 "additional custodial cost" (intelligent administration can obliterate this mythical figure) had the $200,000 been reduced by utilizing the available gymnasiums in the half of the schools and using the police ladies otherwise on duty elsewhere; had the resultant $100,00 figure been reduced to ZERO city-wide acceptance, by as many as received questionnaires, might have been unanimous. A rotating system of teachers could have produced a zero figure with insignificant work on the part of any single teacher.

The principals and teachers should NOT have been organized against this constructive program. Was not this an appalling administrative blunder?

A source believed to be reliable suggests that the real objection of some if not most teachers is not Single Session. but fear of more almost certain required meetings in the additional "free" hours made possible by Single Session.

The school committee may rule Single Session LOST but what has not been lost in Newton is city-wide taxpayer vigilance in exacting more responsible fiscal conduct on the part of the school committee in ALL areas of its future activites and studies.

The Single Session organization is a city-wide group, powerful, and increasingly well informed. It is not restricted by any handful of selected persons "at the top." This network of citizens can never be negotiated to silence in its fact-finding and reporting efforts. We are all taxpayers. Our silence has cost all of us money.

Let us have Single Session at no cost. Let our efforts save $246,000, billed as $300,000.

Mrs. Lu-Jean Swanlund

Public Service

The Editor of The Graphic:

Newton's residents were treated to a superb example of good administration and public service when the streets of the city were efficiently plowed and opened to traffic in record time despite the heavy snowfall of Christmas night.

We are mindful that this was possible because the men and officials of the various municipal departments gave up their own holidays with their families.

We salute them in warm appreciation for this outstanding performance.

Running "Prof" Jogs 1512 Miles To Keep In Shape

Professor Louis Cooperstein of 44 Whitney road, was signally honored recently when he received a lapel pin in recognition of having run more than 1512 miles around the Boston YMCA oval track during the past 10 months.

Prof. Cooperstein, chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages at Northeastern University, is a member of the Executive Health Club which meets five days a week to keep in top physical shape.

Supervised classes for the YMCA's "Run for Your Life" program are held Monday through Friday at 7:30 a.m.-12:15 noon and 5 pm. The thirty-three club members select whichever time is best adaptable to their business schedules. Prof. Cooperstein attends the "early bird" session and then leaves to assume his teaching duties at nearby N.U.

The program is designed to help the physical "profile" of respiration, circulation, and the small of the back. The "Running Prof.," since last February when the program began, traversed the 440-yard cork-covered oval for a total distance of over 1512 miles.

It was in recognition of this "honor" that he was presented his lapel pin when the 2nd annual Husbands and Wives Night was held to acquaint the "better halfs" with the club facilities and afford them an opportunity to see the many installations used by their youthful looking hubbies.

Other Newtonites cited for their prowess on the track and receiving pins were Judge Alvin Tamkin, Dr. Richard Lent, Edward Redstone, Kenneth Bornstein, Alvan Stone, H. Krute, Warren Sylvester, Adelbert Gascon, and Lesner White.

Although most of the facilities at the Huntington "Y" are co-ed, including squash and handball courts, swimming, etc., the Executive Club, however, is sacrosanct to the business and professional male. It was specifically designed for relaxation and physical rehabilitation. The area is elegantly furnished with air-conditioning in summer and conditioned-air in winter and with suitable appointments to give its members a feeling of having a home away from the office and includes conference rooms with telephone service.

The invocation will be given by Mrs. Samuel Andler. The chairman of hospitality, Mrs. Sidney Jochnowitz will be ably assisted by her committee, Mrs. Jack Alpert, Mrs. Hyman Kamen, Mrs. Marvin Schribman and Mrs. Lester Wilker.

Campus In Turmoil

By Richard Braude

Ed. Note — In view of today's headlines screaming from the campuses of many colleges, this first of several articles by a student, taking us behind the sensationalism of the news, is timely and informative. The writer, Richard Braude, is a Newton resident and a senior at Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y.

The public will concede that today's college student is intelligent. That is, he is more academically advanced than his counterpart in past decades. Yet due to national publicity in regard to student-administration problems at the University of California at Berkeley and some isolated incidents at other colleges, the student is also categorized as a radical who would picket everything from the war in Vietnam to the traditional Sunday dinner.

Unfortunately, sensationalism, camouflaged as "human interest" news, provides some journalism with excellent material. People are more interested in reading about one student knocked unconcious by a policeman's nightstick than about ten who, for example, make an efficient and significant reorganization of their student government.

In addition, the few genuine radicals who are on the campus have become expert at drawing journalism's limelight, thus relegating constructive, if less spectacular, student accomplishment to the background.

To be sure, there are many college students who believe that their college could and should make changes. In fact, few conscientious students would admit that they are totally satisfied with college life. Yet contrary to public opinion, the student is unlikely to resort to picket lines and sit-down strikes. Those examples of overt protest serve only as a last resort, when communication between factions has failed. Marching and striking are products of frustration and bring about only increased stubborness, rather than immediate progress.

Understanding that principle, most student groups choose more useful and constructive vehicles for expressing opinion: Debate and group-study.

Various issues on the campus center on the question of in loco parentis). Does the college have the responsibilities of a "parent" for the residential student or is its sole duty to provide the well-equipped classroom? Does the college have the right to govern the student's private social life at school or is its jurisdiction limited to academics? For what is the student paying tuition? Simply for the right to attend class?

Some claim that the college must only provide the tools: The best available teachers, classrooms, libraries, visual and audio equipment. The student pays money and takes advantage of the facilities as he wishes.

Others would argue that the school must mold the student's character socially and morally as well as academically.

This particular debate provides a continuous dialogue at scores of colleges and universities, leading to considerations of related problems. The debate is orderly. Dissatisfied students organize, meet with single members of the faculty or administration often through the student government. If enough students are involved in the debate, the problem will find its way to more advanced meetings and discussions. Debate continues, with proposals, counter-proposals and compromise. Often, the result is at least partially palatable to both sides.

Some of the issues in question may seem trivial to a non-student. But the extension of the library closing hour or the establishment of a study lounge open all night are important to people who invest a good deal of money and time on an education.

In short, most students are unwilling to waste time and effort, when experience has proved that organized discussion is more useful than picketing.

The picket line on campus is more likely to represent the breakdown of communication than the presence of radicalism.

Slippery Going Injured Four Over Weekend

Accidents attributed to slippery road conditions injured two pedestrians on the holiday weekend.

Sunday evening, Reginald C. Gardner of 160 Parker St., Newton Centre, either fell into, or was struck by, a moving car while he was walking in front of his home. He was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital and released. The driver of the car, Sadie Caliquin of East Boston, told police Garner was shaken up, but not injured.

On Saturday evening, a Brighton woman, Mary E. Fee, 68, was admitted to the hospital with a broken pelvis. She was struck by a car while crossing Commonwealth Ave. at Lake St., Chestnut Hill. The driver, James Tomkins of Somerville, told police he tried to avoid the woman, but that she had failed to see his car.

On Friday night, Robert Stowers of West Acton was admitted to the hospital after his car struck a pole on Route 9. He sustained multiple cuts and bruises.

Early Saturday morning, Philip Rigoli, 223 Church St., Newton, was treated at the hospital after his car slid into three parked cars at 61 Beaconwood Rd., Newton Highlands. He was released after treatment for a cut lip.

Urges Students To Apply For Summer Jobs

J. William Belanger, Director of the Division of Employment Security, urges college students home for the holidays to apply for camp counselor jobs at the Division's office in the Park Square Building, Boston. College students who live outside the Boston area may apply for these summer jobs at the employment security office nearest their homes.

"We have on file right now, requests from camp owners to fill 2300 summer camp jobs," Belanger said.

Included in the job openings are positions for camp directors, counselors, arts and crafts tructors, nurses and dietitians. Students qualified in these specialties are in demand.

"Filing an application in the spring will be too late in most cases", Belanger said, "because by that time most of these jobs will be filled."

The available openings are in youth camps throughout New England, with most located in resort areas of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Last year, several hundred students found such jobs through the special summer camp job unit in the Park Square office of the Division of Employment Security.

Lee Loumos Says:

This is the week of sale prices to reduce inventory before the end of the year. Instead of the usual long advertisement listing many items, I am going to try something different this year to test the readership of this feeble column. I have a variety of TV, both color and black and white, stereo hi fidelity, tape recorders, organs, refrigerators, washers, dryers, etc., which I will sell for 10 to 30 per cent off to anyone who comes in and mentions this column. Most of these are one of a kind items so come in early for best selection. May I, at any rate, wish you all a happy, healthy and prosperous New Year!

Relay Runners Click For Both High Schools

Both of Newton's public high schools won close track meets last week.

Newton High, the underdog, defeated Boston College High 47 to 39, thanks to a strong finish by the Tigers' relay team.

Newton South tripped Watertown, also by a relay win. The score of the meet was Newton 44, Watertown 42.

An early lead was taken by B.C. in the meet with Newton High, but the Tigers produced unusual strength in the field events and distance races to overcome the Eaglets.

Newton South Lions looked like loosers prior to the relay, but Jim King, John Anderson, Mark Leventhal and Stanley Dolberg combined for a 30-yard win.

Newton Girl Is Made Treasurer

Miss Anantonia Caruso, 368 Langley road, Newton Centre, has been elected corresponding secretary of the Massachusetts Chapter of the International Graphoanalysis Society. Members of the Chapter are all graduates or students of the scientific handwriting analysis courses offered by the Chicago-based International Graphoanalysis Society, and who reside in Massachusetts.

"Graphoanalysis," says Miss Caruso, "is defined as the study of the individual strokes of handwriting to determine character and personality of the writer."

She explains that it is being used extensively throughout the country by business organizations as a method of personnel selection, in the evaluation of credit risks, and in identification of questioned signatures and other writings.

The Graphoanalytic technique of personality assessment has also proven valuable in counseling work and is being used by child guidance, personal, and marriage counselors all over the world, according to information emanating from the international headquarters offices.

The Massachusetts group holds regular meetings at which various aspects of technique and applications of Graphoanalysis are discussed.

School Board Non-Salary Budget Hits $2-Millions

Over School Committeeman Edwin Hawkridge's protest that the action would cause a 90-cent raise in the tax rate, the School Board voted a tentative non-salary budget totaling $2,288,877 Tuesday night.

The budget recommended by Superintendent of Schools Charles E. Brown as the minimum necessary includes a provision for an elementary school lunch program which will not be adopted unless a change is made from the present split schedule in the elementary schools to a single session, and foresees a $468,877 raise over the 1966 non-salary budget.

Superintendent Brown recommended this figure after having slashed requests made by principals and department heads which would have brought about a $663,017 increase for all items, including a new data processing program. However, the principals did not recommend the elementary school lunch expenses.

Committeeman Hawkridge proposed cuts beyond Brown's reductions, which would have reduced the non-salaried increase by an additional $251,288.

Ward 4 Committeeman Manuel Beckwith led the fight against Hawkridge's cuts, expressing particular concern about the proposed reduction in the instruction account below the 1966 level.

Under the heading of instruction are grouped teaching materials that range from chalk and paper to textbooks and audio-visual aids.

School Committeemen Frazier and Mrs. Grace C. Whitmore supported Beckwith. Frazier declared "this item refers to the tools. If you deprive the pupil of the necessary tools, he will never get another opportunity to use them again as he goes from one grade to another. I would be most reluctant to go beyond the Superintendent's recommendations."

"I would try to be sensible and moderate," Frazier said. "I would go along with all these recommendations as long as the pupils are not affected."

Hawkridge was supported by Mayor Monte G. Basbas in most of his proposals and by members Way Dong Woo and Vincent P. Stanton in his efforts to hold down the increase recommended by Dr. Brown in the maintenance of plant and in the athletic fund respectively.

Basbas deserted Hawkridge in his efforts to pare the sums spent on acquisition of new equipment for the Newton Technical High School.

In an effort to illustrate costs occasioned by the passage of time, Business Director John Gilleland disclosed that the clock system at the Spaulding School sounded at the wrong times.

He explained that the system was installed about 15 years ago by IBM, which has since ceased to make clocks.

All the superintendent's recommendations were adopted, including the $100,000 dollar pending item which would pay for the elementary school lunch program in the last third of 1967 if a single session schedule were initiated next year.

The largest reductions were made by Brown in the areas of maintenance of plant and purchase of new equipment. Other big reductions were in the data processing program, the funds allocated for out-of-State travel and the non-salary budget for Newton Junior College.

The data processing program took a 75 per cent reduction and fell from a requested $40,000 dollar appropriation to $10,000. The curtailment of the funds for Newton Junior College resulted from cutbacks in their computer instruction program.

Despite the debate on many items, Mayor Monte G. Basbas praised the superintendent for having done a "fantastic job" in cutting the non-salary budget. Chairman Berman emphasized that as frequently happens the differences among members of the School Board were "differences of degree and not of basic principles.'

He told police that she had come home for the holidays from McLean Hospital in Waverly, where she had been a patient for three months.

Political Highlights

ticket, he could campaign in 1968 for the election of legislators who would work with him—not against him—during the final two years of his term.

That is exactly what Volpe probably will do if he is balked to an unreasonably degree by the Legislature in 1967 and 1968.

The likelihood is that Volpe could cause quite a turnover in the Legislature if he decided to concentrate on such an effort in the '68 election campaign.

While Volpe does not have good rapport with some Democratic politicians, the election records make it plain that he can draw the support of a substantial segment of Democratic voters.

That is a factor the Democratic leaders and policy-makers on Beacon Hill should consider very carefully. If they don't , they might find the Democratic majorities in the bodies over which they preside sharply reduced in 1969.

Volpe will not be running for Volpe will not be running office in 1968 unless he is tapped to be the Republican candidate for President or Vice President.

He could raise havoc with many Democratic legislators in close districts if developments at the State House during the next two years enable him to make a case showing that portions of his program were killed for purely political reasons.

This doesn't mean, of course, that Volpe is always right and that the Legislature is always wrong when a dispute erupts; neither does it mean that every measure Volpe submits to the Legislature should be approved or that some of his proposals should not be revised or even rejected entirely. Neither Volpe nor his advisers are infallible.

But the Democratic law-makers will be injuring their own party's cause and possibly jeopardizing their own political futures if they put Volpe in a position where he can picture them as obstructionists who kill measures which are in the public good merely because they are sponsored by a Republican Governor.

Experts Evaluate Volpe's VP Chances

Some political observers have tried to evaluate Governor Volpe's chance of capturing the Republican Vice Presidential nomination in 1968 and have come up with the conclusion that they are "fair."

Strangely enough, they make no mention whatever of the seemingly obvious possibility that Volpe might be a compromise choice as the Republican candidate for President if a deadlock occurs at the next GOP national convention.

As the experts now see it, the Republican nominee for Vice President in 1968 will be either Volpe or Senator Jacob Javits of New York if, as is generally expected, the Presidential standard-bearer is from the Middle or Far West.

It's far too early, of course, to make any forecast as to what's likely to happen at the GOP national convention in the summer of 1968.

At this stage, however, Javits would have to be conceded a better chance than Volpe of landing the Vice Presidntal nomination. Volpe, on the other hand, would be more likely to emerge as the compromise choice for President than would Javits because of the influence the Republican Governors will wield at their party's national convention.

Javits is from a much bigger State that is Volpe. If Governor Nelson Rockefeller is sincere in backing Javits for the Vice Presidential nomination and is prepared to trade the big bloc of votes he controls, Javits would be an extremely formidable contender.

Rockefeller reportedly still clings to slim hopes that he himself might be the Presidential nominee. But before his recent gubernatorial fight he made a commitment to support Javits for the Vice Presidential nomination.

That has placed Rocky in a position where he cannot openly be a candidate for President, and there isn't much he can do without showing his hand and making it plain that he's breaking his word.

A factor which will militate against Javits is that he would be unacceptable to Barry Goldwater as the GOP nominee for Vice President.

Even though he was overwhelmingly defeated in the 1964 Presidential election, Goldwater, who is planning to run again for the U.S. Senate in 1968, will be a powerful force at the '68 Republican national convention.

If the GOP leaders are going to try to pull their party's pieces together for the next Presidential election, they may want to avoid antagonizing Goldwater.

One of the major developments for which politicians are waiting in the early stages of 1967 is a decision by Boston Mayor John F. Collins on whether he will stand for re-election to another term as Boston's chief municipal executive.

This is of great consequence not only in Boston but to Democratic politicos across the Commonwealth.

If Collins runs again and is reelected, he will loom as the probable Democratic candidate for Governor in 1970.

If Collins decides to retire from public life at the close of his present term, the man elected to succeed him as Boston's Mayor will be a potential contender for the Governorship in the next State election.

The only other two Democratic gubernatorial prospects on the political horizon at this time are State Senate President Maurice A. Donahue of Holyoke and House Speaker John F. X. Davoren of Milford.

Donahue, of course, sought the endorsement for Governor at last June's Democratic State Convention and then bowed out of the gubernatorial picture when it went to former Attorney General Edward J. McCormack.

Should Collins decide to step out, there will be a rush of candidates anxious to take over the duties he will relinquish.

Some of the prospective contenders for the office in such an event are Development Administrator Edward J. Logue, Secretary of State Kevin H. White, City Councillor Peter F. Hines of West Roxbury and City Councillor Christopher A. Iannella of Jamaica Plain.

Hines and Iannella already are campaigning as mayorality candidates. Logue would run only if Collins does not. White has not disclosed his plans, but it is known that he has mayoralty ambitions.

Former Presidential Aide Kenneth P. O'Donnell, now a resident of Boston, who made a strong run for the Democratic nomination for Governor, might join in the scramble.

If there is any possibility of President Johnson stepping out in 1968, however, O'Donnell may be stumping around the country for Senator Robert F. Kennedy, his political mentor.

The picture will remain uncertain until Collins reaches and announces his decision. Collins' present disposition is not to run again, but he has not foreclosed the possibility that he might change his mind, and there is strong pressure on him to seek another term.

Ted Offers Solution To Convention Argument

Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans will hold any pre-primary State Convention in 1968 since there will be no candidates to be endorsed, and it's possible that the Democrats have held their last conclave for a long time to come.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy has come up with a sensible solution to the argument between the Republicans who want to hold a convention and the Democrats who don't.

Ted proposed that each political party be allowed to decide whether it wants to stage a convention.

Thus, the Republicans could hold one if they wished, while the Democrats could forget about a conclave and carry their fights directly into the primary.

It's difficult to see how anyone could reasonably object to that compromise.

Governor Volpe, for example, would be on solid ground in vetoing a bill calling for the complete abolition of the conventions since the Republicans make theirs work.

But he would not have much justification in insisting that the Democrats also should hold a convention if they don't want to do so.

OUR BEST EMPLOYMENT ADS GO HOME AT NIGHT

Our own engineers and support personnel are our single best source of new hires. It's a statistic we take justifiable pride in, and work hard to maintain.

LFE is an engineers' organization, which is one way of saying that we're uncommonly aware of our engineering staff's importance to our present success and future growth.

This awareness shows itself in many ways. It forms our organization's structure and its technological interests; and it also permits LFE to attract and hold the career-long interest of exceptionally creative and able individuals.

Today more than ever, the span of interests at our Boston headquarters covers a wide range of advanced electronics development, with emphasis in these areas:

RF SYSTEMS ENGINEER
BSEE, MS preferred. Minimum of 8 years' experience in the development of signal processing techniques for pulsed RF systems. Must be familiar with techniques used in the design and analysis of analog and digital servo-mechanisms. Assignment will be to assist in the development of advanced hyperbolic navigation receiving equipments.

PRODUCT ENGINEER/DIGITAL DISPLAY HARDWARE
BSEE, 5 years of product engineering experience. Familiar with electronic components and digital display hardware. Well versed in MIL SPEC requirements for airborne and ground electronics. Will assist in the development of advanced hyperbolic navigation receiving equipment.

CIRCUIT DESIGNERS
BSEE, 3 to 5 years of circuit design experience in analog, digital and feed-back amplifier design. Experience in taking circuit and breadboard design into chassis, unit, or box hardware.

RELIABILITY ENGINEERS

LOGIC DESIGNERS
BSEE, 4 to 7 years' experience in the design and development of logic systems, digital circuits, in-put/out-put systems, and special interface and conversion equipment for advanced avionics systems.

MECHANICAL DESIGN/PACKAGING
BSME, 3 to 5 years' experience in creative mechanical design of electronic systems with emphasis on reliability and manufacturability. Able to do design layout and direct designers. Skill areas should include materials, structures and heat transfer analysis. High density packaging experience on special purpose computers highly desirable.

COMPONENTS ENGINEER
BSEE, 3 to 5 years' experience in component engineering. Requires an all-around competent background. Experience in the application of component parts, component MIL SPECS, failure analysis and component evaluation.

Rate

Pay raises already granted to members of the police department, effective next May 1, will cost the city about $200,000 in 1967, and the increases to members of the fire department will cost approximately $225,000.

Thus, the police and fire department raises will hike the city's tax rate about $1.30.

Negotiations under the new collective bargaining law also are being conducted by municipal officials with other groups of city employees, some of whom are requesting raises as high as 15 and 25 per cent.

County assessments were $250,000 greater this year than in 1965 and probably will go up again in 1967.

In most years the higher cost of running the city and school system has been partly offset by an increase in taxable property which broadened the tax base.

However, only $1.5 million worth of new taxable property has been built in Newton this year as compared to an annual average of between $4 and $5 million. Municipal officials had expected that at least $3.5 million worth of new property would be placed on the 1967 tax rolls.

With higher municipal, school and county costs, with considerably less financial assistance from the State than was anticipated, and with less new construction than usual, it all adds up to a grim fiscal picture which points to a sharp rise in the tax rate.

An uncertain factor, which will not be known until the end of the winter, is the amount of money the city will be obliged to spend for plowing and removing snow. If Newton is hit by a series of severe storms, that also will make an impact on the city's 1967 tax rate.

Hearings -

have a regular meeting and attempt to conduct other School Committee business."

Hawkridge introduced a motion that the School Committee hold a public hearing to listen to both persons who favor and oppose the single session after the final study group report has been submitted. The motion was seconded by School Committeeman Vincent P. Stanton.

Committeewoman Norma W. Mintz, who represents the School Board on the study group objected that the study group itself might feel the need to hold a hearing before making its report.

Mrs. Mintz offered an amendment to Hawkridge's motion phrased in more general terms, stating that the School Committee would inform the public fully and would take precise steps to assure communication between the School Committee and the citizens of Newton.

Chairman Berman offered a compromise order which was adopted unanimously, specifying that Newton citizens will be given ample opportunity to express their views about the Knowles group's report in a public session of the School Committee. He pointed out that this wording left the School Committee free to hold either a hearing or an open session.

School Committee member Woo urged Superintendent Charles E. Brown to establish some kind of a schedule on the study group's report so that it could be made public at the next regular School Committee meeting.

Dr. Brown replied that the study group has a built-in deadline in as much as the School Committee must take some action on the costs involved in a single session before it meets with the Aldermanic Finance Committee in March.

Committeeman Stanton suggested that some independent educational experts be approached to evaluate the effects of school schedules on the children.

In reply to Committeeman Beckwith's praise of the capacity of the Newton School staff to perform such an evaluation, Stanton observed that: "Our teachers have already expressed an opinion so strongly, that they have put themselves into one camp."

Mrs. Mintz explained that one of the subcommittees of the study group has the task of evaluating the impact of school hours on children and will call in experts in psychology, education, and human relations.

School Committeeman Francis P. Frazier insisted that "we should remind ourselves again that the final decision rests with the School Committee and if the public is dissatisfied it should vote us out of office."

TO LEAD FUND DRIVE—Mrs. Joseph Yanofsky and Mrs. Philip Forrest, both of Newton, serve as co-chairmen for "Operation Ten", a ten-week fund drive for the Women's Committee, Massachusetts Kidney Foundation, which will launch 1967 campaign activities toward the organization's goal of $50,000 for research in kidney disease.

After 37 years and four months teaching in Newton, Miss Rosamond H. Tenney will retire from the Emerson School on Friday, Jan. 6. School Committeeman Edwin Hawkridge requested that a special letter be sent from the School Committee to Miss Tenney thanking her for her services.

Recognition of progress toward obtention of his doctor's degree was given Michael J. G. Bruer of Newton South High School who was transferred from the Master's degree training level to the training level for those who have completed an additional year of graduate work. (The added training permits teachers to qualify for a different salary schedule.)

Newton High Downs South With Defense

Newton High and Newton South High played a tight game of basketball last Friday afternoon in the latter's gym, with Newton High the victor. The score was 45 to 37 in favor of the Tigers.

Only two players, Warren Houston and Ron Howland, both Tigers, hit the double-figure column. Houston accounted for 13 points, and Howland scored 11.

Both coaches, Al Fortune of Newton and Warren Bechtold of South, attributed the difference in scoring to defense.

Study Easier By Means Of Dial System

By BILL MULLINS
United Press International

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Students at Oral Roberts University are encouraged to watch television while they study.

It's all part of the new "computerized dial access information retrieval system" at the school.

The $500,000 system is expected to simplify learning, by providing an electronic library for students seated at individual study stations. Each station has a television screen, earphones and control panel.

Students can tap the electronic library by dialing a number selected from an index of recorded lessons.

The dialed number is received in the system control center and a computer selects and starts the specified equipment, which includes television tape recorders, television film systems and audio tape recorders.

The switching system can also be used to distribute live programs originating in a television studio or at various other program pickup points in laboratories and classrooms.

Topics covered in the system's library include art, Biblical studies, biology, business administration, languages, history, mathematics and physical and political science.

Dr. Paul I. McClendon, university's director of learning resources said the system will enable the student to observe and study charts, diagrams and other material on new and advanced concepts before they are published in conventional textbooks.

McClendon described the system as a step toward solving some of the problems plaguing education today. It will aid the teacher trying to teach too many students too much in too short a time.

"With a computerized electronic storage and retrieval system, the student gets a second look at the material," he said.

And students can proceed at their own pace.

Radio Is Far From Dead, Report Says

CHICAGO (UPI) — Think of radios. Think of 242 million radios. Think of one and one-quarter radios.

The last figure is how many radios there are in the United States for each of its 195 million persons.

In the average U. S. home, reports the National Association of Music Merchants (NAMM), there are four radios.

Seven out of 10 Americans listen to the radio every day, the NAMM says. Some of the younger ones seem to listen to more than their numerical allotment at one time.

The most listened-to thing on the radio is music, says the NAMM (whose initials sound like a radio station).

"Music has always been and continues to remain the most popular feature on radia," NAMM executive Vice Presidence William R. Gard says. "Music is the most common interest of the entire family in terms of home entertainment and radio is the electronic device that delivers this to the home at the lowest cost."

Every year, 34 million radios are sold in the United States. Price is an object.

Seven years ago, the U.S. made transistor set cost 25 per cent more. Imports, which account for half of all radios sold in this country, sell for an average of $5.95. Some, from Taiwan, sell for $2.62.

Traffic Demands

Chicago — About 75 percent of the current consumption of gasoline is used to move ordinary traffic along America's paved city streets and the network of intercity highways.

Helpful Hints For The Cook

Serve curry egg pancakes for a quick lunch during the busy holiday season. Place 1 cup of milk, 1 egg and 1 tablespoon of liquid shortening in a bowl. Add 1 cup of pancake mix; mix lightly until batter is fairly smooth. Bake pancakes to golden brown, turning only once.

Top each serving with 1 hard-cooked egg, sliced, and ¼ cup of curry-flavored sauce. To make the sauce melt 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine; mix in 2 tablespoons of all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon of salt and ¼ teaspoon of curry powder. Stir in 1 cup of milk. Cook over low heat until mixture is thickened, stirring constantly. Makes 4 servings.

MONEY-SAVER

Good curry can use a cheaper cut of lamb. Heat 2 tablespoons of salad oil. Brown 4 lamb neck slices, each about ¾-inch thick; drain off drippings. Combine 2 teaspoons of curry powder and ½ teaspoon of chili powder. Slowley stir in 1 (10½-ounce) can of condensed cream of chicken soup and 1 cup of water. Add to lamb. Cover and cook over low heat 30 minutes, or until lamb is tender. Turn occasionally. Serve over hot rice. Makes 4 servings.

MINCE MEAT

Top off a holiday dinner with mincemeat crisp. Combine 1⅓ cups of moist mincemeat and 1 cup of diced raw apples in an 8-inch square baking pan. Combine 1¼ cups of sifted all-purpose flour, ¾ cup of rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked), ⅓ cup of firmly-packed brown sugar and ¼ cup of melted butter or margarine; sprinkle over mincemeat mixture; press lightly. Bake in preheated moderate oven about 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Built-In System Sets Person's Food Response

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—People have their own built-in system of responding to food, reports Louise W. Hamilton, extension foods and nutrition specialist of the Pennsylvania State University.

Some people gain weight even if they eat little food and others can't gain weight no matter how much they eat, she said.

In one study of this nutrition problem, a group of medical students kept track of the food they ate. The intake was 1,000 to 5,000 calories for the men. The top figure was 3,500 calories for the women. There was little relation between the weight gain of the student and the food he ate.

Growing children seem to have the same variations, said Miss Hamilton. Children with similar ages, height, weight, and body surface show considerable difference in how much they eat.

How much energy a person uses to do a certain job shows this to be true. When military men of the same age, size, and conditioning were measured for the amount of energy they used when marching, variations were considerable. Men were tested marching on a level surface at a little over three miles an hour. Men using the least energy burned up four calories a minute while some men used twice that amount of energy.

Washington — The city's famous cherry trees given as a gift by Tokyo to the U.S. in 1912, bloom about 12 days each year, but the dates are unpredictable.

Pelt Prices

Madison, Wisc. — A farm-raised mink pelt brings an average price of about $25.

Just in case! Now, there's a portable, emergency oxygen unit that can be used before the doctor arrives in cases of carbon monoxide poisoning, near drowning, injury shock, asphyxia, electrical shock or heart attack. The patented regular provides a metered flow of 15 minutes of oxygen at the medically approved rate of six liters per minute. The manufacturer says the unit has been clinically tested and approved. It is suggested also for police, fire and medical departments, for plants, offices, schools, cars, boats, planes and at sports events.

It says here that you can paint a ceiling the same way you mop the floor. A heavier bodied, thicker paint now on the market prevents the running and dripping associated with most ceiling paints. The maker says the latex coating goes on with a conventional roller. But the roller is attached to an old mop or broom handle, eliminating the need for ladder.

Flaschner Named To Second Term On Area Plan Council

Franklin N. Flaschner, Newton Alderman - at - large now serving his fifth term, has been appointed by Mayor Monte G. Basbas to his second three-year term as this city's representative on the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

Alderman Flaschner is chairman of the Claims and Rules Committee and of the Planning Committee of the Board of Alderman.

This is the planning agency created by the Massachusetts Legislature to serve as the coordinating force in promoting and finding solutions to so many of the planning problems common to all or many of the eighty-two cities and towns in Metropolitan Boston in land use, transportation and all other public facilities.

Mr. Flaschner has served on the Executive Committee of MAPC since its formation in 1963. This committee manages the affairs of the Council under the noteworthy leadership of Father W. Seavey Joyce, the Council's president.

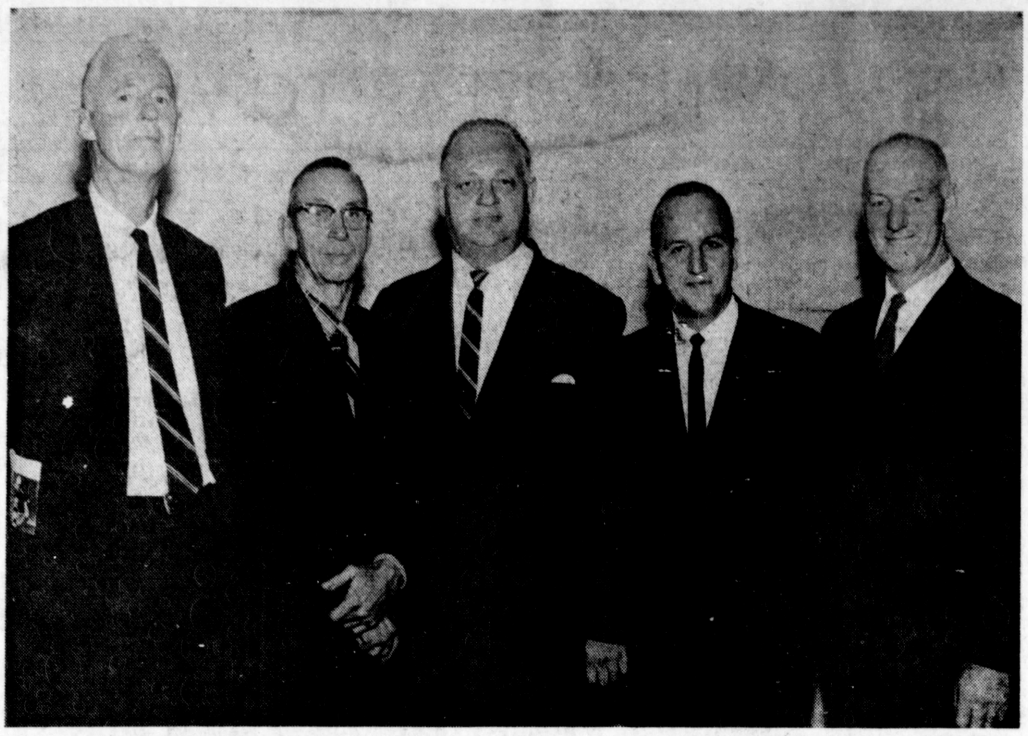

Mr. Flaschner has also served as chairman of the Zoning and Land Use Committee of the Council and of a special committee on the location of a new site for the Boston Division of the University of Massachusetts.

MAPC's annual budget is about $125,000 based on the statutory charge of five cents for every resident in the area. In addition, during the last 2½ years the federal government has made grants to the Council of almost three quarters of a million dollars. MAPC's most dramatic study to date is its inventory, report and recommendations on Open Spaces, including the Boston Harbor and the major rivers as well as the land covered by the eighty-two cities and towns.

Among the other major studies completed or in progress are those on Population, Economic Base, Comprehensive Planning, Solid Waste Disposal and the Southwest Highway Corridor. In the near future a major study will be undertaken on Housing.

MAPC serves as a coordinator among the cities and towns and between them and various state agencies. It is also developing a Community Assistance Program. MAPC has also been used as a coordinating agency among state agencies involved in common problems, such as the Department of Commerce, the Department of Public Works, the Metropolitan District Commission and the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

The staff of MAPC numbers about forty-five and it is headed up by Planner Robert Davidson, a resident of Newton and former member of the Newton Planning Board.

HOLY NAME TO OPERATE "CHANGE PLATE" PLAN—Our Lady's of Newton Holy Name Society officers discuss "Operation Change Plate" plans with Archdiocesan HNS president. Left to right: John R. Ford, secretary; Herbert J. Austin, treasurer; Franklin G. Flahive, of Winchester, Archdiocesan president; Andrew J. Magni, president; and William J. Terry, vice president. Members will change auto plates in parish school yard December 30, 31, and January 1. Proceeds for Holy Name Chapel Fund at Pope John XXIII Seminary, Weston.

Holy Name Chapel To Have Assist From Plate Change

Our Lady's Holy Name Society, Newton, will participate locally in the Archdiocesan-wide HNS project "Operation Change Plate" this weekend by changing auto registration plates in the parish parking lot Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

William J. Terry, vice president of Our Lady's Holy Name Society and chairman of the parish committee for tihs project, has announced that plates will be changed Friday, December 30, from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday, December 31, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Sunday, January 1, from 8 am. to 12 noon. Officers and members will work in two-hour relays each day. Hot coffee will be available to the workers.

The help of additional volunteers for two hour shifts is being sought by Mr. Terry. "The more men we have," he stated, "the easier it will be to carry out this program efficiently and without delay to the cars to be serviced."

Donations from motorists who avail themselves of this service will be one dollar per car and the proceeds will be applied toward payment for the construction of the Holy Name Chapel at the Pope John XXIII Seminary for Delayed Vocations in Weston, Mass.

Since the new reflectorized registration plates are designed to last five years this will be the last opportunity for the men of the Holy Name Society of the Archdiocese of Boston to meet their commitment of $100,000 for the Chapel via "Operation Change Plate."

Members of the committee working with Mr. Terry to complete arrangements include the other officers of the local Society plus Lawrence Coletti, George Frankenberger, Charles Gorman, Francis Gorman, and James Mogan.

Aldermen Endorse Mayor Basbas' Stand On New School Positions

The Board of Aldermen, in a unanimous vote at last week's regular meeting, stood solidly behind Mayor Basbas in his objection to the creation of new positions in the school system at this time.

The Board adopted the following resolution, which was presented by John P. Nixon, chairman of the Aldermanic committee on Finance:

Resolved:

That the Board of Aldermen adopt a vote of confidence endorsing the stand taken by His Honor the Mayor in his discussions and public communications with the Newton School Committee relative to the 1967 budget.

In view of the threatened tax rate increase, of considerable magnitude for 1967, it is most important that all city departments carefully scrutinize their budget and eliminate all other than necessary items.

The Mayor flatly states his endorsement of the excellence of the City's educational system. However he objects to the creation of the many new positions at this time.

He requests the School Committee to restrict their increase of the operating budget to the $1,000,000. which they had promised early last summer.

Keeping in mind that one million amounts to about three dollars on the tax rate, any further expenditure may levy a burden that the tax payers can ill afford.

We strongly support the Mayor in his recent appeal to the School Committee when he said:

"I urge you to review your proposed budget for 1967 with a microscope and the areas in which you can properly tighten your belts and postpone to a future year the 'nice things' that could very well be deferred without materially affecting the calibre of education in this community. It would appear, for example, in view of the fact that our student population has levelled off to a great extent, that you could consider deferring the creation of any positions at this time. I would prefer to remain competitive in the field of teachers salaries. These new positions could very well be considered at a time in the future when our Capital Improvement Program for one thing will have levelled off, and the bulk of our school building program will have been completed."

South H. Swamps Bedford But Marion Stiffer Foe

By RAY KWASNICK

Newton South's pucksters exploded for 14 goals while blanking a hopelessly outclassed Bedford team Friday. Wednesday, the Lions face stiffer competition against the Dual County League leaders, Marion. Marion warmed up for the impending head-on clash of the circuit's top two squads by polishing off Wayland, 6-1, on the strength of ace Gary Reardon's hat trick.

The key to the Bedford game was South's superior forechecking. Almost the entire game was played in the Bedford portion of the rink. When Bedford finally got off shots (of which there were only 8 in the game) Lion goalies Dave Roberts and Dave Singer handled the opportunities easily.

South's unrelenting pressure paid off early as the Lion six registered 5 goals in the space of two and a half minutes in the first period. Chet Robart netted the first of his four goals at 1:26 of the opening stanza on a rebound of a Frank Rezzuti shot. Then, in quick succession, Mark Sheehan, Biff Wisner, Frank Rezzuti, and Sheehan again all found the range.

The same type of play characterized the rest of the game as Coach Jesdale emptied his bench. Jesdale successfully experimented with his line formations. He moved Robart to the Rezzuti line (including both Frank and Tom.) This group connected six times.

Wisner centered for Sheehan and Gary Mason. Each of these three came up with two goals. A third line of Bill Hunt, Jim Spinks, and Allen Fraser also came with a point. Defenseman Mark Holland accounted for a Lion tally on an unassisted rush midway through the third period.

The victory accomplished a number of things for South. It put the Lions only one point in back of front running Marion. It was the highest score by a team in Dual County League history. It gave South the highest scoring offense with 17 goals and the least-yielding defense, giving up only one goal in three games. Finally, it was the Lions' second shutout in as many games.

Defense was the name of the game as crosstown rivals Newton High and Newton South clashed in their Suburban League basketball opener at Newton South. The Tigers put the bite on the Lions 45-37 in a low scoring affairs.

Cold hands again plagued South. Newton's pressing man-on-man defense didn't let the Lions get many shots anyway, but when the Lions did shoot, they missed. They hit a pitiful 28.5 per cent from the floor.

The game was close three-quarters of the way. South converted a three point deficit at the end of the first quarter to a one point advantage at the half. The Tigers fought back taking a 32-31 lead at the end of three and finally pulling away in the last period for the 45-37 victory.

No Lion finished in double figures. Juniors Bob Levine and Lee Casty were high with eight. Newton's Warren Houston took the scoring honors with 13 points.

That Pesky Dump Fire Still Gives Firemen Trouble

There was no rest for weary Newton firefighters over the holiday weekend as they were called out by over a dozen alarms, including the Rumford ave. dump blaze which flared anew.

Saturday morning Engines 2 and 5 went to the dump and extinguished a small fire. That night Engine 4 spent four hours there.

Monday Engine 2 spent two hours at the dump and Engine 5 was there for several hours.

The fire has blazed and smouldered in the dump for the past three weeks. City-owned earth moving equipment has been used to overturn the rubbish so firefighters can get at the flames. However, the fire is so deeply rooted it has resisted all efforts despite tons of water poured on it.

To Feature Four Newtonites As Outstanding Young Women

Four Newton residents have been selected for inclusion in the annual biographical compilation "Outsanding Young Women of America."

The 6000 young women chosen for this honor have distinguished themselves in civic and professional activities.

Selections for the volume are made by the Board of Advisory Editors, of which Mrs. Dexter Arnold, honorary president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is chairman. Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who serves as the Board's honorary advisory chairman, has said that the book is especially meaningful to her because the achievements and abilities of women is a subject close to her heart.

United States Senator Margaret Chase Smith, in her introductory message for the 1965 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America," said, "This book calls attention to the great capabilities of our young women and their ability to get things done."

The publication was conceived by the leaders of the nation's women's clubs. They felt that young women who give their time for community projects should be recognized. The recognition of these outstanding women can serve to inspire others to give their time to additional civic responsibilities.

Local women's clubs throughout the country submit nominations for the book each year.

Guidelines for selection include unselfish service to others, charitable activities, community service, professional excellence, business advancement, and civic and professional recognition.

The local young women to be honored are:

Miss Irene R. Petrone, 6 Dudley Rd., Newton Centre.

Mrs. Emma Mitchell Brown, 41 Oxford Rd., Newton Centre.

Miss Orise Georgiana Petit, 41 Commonwealth Ave., Chestnut Hill.

Mrs. Frederick Marshall Whitmeyer, 84 Central Ave., Newtonville.

Newton High Hoopsters Extend Win Streak To 3-0

By JOE GORIN

Riding the crest of a three-game victory skein, the Newton high school basketball team faces its toughest test this Friday when it takes on mighty Weymouth in a 2 p.m. game.

The Tigers extended their winning streak by defeating Belmont and cross-city rival, Newton South, last week. The Belmont game was nip-and-tuck, while the Lions were easy prey.

The high school hockey team possesses a 1-1 break-even record in league competition by virtue of a 4-2 win over Brookline, and a 0-6 route by Arlington last Saturday. The team plays Rindge Tech Wednesday the 28th and faces Somerville Saturday, the last day of the year.

In basketball, the Belmont game, won 57-54, was a real seat-squirmer as Newton trailed throughout the entire game and didn't pull out the victory until the final 21 seconds of play.

Newton was trailing 54-51 when Pete Hicks put a 15 foot jump shot through the nets to bring the Tigers within one point of Belmont.

On the ensuing throw-in, Belmont was called for a charging foul. Newton regained possession under their own basket with less than fifteen seconds remaining to be played. Ron Cook threw the ball to Paul Colantonio who drove in from 10 feet and put the ball through the hoop to give Newton a one point bulge.

With about six seconds left, Warren Houston tied up Tony Forsythe for a jump ball. On the jump Houston slammed the ball downcourt toward the Newton basket. It was picked up by Colantonio who put it in to clinch the decision.

Colantonio was high scorer with 20 points. He was given good suport by Paul Ward, who had 12 and by Pete Hicks with 10. Hicks didn't really come on until the fourth quarter when he scored most of his points and made several key defensive plays. Houston's defense was outstanding throughout the game as he made things difficult for the Belmont offense.

The win at Newton South was a defensive battle all the way as Newton High went home with a 45-37 advantage. The Tiger's pulled the game out in the final quarter as they outscored their cross-city rivals 13-6.

Perhaps the key factor in Newton's success was the defense of Paul Ward and reserve Phil Nelson.

The duo held South's star forward Steve Cooper to six points.

The fact that neither team could get their offense moving is evident because of the lowscore of the contest and because only two players had double figures. Warren Houston hit for 13 while Ron Howland bombed away for 11. Newton South had no one with more than eight points.

The hockey team was not quite as fortunate as their basketball counterparts. The icemen were trampled by Arlington, the league's best team, by a score of 6-0.

The game was all Arlington, but on several occasions, sophomore Jackie Droze gave Newton fans something to cheer about. More than once he broke into the open only to be foiled by spectacular defensive plays. Goalie Bob Newiss also showed flashes of brilliance in a 28-save performance.

Ironically, Newton's defense held the Spy Ponder's leading player and scorer, Bob Havern, without a goal in this high scoring game. But John Allesandroni picked up the slack with two goals. Others in the scoring parade for Arlington were Steve Donnelly, Jim Russel, Brian Corkey and Dave Lyons.

As a result of the win, Arlington moved into a first place tie with Medford and Cambridge Latin. Newton and Waltham are each one game out of first. Thus far, Medford has been the league's biggest surprise. They have won two games in two outings. But what is more amazing is that they have scored 26 times (13 goals per game) and have not been scored upon. They lead the state in goals for-goals against percentage.
